POLE TO BE NAVY GOAL

Coolidge Favors Arctic Flight

Special Board is Named to Plan Expedition for the Coming Summer

Department's Big Dirigible Shenandoah May be Chosen for Task

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—A dash by air for the North Pole will be launched by the Navy Department during the coming summer. Secretary Denby announced today that President Coolidge had given his specific approval to the project as "of great practical value."

The route, date and method of procedure for the trip, however, are still to be decided, a special board of naval officers, headed by Rear-Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of naval aeronautics, having been appointed by Secretary Denby to prepare a detailed plan.

The project grew out of the desire of Robert A. Bartlett, the explorer who sailed with Rear-Admiral Robert E. Peary, on the steamer Roosevelt on the expedition of 1908-1909 which saw the Stars and Stripes raised over the North Pole, again to make that journey. Mr. Bartlett proposed to Secretary Denby some months ago that the Roosevelt, now in commercial service, be repurchased and equipped for polar work.

POLAR TALK REVIVED

Discussion of the possibilities of a new polar expedition was immediately begun in the Navy Department. It was pointed out by naval aircraft experts, however, that if a new "drifting" expedition were organized by the Navy, others, perhaps under another flag, might attempt and complete a journey to the pole by air before the Roosevelt party could make half the distance. The decision to employ naval aircraft followed.

Mr. Bartlett, who is a lieutenant-commander in the naval reserve force, for the purposes of the polar expedition, has already been called to active service in that rank, and appointed to the special planning board of which he also will be recorder.

Other members of the board are Commander William R. Furlong, Lieutenant-Commander Ezra G. Allen and Lieutenant-Commander Fitzhugh Green and Gilbert Grosvenor, president of the National Geographic Society.

COOLIDGE'S PLANS ARE WITHHELD

Expected to Announce His Candidacy Within Last Two Weeks of Year

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Reports that the 1924 campaign of President Coolidge already has been mapped out with a precision that covered the entire country, elicited statements from the White House today that as yet the President had taken no final action in connection with next year's plans.

It is known, however, that formal announcement of Mr. Coolidge's decision to run for the Republican nomination probably will be made between the 12th inst. and the first of the year.

The reasons for selection of these particular two weeks in which to make the declaration are threefold, first, the President wishes to place his message to Congress on the "State of the Nation" before the people and get all possible reaction; second, he desires to wait until the Republican National Committee has met here on the 11th and 12th inste., and decided upon the time and place of the next convention, and third, in order that his name may appear in several State primaries —particularly South Dakota—an announcement must be made by January 1.

LIVES TILL HE'S 70 AND KILLS SELF

Charles Drake, Perfume Maker, Keeps Promise and Ends Life

Three score and ten and his Garden of Memories but a row of varicolored bottles on a shelf, his future but a dreary expanse of lonely days and lonelier nights in his little perfume shop amid the incense of life and love and joy—

Police last night crossed the threshold of that shop at 4315 Wall street to find him—Charles M. Drake—sitting in his ancient, rickety chair, a pistol by his side and a tiny bullet hole in his right temple.

Alone and friendless—that's the story. Not in good health, but not in poor health; not despondent yet not content, he was. Suicide to him was just the end—a quicker end—to an existence the continuation of which meant nothing.

Years ago, he used to say: "If I live to be 70 I'll kill myself." He did. Years ago, his writings show, he pondered on the cessation of the life he didn't want.

He used to say that in his bottles of liquid flowers he had all the scents of heaven—and perhaps of hell. For forty years he'd mixed them—trying even as organists seek the lost chord to find that elusive something that he knew was there and couldn't find. And when he didn't find it, his locks slowly whitened under the burden of his three score and ten, and the row of varicolored bottles on the shelf had become but a Garden of Memories, and the future was but a dreary expanse of lonely days and lonelier nights—

They noted on the police blotter:

"Charles M. Drake, 70, 4315 Wall street, a suicide."

PRINCE IN LOVE KILLS SELF

Denied Privilege of Marrying Below Station; Forlorn German Heir Ends Life Near Castle

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Young Prince Alexander of Schaumberg-Lippe killed himself today because he could not marry the girl he loved. This aristocratic young heir to one of the oldest German ruling houses was found dead with a revolver in his hand in the woods of the family castle at Mattighofen, near Salsburg, Austria, at daybreak this morning. He was 22 years of age.

Prince Alexander had fallen in love with a fascinating Viennese. His father, Prince Albrecht, a retired general of the Austrian Army, warned him that his princely rank made it impossible for him to marry a Vienna shopkeeper's daughter because in almost 1000 years not a single prince of the house of Schaumberg-Lippe had married below his station. It made no difference that the girl's father was one of the richest merchants of Vienna.

Under the weight of this tragedy the young prince slipped out of the family castle some time during the night, walked through the woods until morning and when the first rays of dawn came killed himself.

When huntsmen arrived they found him still living, but their efforts to save his life failed.

He will be buried Thursday on the castle grounds in strict privacy, even the girl being excluded from the ceremonies.

The Prince was the third son of Prince Albrecht, present head of the house of Schaumberg-Lippe, and was born January 28, 1901. He was still a student.

The house of Schaumberg-Lippe has ruled the German principality of that name for many centuries, but the family has lived in Austria. Their castle of Mattighofen, near the town of Munderfing, was one of the finest in Austria.

Broker and Aid Sentenced for Mail Use Fraud

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Fred L. Kriebel, former head of the $5,000,000 LaSalle-street brokerage house bearing his name, was sentenced to serve three years and a day in the penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., and was fined $5000 by Federal Judge Wilkerson today.

Henry Pommery, Kriebel's New York manager in the firm that maintained offices in seventeen cities, was sentenced to a year and a day in the same prison. The charge was using the mails to defraud.

In passing sentence Judge Wilkerson denounced the brand of "high finance" that he says is all too prevalent in the country. The evidence, he said, showed that the 9000 victims were, for the most part, small-salaried people investing life savings.

NEAR PHARAOH CHAMBER

Tut-Ankh-Amen Excavators Ready for Demolition of Partition Between Anteroom and Shrine

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

LUXOR (Egypt) Dec. 3.—Howard Carter, chief of the expedition engaged in uncovering the mysteries of Tut-Ankh-Amen's tomb, expects by Wednesday to finish demolition of the partition wall between the anteroom and the mortuary chamber.

The barrier of planks erected to protect the wooden canopy over the sepulcher in the latter room then will be removed prior to the delicate work of taking down the outer canopy or shrine.

At the far end of the chamber, facing the shrine, is a photographic screen and on the floor, roughly pieced together on a wooden tray are fragments of plaster from the inside of the demolished wall, garishly painted with a representation of the Pharaoh. These fragments are to be fitted together and preserved.

The tomb today was open to visitors holding permits from the Egyptian Minister of Public Works and the excavators rested from their labors. As tomorrow is the native diggers' weekly holiday, it is unlikely any work will be done before Wednesday. Therefore, the dismantling of the outer shrine can hardly begin before next week, as after the demolition of the wall a good deal of scaffolding remains to be taken down.

Mr. Caster at present is entirely in the dark as to the manner in which the shrine fits together and is experimenting with various devices to insure adequate safety of its component parts in the event of the whole fabric tending to collapse when the top or one of the sides is removed. As far as can be seen, the outer shrine consists of at least nineteen pieces. Mr. Carter plans to give each part a preservative treatment within the tomb itself before allowing its removal to the laboratory.

PALL ENVELOPS SHRINE

The second shrine is enveloped in a large linen pall sewn with golden rosettes or bosses. The question of the best manner of treating this so it can stand removal is occupying the attention of the expedition. The pall is of white linen, now discolored, and measures about seven yards square.

A complete motion-picture record of this season's operations has been started. The work of dismantling the partition wall was filmed progressively yesterday and Saturday.

DOME LEASE DEFENDED

Doheny Tells of Oil Losses

Says 100,000,000 Barrels Was Cost to the Navy of Daniels' Policy

Employment of Fall by the Pan-American is Given Denial

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Failure to proceed with development of the national petroleum reserves would have cost the Navy 225,000,000 barrels of oil through drainage and otherwise, Edward L. Doheny, veteran oil operator, today told the Senate Public Lands Committee.

Indorsing the leasing of the reserves being investigated by the committee, all of which are in the Teapot Dome field, Mr. Doheny said the "policy pursued under Secretary Daniels" resulted in the loss of at least 100,000,000 barrels. He recalled that he had warned the same committee in hearings six years ago of the danger of depletion of the reserves.

TELLS OF PLANS

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, called attention to a report of the Bureau of Mines fixing the loss to the Navy at 11,000,000 barrels, of which loss only 5,000,000 was said to have been sustained since the passage of the leasing act, and asked whether the bureau had the same information available to the witness.

"No, sir," said Mr. Doheny, "no man living has the same information on the subject that I have."

The Pan-American Petroleum Company, of which Mr. Doheny is head, already has $14,000,000 invested under its lease of reserve No. 1 in California. Mr. Doheny declared, and was planning an immediate issue of $10,500,000 in bonds to finance drilling there during the next year and expected to expend up to $50,000,000 in a few years.

"What will you make in profit on the lease?" asked Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin.

PROFITS HUGE

"We will have bad luck if we don't make $100,000,000."

Mr. Doheny explained, that this was gross profit and would comprise various profits to be made on each of the transactions between drilling and sale to the retail trade through the many years he expected the lease to run. He estimated that "half the final sale price" of oil was profit.

Under questioning by Chairman Smoot, the witness said he had contributed $75,000 to the last Democratic national campaign fund and $25,000 to the 1920 fund of the Republican party, although "a lifelong Democrat." He explained the latter contribution as having been impelled by his disapproval of a reference made by one of the candidates which seemed to reflect personally upon the other.

The money was spent by his direction for the purchase of space in New York newspapers, in which was published a refutation of the allegation, Mr. Doheny said, the entire action being voluntary on his part.

"You did this simply to show your disgust at the unfair method of attack?" asked Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska.

"Yes, sir," responded Mr. Doheny.

FALL ABSOLVED

"Then I consider it a pity that there are not more like you in our public life," continued the Nebraska Senator.

Former Secretary Albert B. Fall of the Interior Department, who conducted the leasing of the reserves, never has been in his employ, Mr. Doheny said, in reply to questions. He added that "there is as good a job for him as we gave the late Secretary Lane if he will have it."

"I've known Mr. Fall since 1884," he continued, "and I would like nothing better than an opportunity to show him that his reputation with me has not been injured."

Recently, Mr. Doheny said, he sought the advice of Mr. Fall regarding a proposal that his firm lend $10,000,000 to the Mexican government and upon that advice made the loan.

Citing instances in which delay in drilling offset wells had caused great loss to owners of oil property, Mr. Doheny said his own company suffered from more than one such experience.

TELLS CONDITIONS

Asked if the question of legality had been raised by his counsel in connection with the lease, the witness said it had been definitely approved by attorneys in whom he had explicit confidence.

The agreement with private owners to give six months' notice of offset drilling did not protect the government, he asserted, since the supervising department would be unable to prepare for operation as fast as the private company and

HOUSE DEADLOCK FORCED BY HANDFUL OF RADICALS

Election of Speaker Prevented by Insurgent Group of Seventeen; Break Hoped for Today

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Republican insurgents prevented the organization today of the Sixty-eighth Congress. Hardly had the new House and Senate convened at noon before the radical group in the House made good its threats to block the election of a Speaker.

Four ballots were taken without result, and the House adjourned until noon tomorrow when Republican organization leaders will renew their effort to re-elect Speaker Gillett.

In contrast with the storm in the House was an uneventful forty-five minutes' session of the Senate. Although an organization fight there is in the background, there was no effort to force it today, and there were indications that it would be deferred at least until after President Colidge has delivered his first annual message to Congress.

CANNOT FUNCTION

The President cannot deliver his message, however, until the House is organized, nor can the new Congress function. Some leaders said that even the Senate would be unable to transact any business other then that of receiving and acting upon nominations and treaties which is solely a Senate function.

While leaders of both the Republican organizations and the insurgents declared immediately after the House that the fight would go on tomorrow, there were signs that a break might come before another overnight adjournment. The radical bloc met tonight to canvass the situation and determine their further course.

Representative Longworth, the majority leader, declared that there would be no compromise with the insurgents as a group, but that organization leaders would treat with the individual members just the same as with any others of their party.

FIGHT ON RULES

Representative Nelson of Wisconsin, chairman of the radical bloc, emphasized that the fight of his organization was not against Speaker Gillett as an individual, but was being waged solely with the view to forcing the "old guard" leaders to give the House an opportunity to amend its rules when a vote comes on their adoption which will be as soon as the Speaker and other officers are elected.

While declaring that the Democrats in the House could give solid support to Representative Garrett of Tennessee for Speaker, as they did on the four ballots today, some leaders of the minority party said that if the Republican insurgents were seeking only to have the House given an opportunity to vote on amendments to the rules, they would have no difficulty in accomplishing their purpose. The Democrats, these leaders said, also desired changes in the rules and today's balloting showed that their votes, added to those of the radicals, constituted a majority.

Throughout the balloting for Speaker today, the Republican insurgents cast seventeen votes for Cooper of Wisconsin, one of the leaders of their movement. This number of itself constitutes the balance of power, both on organization and legislation, but they contended that in addition they could command several of the five who steadily voted for Madden of Illinois, chairman of the Appropriations Committee.

RESULT OF BALLOTS

On the first ballot Gillett received 198 votes—ten short of a majority—and Garrett, 195.

On the second ballot, Gillett's total was 195, or eleven less than a majority and Garrett's was 193.

The third ballot saw Garrett forge ahead with 196 votes to 195 for Gillett. Announcement of this vote was greeted with wild cheers from the minority side.

The pendulum swung back to Gillett on the fourth and final ballot. He received 197 votes, elev-

KING VIEWS FLOOD RUIN

Italy's Sovereign Promises Aid

Repair of Damage Wrought by Bursting of Dike is Ordered

Two Hundred of 600 Dead Recovered From Mud in Stricken Area

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

BERGAMO (Italy) Dec. 3.—King Victor Emmanuel is at the scene of the flood which laid waste the valleys for many miles around Bergamo when the great dike guarding Gleno Lake broke. Despite the rain and cold and terrible conditions of the terrain, the King insisted upon making as complete investigation as possible. He was accompanied by Deputies Caranzza, Bonardi and Farinacci. He promised ample assistance to repair the vast losses, which are estimated at 200,000,000 lire.

The King visited as far as he was able the ruined villages, and talked with some of the injured in the hospitals. Stopping where the village of Corna once stood, the King was surrounded by peasants who gave him a hearty welcome, their cries of "Viva" being in strange contrast to the desolation of the scene.

The list of dead numbers more than 600, according to latest available figures.

At Coler, which forms part of Dezzo, there are only five survivors out of 175 inhabitants. At Corna 150 perished; at Dezzo, 219; at Bueggio, 14; at another small village seven, while the various electric stations lost sixty men.

Already 200 dead have been taken from the mud which the flood left in its wake.

Great activity prevailed throughout the valley today, military camions, automobiles, carriages and every kind of conveyance being used to transport clothing, food and tents for the survivors.

A far-reaching search is being made for those who perished, for the submerged valley is fifteen miles in extent, and the force of the waters was so powerful even parts of the dam itself were carried down to the village of Lovere, at the head of Lake Iseo. The soldiers have built barracks along the valley, and in this way many of the refugees, who were forced to sleep out of doors last night, have been taken care of.

The Royal Engineers and others are constructing wooden huts for the thousands of homeless.

MOVEMENT INDORSED

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Prof. C. V. Gilliland, of the University of Southern California, says, in a letter to Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of Near East Relief, indorsing International Golden Rule Sunday: "We need to remember that our blessings place upon us a mighty responsibility to help those overseas who are in want."

FORD LEADER ORDERED OUT

Farmer-Labor Conference at Des Moines, Iowa, Resents Effort to Enlist Support

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

DES MOINES (Iowa) Dec. 3.—A movement to enlist Iowa farmers and organized labor in the movement to nominate Henry Ford for the Presidency was rebuked here today when Francis G. Cutler of Boone, Iowa, secretary-treasurer of the National Ford-for-President Club, was ordered out of a Farmer-Labor conference at which he attempted to present a plea for support of Ford.

Mr. Cutler had called a meeting of Iowa Ford-for-President boosters for today, but when he arrived he found only a few persons present, so after a conference with them, he sought audience with the co-operative legislative committee of Iowa, a number of representatives of organized labor and the Iowa Farmers' Union which was in session to consider matters incidental to its legislative interests.

NAME DELEGATES

He asked for, and said he had obtained permission to address the committee in behalf of the Ford-for-President movement, but when he sought the floor of the committee meeting, Chairman J. A. Stedman of Hawardin, Iowa, suggested that the committee was not interested in Mr. Ford's candidacy.

Mr. Cutler sought to proceed with the talk, but several delegates protested and when President J. C. Lewis of the Iowa Federation of Labor, offered a resolution, ordering Mr. Cutler from the meeting, it passed by a large majority.

The conference called by Mr. Cutler to discuss a movement in Mr. Ford's behalf was summoned primarily to select delegates, Mr. Cutler said, to a national meeting at Detroit, on the 12th inst., at which a national independent progressive party is to be formed, and Mr. Ford nominated as its Presidential candidate.

W. W. Paul of Osceola and Mr. Cutler were selected as two of the five delegates which will attend from Iowa, and Mr. Cutler was empowered to name the others.

PIERRE (S. D.) Dec. 3.—South Dakota's political battle lines for the State proposal meetings tomorrow were shattered tonight by an eleventh-hour bomb shell from the Anti-Saloon League branding the Ford-for President movement as a "smoke screen" masking a concerted effort of at least four national antiprohibition organizations to capture delegates to the Democratic national convention.

A statement by the Anti-Saloon League's State superintendent, H. E. Dawes of Mitchell, circulated among the proposal men of all parties tonight, characterized the Ford boom as a "blind" through which "the great wet organizations of the country are busy try-an short of the necessary majority, while Garrett polled 194.

Victor Berger of Wisconsin, the only Socialist in Congress, took no part in the balloting, announcing on each roll call that he voted "present."

Madden cast his vote each time for Gillett, who voted "present" on the first ballot, but did not vote thereafter.

Garrett and Cooper consistently voted "present."

LINE-UP OF RADICALS

The seventeen who supported Cooper were Beck, Browne, Frear, Lampert, Nelson, Peavey, Schafer, and Voight, all of Wisconsin; Clague, Davis, Keller and Knutson, Republicans of Minnesota; Kvale, Independent, Minnesota; Wefald, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota; La Guardia, Republican, New York, and Sinclair, Republican, North Dakota.

The five supporting Madden were King, Michaelson and Reid, Illinois, and James and Woodruff, Michigan, all Republicans.

On one ballot Representative Yates, Republican, Illinois, cast a complimentary vote for his colleague, Woodruff is secretary of the radical bloc.

A roll call by States at the outset of the House session disclosed that there were present 418 of the 435 members. Of these 220 were Republicans, 195 Democrats and three scattered. One of the twelve Democrats absent on the first roll call appeared later and his vote enabled Garrett to take the lead on the third ballot.

VOTING IS SLOW

The voting in the House was unusually slow, forty-five minutes being required for each ballot. There was some delay between votes as Clerk William Tyler Page, who called the House to order and presided, sought to restore sufficient order to enable the tellers to hear responses from members.

There was more than the usual confusion and milling on the floor as many of the members greeted each other for the first time since last March 4. Galleries were crowded long before the fight over the Speakership began.

Although there was little prospect of a parliamentary battle in the Senate the galleries there also were crowded with many unable to gain admittance. Mrs. Coolidge, wife of the President, with a party of friends, occupied the Presidential seats. She returned to the White House immediately after adjournment and just as the contest in the House was getting under way.

SENATORS SWORN IN

Senator Cummins of Iowa, President pro tem, called the Senate to order at the stroke of 12 o'clock. After a prayer by the chaplain the newly elected Senators and those returned for another term took the oath of office which was administered by Senator Cummins. This ceremony completed, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, the Republican leader, offered and the Senate adopted resolutions providing for the appointment of a joint committee of the House and Senate to notify the President that Congress was in session and for formal notification to the House that the Senate was ready to proceed to business.

Resolutions on the deaths of Senator Nelson of Minnesota, Dillingham of Vermont and Nicholson of Colorado then were adopted and the Senate adjourned out of respect for their memory. It will meet again at noon tomorrow.

Only four Senators failed to attend the opening session. They were La Follette of Wisconsin, the recognized leader of the radical group in Congress, who is ill at his home here; Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, and Sterling and Norbeck, Republicans, South Dakota.

ROBINSON MINORITY CHIEF

Before the Senate session the Democrats in caucus perfected their organization with the election of Senator Robinson of Arkansas as chairman of the caucus and party leader, vice Senator Underwood of Alabama. Senator Walsh of Montana was re-elected vice chairman; Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, whip, and Senator King of Utah, secretary. These candidates were chosen for Senate offices: President pro tem, Senator Pittman of Nevada; secretary, Edwin A. Halsey of Virginia; sergeant-at-arms, John J. Burns of New York.

The situation developed today in the House by the speakership row has two precedents.

The first was in the Thirty-sixth Congress, the House taking fifty-four ballots between December 5, 1859, and February 1, 1860, before the deadlock was broken.

The second was in the fifty-second Congress, which convened in 1891. The House failed to organize on the first day, but elected a Speaker on the second day of its session.

Probably the most spectacular fight ever waged in the House was that in 1910, which resulted in the shearing of many powers from Speaker Cannon.

IS BRIDE WORTH $5000 IN CASH?

Chicago Chinaman Does Not Think So and Ceremony Proves Flivver

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CEDAR RAPIDS (Iowa) Dec. 3.—Is a bride worth $5000? Harry Yee, son of a Chicago Chinese wholesale druggist, does not think so. When Yee married Naomi Bazin last Friday he promised her $5000 immediately after the ceremony, she says. It wasn't forthcoming, so she deserted him an hour later. Detectives found her. Yesterday she told her story. She did not want to marry the Chinese, she said, but she wanted the $5000. She admitted Yee had given her presents and money.

DOME LEASES ARE DEFENDED

so would lose the benefit of being first into "oil sand."

Mr. Doheny described at length the operation of drilling in California fields, which, he said, was unlike most other oil territories, because of loose sand. He declared there are hundreds of millions of acres in that State which once contained oil, but now are dry because "the sand tilted up and let the gas out."

"From this vast store of solidified oil," he added, "in my opinion, will come our future supply of fuel oil. The process for recovering it has already been developed and proven."

STORES ALL GAS

Mr. Doheny told the committee that his company "was not selling a drop of gasoline, and will not so long as present prices hold." Plans for storing the surplus are under consideration, he said.

Senator Walsh developed that the preferential right obtained by the Pan-American over all of reserve No. 1, had not been included in the proposals advertised by the Navy Department, but was negotiated through an alternative bid in consideration of a reduction in the bid of $237,000 by the Doheny interests.

This reduction and savings refunded under his contract brought the total savings to the government to more than a million dollars, when compared with the cost through regular contract, the witness contended.

Read-Admiral J. K. Robison, chief of engineering in the Navy Department, was recalled briefly and questioned regarding the transfer from Washington of several officers who had been in charge of oil reserves. He denied that their removal to other posts had been influenced by their attitude toward the proposed leases, adding that in every case these men had gone to more responsible positions, either on their own application, or by reason of regulations limiting shore duty.

Admiral Robison said the cost of proposed storage facilities, as contemplated in the lease of reserve No. 3, in Wyoming, to the Sinclair interests, varied in different localities, but "will not be far from fifty fifty, that is, one barrel of oil in payment for one in storage." He said the plant at Newport, R. I., to care for 1,500,000 barrels was the next on the Navy's program, the cost being estimated at $1 per barrel of stored oil.

MORRIE SCHLAIFER STOPS "DAGO JOE"

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

ST. PAUL, Dec. 3.—The scheduled ten-round bout here tonight between Morrie Schlaifer of Omaha and "Dago Joe" Gans of St. Paul ended in the third round when the latter's seconds threw in the towel. Gans was knocked down four times in the first round, went to one knee in the second without being struck, and took a count in the third after which the defeat signal came from his corner. Schlaifer weighed 146 and the local boy 147.

Joe Burch, Milwaukee lightweight, had the advantage over Sammy Leonard of Minneapolis, in their six-round fracas.

BILLS FLUTTER IN ON CONGRESS

Hundreds Are Dumped Into Legislative Hopper

Baker of California Bobs Up With Fifty-three

Proposed Laws Run Gamut of All Subjects

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The deadlock in the House over the Speakership did not deter members, both old and new from dumping hundreds of bills today into the legislative hopper. The measures must remain there, however, until the House is organized, and their reference to committees is possible.

A number of the bills embodied new ideals in legislation, but a majority were a revival of proposals which failed to receive attention in the last Congress.

In the latter class were the anti-lynching bill of Representative Dyer, Republican, Missouri; the "blue sky" bill of Representative Dennison, Republican, Illinois, and various proposals for a soldiers' bonus, including that of Representative Hill, Republican, Maryland, to finance the payment with a tax on light wines and beer.

Representative Treadway, Republican, Massachusetts, offered a measure for the establishment in the Interstate Commerce Commission of an Anthracite Bureau at which all persons engaged in the industry would be required to register, and where authority over shipments of cars and quality of anthracite entering into interstate commerce would rest.

Several bills dealing with immigration were tossed into the hopper. Chief among these was that of Chairman Johnson of the Immigration Committee, for a tightening of restrictions. He also proposed that aliens convicted of violating the narcotics and prohibition laws be deported.

Representative Griffin, Democrat, New York, proposed admission of all aliens now detained at American ports because of the exhaustion of their nation's quotas, providing they are otherwise eligible.

Representative Tincher, Republican, Kansas, put in a bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board.

Representative Raker, Democrat, California, presented the largest number of bills of any one member—fifty-three.

DARK ROOM TO SOOTHE SONGSTERS

Hundreds of Canaries Are Guarded From Tiring Out Before Warble Contest

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Visitors venturing on the mezzanine floor of the Hotel Sherman were warned today to avoid noise and under no circumstances to open a particular door, back of which, in utter darkness, were assembled hundreds of roller canaries, here for a great song contest.

One visitor inadvertently opened the door before an attendant could prevent the action, disclosing the birds in gorgeous mahogany cages on the floor, on tables, on the railings and the chandeliers. As soon as the light was admitted and the birds heard human voices, they began to sing. The door was closed at once and the singing ceased.

It was explained that the owner of the birds want the birds kept quiet until the contest, otherwise they would be hoarse or tired out and would not do their best. There are hollow rollers, roller, bass, giuke, gufsug and other varieties of songsters. From England are birds trained to sing actual tunes and from Holland come birds, bull finches chiefly, that specialize in jazz. The contest opens tomorrow and the winner takes down a $1000 cup.

MARX DODGES FIRST CRISIS

New German Cabinet Decides to Proceed with Program Without Asking Reichstag's Consent

BY JOHN CLAYTON

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (1:20 a.m.)—Chancellor Wilhelm Marx decided at midnight not to present his enabling act to the Reichstag today for approval.

He thus apparently avoids the necessity of dissolving the Reichstag, as he would have been forced to do, with President Ebert's consent, if the Reichstag refused to approve of this act, which would permit the Cabinet to govern without parliamentary sanction.

This decision by Chancellor Marx followed a refusal of the Nationalist leader, Herr Hergt, and the Socialist leader, Herr Mueller, to give their support to the bill before the party meetings this morning.

The Cabinet has decided to fall back upon Paragraph 48 of the Weimar constitution, which permits the President full freedom of action in an emergency. The financial program of the Cabinet will be carried out under this paragraph.

COUNTRY'S ONLY HOPE

Herr Ebert realizes that in the new financial action proposed by the Marx-Stresemann Cabinet is Germany's only hope to survive the winter and he is backing his ministers to the fullest extent of his constitutional powers.

Against him are lined up the Socialists, who are fighting the ten-hour day tooth and nail and probably the Nationalists, whose members will be hit hard by the new taxes.

Both the Socialists and the Nationalists are anxious to see the budget balanced, but neither are willing to make sacrifices toward this end.

The prospective financial reform with an attempt to balance the budget has already brought will be founded a recommendation as to whether the last lap of the journey shall be undertaken in airplanes equipped with skits for landing on the ice, or with the great Navy dirigible Shenandoah.

Naval officials feel that the Shenandoah in many ways would be the most desirable ship for the dash, particularly because the airship can hover over the Arctic regions while motion-picture records are made, or scientific data otherwise obtained.

There is no disposition, however, to risk the Shenandoah unless there is every reasonable prospect that she can successfully accomplish the mission.

TO EXPLORE VICINITY

The announcement by the Navy Department as to the instructions given to Admiral Moffett's board said that the purpose of the study would be "to devise plans for an extensive exploration over unknown regions adjacent to the Pole."

"When the expedition shall sail," the announcement continued, "of which it shall consist, and what its plans will be, are not at present known.

"Those topics, amongt many others, will be the subject of investigation by the board."

The precept of the board under which it was created merely directs it to prepare a detailed plan and "to convene the board as soon as practicable."

In writing Secretary Denby under date of November 20, approving the project, President Coolidge expressed the belief that it would be "carried through with the thoroughness and efficiency which mark every project which the Navy undertakes."

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

The President's letter follows:

"I desire to confirm by this letter the verbal authorization which I have already given you to proceed with the organization of a naval Arctic expedition, which will start in the coming year. The record of the Army and Navy in this line of endeavor is one of which the American people will always be proud, for it is marked by a spirit of heroism and devotion which is unexcelled in the history of exploration.

"As it fell to the Navy to achieve the final goal, through the efforts of Admiral Peary, it is eminently fitting that they Navy should continue the work, and I believe that the expedition which you have in view will be of great practical value and will be carried through with that thoroughness and efficiency which mark every project the Navy undertakes."

empire is idle, defamatory rubbish."

LADY ASTOR HECKLED

Lady Astor's campaign at Plymouth is daily growing more bitter; her meetings are characterized by constant noisy interruptions from the Laborites, who are seeking to make capital out of her American nationality.

At her meeting today she was greeted with shouts of "go back to America; we don't want you."

Lady Astor promptly retorted:

"No, I'm going back to Westminster; you've got to have me whether you want me or not."

The Prime Minister delivered his last important speech of the campaign at Liverpool tonight to a big assembly. He declared: "I have appealed to the country for a mandate and if I get it I shall exercise it to the full."

SHIPS THREATENED

He reproached the Liberal leaders for maintaining complete silence on the question of the policy of discrimination against British ships, "which is threatened from all over the world" and asserted that the British ideal for shipping "was equality of opportunity in all parts of the world."

Continuing, Mr. Baldwin said: "We are told that protection will ruin our industries but how is it that the United States has exploited her immense natural resources during generations of protection, until today she sustains a population of over 100,000,000 with the highest standard of life achieved in the world?

"I want to treat the foreigner as he treats us, until he learns to treat us a little better."

ing to get wet delegations to the Democratic national convention."

The movement has neither Ford consent, nor Ford support, Dawes declared, and is sponsored in various States which have primary laws, by men who "are notorious for their wet advocacy."

Denial of the charges was made by James F. Houlihan of Watertown, president of the South Dakota Ford-for President Club, but the political effect of the statement nevertheless was discussed everywhere in the preconvention gatherings.

Coolidge Remits Charles Craig's Jail Sentence

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Without condoning the offense, President Coolidge today remitted the sixty-day sentence imposed on Charles L. Craig, Comptroller of New York City by Federal Judge Mayer for contempt of court.

The Chief Executive acted in the case—one of the most widely discussed contempt cases in recent years—upon receipt of a report from Atty.-Gen. Daugherty with reference to an application for pardon for Craig made by Senator Copeland of New York and by members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the city of New York.

UTAH OFFICIALS TO STUDY ROAD

Party Leaves to Inspect Arrowhead Trail

Gov. Maybe on Trip Through Three States

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SALT LAKE, Dec. 3.—Gov. Charles R. Mabey, Preston G. Peterson, chairman of the State Road Commission, and Randall Jones, representing the Union Pacific Railroad, left today for a two-weeks' trip through Utah, Nevada and California. The purpose of the visit is to look over the road situation on the Arrowhead Trail and to see if the highway can be improved in Southern Utah and through Nevada, to connect with the system of highways in California.

At Las Vegas, Nev., they will be met by representatives of the Southern California Auto Association and will inspect a new route from Las Vegas to San Bernardino which will save about sixty miles in travel. The route is west of the one now used via Searchlight.

Meetings have been arranged for at the various towns and cities through which the party will pass. It is a well-known fact that Washington county, Utah, is about at the end of the string in the construction of highways and that the county must have help from elsewhere to construct roads. In that Northern California has aided in the proposed construction of the highway between the Toole county line and Wendover, it is believed that Southern California might aid in bettering the road through Southern Utah and through Southern Nevada and it is for this purpose, it is said, that the trip is made.

From Los Angeles the party will return by train, going to San Francisco, where there are details to be looked after concerning the Wendover road. It is the intention of the Governor to present the necessity to both States and the Coast State of improving Southern Utah roads, particularly past the Iron county line. Several routes from the Utah State line into San Bernardino county will be inspected. A series of conferences is planned for Los Angeles.

ENDS CHANCES OF COLLISIONS

New Safety Device Stops Speeding Trains

Proved Reliable in Tests by Rock Island

Installation is Begun on Lines of Company

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—A new safety device that will stop automatically a speeding train against which a block has been set, even though the engineer may not be in the cab, was announced today by officials of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway Company which has installed the device on its double track main line between Chicago and Rock Island, Ill.

The appliance, known as the Regan device, railroad officials declared, makes the operation of trains 100 per cent safe from danger of collision.

The device is operated in conjunction with the semaphore block signals, an electric third rail about eighty feet long being located at each electric block signal. This rail just outside the righthand rail of the track, is connected with the block signal. When the red light is set against a train the rail is in such a position that a "shoe" on the tender of the locomotive comes in contact with the third rail, the "shoe" being connected with the airbrake system which is set automatically when contact is made, to bring the train to a full stop or such speed as the signals indicate.

Official tests were made a few days ago and the engineer of the test train was ordered to try to beat the signal. He opened his throttle and charged at forty-five miles an hour in the face of a danger signal but the train was stopped.

MOVEMENT STARTED FOR LA FOLLETTE

SOUTH DAKOTANS OPEN CAMPAIGN TO FIGHT COOLIDGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PIERRE (S. D.) Dec. 3. — A move to obtain the majority Presidential indorsement of the Republican State proposal convention for Senator Robert M. La Follette of Wisconsin was inaugurated here today by a group of Progressive Republicans.

A meeting of La Follette supporters was called to consider plans for the convention fight against the supporters of Senator Hiram W. Johnson and President Coolidge.

While the strength of the La Follette Republicans has not been measured, there are many within the G.O.P. ranks who admit that the Wisconsin Senator's bloc may influence the selections for the State ticket.

The chief center of interest in the Democratic convention maneuvering is the determined efforts of elements in both parties to effect fusion between the Democrats and the Farmer Laborites. The Democrats have declared that all plans for joint action must be based on retention of W. G. McAdoo for the Presidential indorsement.

The three party conventions will meet tomorrow morning.

ONE-EIGHTH OF CROPS SOLD CO-OPERATIVELY

AGRICULTURE OFFICIAL SAYS AGENCIES HAVE SPRUNG UP IN SHORT TIME

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—More than $1,000,000,000 worth of farm crops, or at least one-eighth of the crops marketed in the United States, are sold co-operatively, L. S. Tenney, assistant chief, United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics, Washington, D. C., today told the National Association of State Marketing Officials as it opened its fifth annual meeting here.

Minnesota leads in co-operative marketing, Mr. Tenney added, and 70 per cent of the co-operative farmers' marketing organizations are in twelve North Central States. He added that although the movement began 100 years ago, all but 11 per cent of the existing farmers' co-operative agencies have sprung up within twenty-five years. He estimated that probably 10,000 are now in operation as compared with 5400 in 1915.

MINERS ACCUSE ROADS IN WEST

Declare Land Grabs Halt Ore Industry

Cases Are Cited at Hearing Before Committee

Blanket Mineral Patents Said to Fetter Work

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 3.—A charge that the railroad corporations of the West were one of the agencies instrumental in placing further obstacles in the way of mine owners and operators which, they assert, is so fettering the industry that it is impossible to resume normal production of precious mineral, was made today at the open hearing being conducted here for the Senate Committee on Mines and Mining by Fletcher Hamilton, former State mineralogist.

In explanation of the charge, several mining men declared that railroad interference was due to the fact that the companies had recently adopted a policy of obtaining blanket mineral patents on all lands owned by them on the Pacific Coast.

Edward S. Van Dyck, Sacramento mine operator, stated that his first experience with railroad interference occurred recently in the development of a mine in Nevada.

CLAIM SEWED UP

A claim had been investigated that covered a number of sections of ground. A great deal of development work had been completed and the mine was found to contain profitable ore. When a patent was applied for, it was found that a railroad owned a certain portion of the claim and had included the parcel of land in a blanket claim which covered other properties.

As a consequence, Van Dyck's company, in order to go ahead with its mining work, must carry the case through the courts before it will be permitted to remove the ore from the railroad's land, Van Dyck said.

As Van Dyck concluded his remarks, Adolph Sutro, representing the Dominion Mines Corporation of San Francisco, cited a similar instance in which his organization, after developing a project in Siskiyou county, found that he work had been done on railroad land.

It was necessary to threaten a court fight, before an amicable price was determined for the land between officials of the mining company and the railroad, he said.

CITES SEVERAL CASES

G. McN. Ross, an engineer of Stockton, also related instances of what he said was interference in mine development on the part of railroads. He cited several cases and laid particular stress upon the fact that the development of the Tungsten fields in Nevada was practically abandoned during the war period owing to the fact that the railroads had applied for mineral patents on their grants.

There were many other features of the mining industry that were discussed in detail during the sessions which were held in the morning and afternoon.

Practically every speaker called attention to the increased costs in labor and operations. It was generally agreed that labor costs of the present day exceed those of the prewar periods by 50 per cent, and that present workmanship is far more inefficient now than it was before the war.

Typhoid Cases in Chicago on Increase Again

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Thirteen more cases of typhoid fever were reported to the Health Department in the twenty-four hours ending at 9 a.m. Nine were east of Halsted street and between Twenty-ninth and Seventy-ninth streets where typhoid has been frequent for two weeks.

An appeal to residents of this district to submit themselves to inoculation by typhoid vaccine was made today by eminent experts called in by the health commissioner.

While today's report says it has not been established that water from the Sixty-eighth street pumping station is contaminated, it is considered extremely likely that it is and residents are warned to boil drinking water.

Santa Fe Official Speaker at Albuquerque

Red Activity at Harbor Here Described

Meeting Part of Education Plan of Company

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.) Dec. 3. The I.W.W. in California have joined forces with those agitating the proposition of taking the railroads out of the hands of their owners, declared W. K. Etter of Los Angeles, acting general manager of the Santa Fe railroad there, in an address before a conference of more than 100 officials of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road here today.

Mr. Etter said that the radicals hold a meeting each week at Los Angeles Harbor, where they sing their songs, bow to the red flag, and refuse to recognize the Stars and Stripes. There are not many among the railroad workers, he said, as loyal employees help to keep them weeded out.

TO MEET HERE

The conference, one of a series which will end in Los Angeles on the 10th inst., was in charge of S. T. Bledsoe, general attorney, and Gardiner Lathrop, general solicitor, both of Chicago. Plans were discussed dealing with public relations and measures for combatting what the officials said were vicious legislation and attacks without suitable foundation upon transportation systems.

Solicitor Lathrop declared that employees can accomplish much by co-operating with officials in disabusing the public mind of erroneous notions. He pointed to the fact that compensation paid Santa Fe employees now is 25 per cent higher than that paid government employees, based upon averages in its several departments.

FIGURES QUOTED

Atty. Bledsoe said freight rates had increased only 45 per cent between 1915 and 1922, and passenger rates 60 per cent, whereas during the same period operating expenses had advanced 119 per cent, taxes 190 per cent, and compensation paid employees from $40,800,000 in 1915 to $96,700,000 in 1922, the increase for labor alone being in excess of $55,000,000.

The officials left tonight on a special train for another conference in Phoenix, on Wednesday, and will continue on to Los Angeles for a meeting next Monday.

IMPORTANT VATICAN CONCLAVE PROBABLE

COUNCIL IN ROME BROKEN OFF IN 1870 MAY BE RESUMED

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ROME, Dec. 3.—It is semiofficially announced in Vatican circles that the council, which was interrupted in 1870 when Italian troops took Rome, will be resumed in 1927 with the participation of 2000 priests from all over the world. It is said that a definite announcement will take place on the 20th inst. when the consistory opens.

The council is spoken of as promising to be one of the most important events in the history of the church. Many other important subjects will be discussed. It is expected also that the Rome question will be solved satisfactorily at that time.

Another important matter to come up will be suggestions for an effort to bring about unification of all Christian religions. Some affirm that many non-Catholic prelates of the various Christian churches will be invited to participate and unofficially press their views on the latter subject.

FRUIT DROPS IN CHICAGO FIGHT

Citrus Prices Down 50 to 75 Cents a Box

Rival Auction Concerns in Midst of War

Independents and Combine Contest for Control

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—With unprecedented crops of Florida and California oranges, lemons, grapefruit and grapes ready for the market, prices on these commodities dropped from 50 to 75 cents a box today as rival Chicago fruit-auction companies opened a battle for supremacy which, it is predicted, will affect the fruit industry of the entire country.

The battle is between the Chicago Fruit Auction Company, representative of a small group of powerful South Water-street commission merchants, and the Independent Fruit and Produce Auction Company, just organized and representative of some 200 to 300 small shippers, buyers and commission men.

Business was about equally divided today, the first day of the fight, between the two concerns; the former sold sixty-seven cars, the latter sixty-one. The normal day is about 100 cars.

INCREASE IN SALES

A. H. Welch of Welch & Welch, 2 West South Water street, said the drop in prices came from the increased sale and that it would continue in effect because of the increase of distribution afforded by having two auction companies operating instead of one. John Denny of Denny & Co., head of the group of big merchants represented by the Chicago Fruit Auction Company, denied this.

"In the first place," Mr. Denny said, "we have an unusually big crop of everything this year. In the second place, prices always drop right after a holiday."

DENIES FRUIT WAR

Frank Cuneo, another one of the heads of the consolidated company, denied there is a "fruit war" in progress.

"There is nothing to it," he said. "If they want to do business let them. We control 90 per cent of the output and we have the pick of the goods to sell. Supply and demand will govern prices. If prices were too low in Chicago the shippers would naturally ship to anyone of a dozen other cities where they could get their prices."

But Mr. Welch still insisted that he formation of the new company was the result of the attempt by "the big fellows" to control the market and to "tie up the railroad terminals."

WHISKY FAKE EXPOSED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Distilled hair tonic, to which has been added water, alum, rosin, creosote, a dash of bourbon extract, and caramel sweetening, the latter to kill the taste of medicaments, is selling in Chicago as pedigreed Scotch whisky under faked labels, according to an expose of the illicit liquor traffic appearing in the Chicago Tribune.

RUM ROUTES BLOCKED BY DRY AGENTS

New Jersey Coast Roads Under Close Observation During Week-End

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The greatest land blockade against rum-runners since prohibition began held bootleggers of rum row off Highlands, N. J., at a standstill today at a time when they had expected a tremendous holiday traffic in illicit liquor.

More than 300 agents of the Department of Justice, coast guards and New Jersey State police guarded every road leading from Atlantic Highlands over the week-end, and all trucks and automobiles were carefully scanned.

Those to whom the slightest suspicion attached were halted, the drivers were questioned and the cars searched for liquor.

As the blockade grew tighter today many of the seagoing rum-runners turned from the Jersey coast landing operations in despair and shifted to the Long Island shore.

Prospective buyers, telephoning to landing agents here over the week-end with Christmas orders, were warned by local bootleggers not to attempt purchases at present. They were also informed that deliveries at this time were impossible due to the airtight blockade.

At the same time it was learned that the landing forces of the bootleg trade were so desperate that stabbings and shootings along rum row were becoming more and more frequent as the blockade tightened.

MOTHER ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON CHILDREN

SHERIFF WHO ARRESTS HER SAYS SHE LABORED UNDER DELUSION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NAPA, Dec. 3.—Charles Smith, 9 years of age, and his brother, James, 3, were brought to the county infirmary today from Pope Valley, twenty-five miles north of here, suffering from ax and knife wounds said by Sheriff Joseph B. Harris to have been inflicted by their mother, Mrs. Samuel Smith, wife of a trapper. Mrs. Smith was also treated at the hospital for several minor knife wounds. Smith is in Mendocino county.

Charles Smith is not expected to live, his skull having been crushed in by the ax. Mrs. Smith is being held.

Mrs. Smith admitted the attack on her children and herself after denying for several hours that she was responsible, Sheriff Harris said. She was laboring under the hallucination that the children were being tortured in their sleep by some unknown force, he said, and resolved to end their lives.

The Smith family live in a wild section of the valley and it was several hours before the Sheriff reached the scene. He said that after attacking the children with ax and knife and slashing herself, Mrs. Smith rushed from the place and told neighbors that the family had been attacked by a stranger.

TRAIN DISPATCHERS' PAY GIVEN BOOST

SANTA FE RECOGNIZES MEN WHO LEAVE THE ASSOCIATION

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The Santa Fe system has given its dispatchers, who recently voted to revoke the authority of the American Train Dispatchers' Association to represent them, a monthly increase of $14.80, according to J. G. Luhrson, president of the association. The management has also re-established a two weeks' vacation with pay and sick leave with pay, he informed the United States Railroad Labor Board in a letter received today.

He requested the board to take the increase and vacations with pay into consideration in deciding a pending dispute concerning wages and working conditions of Santa Fe dispatchers.

The United States Railroad Labor Board in a decision made public today denied the request of the American Train Dispatchers' Association that a rule governing the allowance of vacations be incorporated in the schedule of rules governing conditions.

BILL ASKS REDUCED NEWSPAPER POSTAGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Representative Kelly, Republican, Pennsylvania, introduced a bill today to reduce postal rates on newspapers and periodicals. The measure would repeal the last two increases made under the war revenue law of 1917.

Mr. Kelly said that "with practically no exception war taxes have been removed from all other industries" and that it was "highly discriminatory to make publishers pay the present exorbitant postal rates which are unjust and unfair to both publisher and subscriber.

FRUIT SHIPPERS GIVEN HEARING

Ask Lower Rate to Eastern Terminal Points

Poor Market Advanced as Cause of Plea

Say Railroads' Six Per Cent Beats Their Profit

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3.—When California deciduous fruit growers were receiving high prices for their crops in 1920 they did not object to sharing their prosperity with the railroads, but today with the fruit market at a low ebb, and the growers facing insolvency in some cases, they are compelled to ask for a reduction in rail rates on deciduous fruits, H. M. Remington, general manager of the California Growers and Shippers Protective League testified today before an Interstate Commerce hearing here.

The action in which the Southern Pacific Company is the principal defendant, was brought by California shippers seeking a reduction in the rate from $1.73 to $1.44 per hundred from California to eastern terminal points.

"Six per cent is a fair return on investment for the railroads," Mr. Remington said. "It is a better return than most growers receive."

The hearing developed that California grape growers consider all grapes subject to the fermentation process which causes them to become wine.

Asked whether he knew of any service the railroads were not performing now, in carrying fruit crops to market, which they performed in 1920 for the same rate when prices were obtaining, Mr. Remington said:

"I think the railroads are rendering about the same service."

"Then you didn't read Mr. McAdoo's statement made in San Francisco yesterday in which he said the railroads were returning to their old efficiency?"

"I did not," said the witness, "because I do not rely much on what Mr. McAdoo says about railroads."

Comptroller of New York Given Pardon

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—President Coolidge today, acting on the recommendation of Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, granted executive clemency to Comptroller Charles L. Craig, New York City, who recently was given a sixty-day sentence for contempt of court by Federal Judge Mayer.

The President, in a statement following the announcement of Craig's pardon, castigated the comptroller for his criticism of the Federal courts and explains that sentence was remitted for the single reason that New York's vast financial affairs might suffer through the absence of Craig from his post.

SIX PRISONERS PRY OUT OF COUNTY JAIL

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

EUGENE (Or.) Dec. 3.—Six prisoners escaped from the County Jail here some time during the night by using an iron plate wrenched from the jail sink to pry loose enough bricks from the wall to make a space for a man to crawl through. HUSKIES ACCEPT INVITATION FOR NEW YEAR'S DAY GAME WITH NAVY

COACH BAGSHAW'S MEN VOTE TO PLAY MIDDIES

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SEATTLE, Dec. 3.—The University of Washington football team will meet the United States Naval Academy eleven at Pasadena New Year's Day. Ed Kuhn, captain-elect of the 1924 varsity, made the announcement tonight, following a meeting of the players this afternoon, when one ballot showed the Huskies overwhelmingly in favor of the game. The invitation was extended by the Tournament of Roses Association.

Athletic authorities of the university sent telegrams from the campus office tonight to Commander Byron McCandless, faculty director of athletics at the Naval Academy; Leslie Henry, chairman of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses committee, and Dr. Henry Suzzalo, president of the local institution, telegraphed Admiral Henry D. Wilson, of the Naval Academy, of the Purple and Gold's pleasure over the prospect of meeting the Middies New Year's Day.

CONFER SATURDAY

It is expected that Commander McCandless will confer with Graduate Manager Meisnest and Coach Enoch Bagshaw at Berkeley Saturday when Mr. Henry will also be present to complete negotiations for the game. The telegram to Mr. Henry informed him of Washington's acceptance of the invitation to meet the eastern men.

Tonight's telegrams make the game a certainty, although the local faculty committee is to meet tomorrow to puts its official sanction on the contest. This is merely a matter of form, however, and fans in the Northwest are thrilled over the acceptance of Bagshaw's men.

As plans now stand the Huskies will go into training for the contest a week from Friday. The team will leave Seattle the 27th inst., stopping a day in San Francisco for practice. It is planned to have the outfit arrive in Pasadena the day before the game with the Middies.

PROPS LEND HAND

There never was any serious objection to the game, the fact that most of the players are working their way through college making it undesirable for the authorities to take any steps until the men themselves had gone on record as favoring the contest. Coach Bagshaw's short training period, and the announcement that all faculty members would specially aid the team in preparation for examinations removing the last obstacles.

WHITTIER QUINTET BEATS POMONA FIVE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WHITTIER, Dec. 3.—Whittier High's basketball five defeated the Pomona High quintet, 23 to 16, in a practice game here last night on the local squad's court. The score at half time was 14 to 8, with Whittier leading. It was the first game of the season for both quintets.

McCaslin, local forward, was the high-point man with ten digits to his credit, although he was put out of the game on personal fouls. Gray led the Pomona contingent in scoring with six points. The guard work of Stringfield for Whittier and Bonnette for Pomona also featured.

BASKETBALL MEETING AT DYAS' TOMORROW

All local basketball teams are asked to meet tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock in the B. H. Dyas Log Cabin for the purpose of the formation of leagues. Schedules will be discussed along with other business. Many different organizations have manifested interest in the proposed leagues, and it is hoped that all will be represented at tomorrow's meeting. Pep Kerwin will be in charge of the gathering.

The New York Giants have made a proposition to the world champions, the Yankees, that the club first opening the season in New York City stay out of Gotham until they open the championship race.

A Quartet Which Will Be Very Much in Evidence at Pasadena on New Year's Day

NAVY PLAYERS TAKE A REST

But Begin Tough Work for Pasadena Game Soon

Hirst and Stolz Expected to be in Line-up Again

Annapolis Team Has Players From Fifteen States

BY W. G. McINTYRE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANNPOLIS (Md.) Dec. 3.—The Navy football coaches have been giving the men of the A squad a well-deserved rest. It has been the object of the coaches to get the minds of their charges off the subject of football for a few days before the strenuous work of preparation begins for the big West Coast game at Pasadena on New Year's Day. Hard work will be resumed on Farragut field this week. All the regulars including Capt. Carney will be ready for scrimmaging by that time.

It is hoped here that Stolz, a good end, and Hirst, a fast second-string back, both of whom received broken ankles early in the season, will be able to get back into the game before the invasion of the West begins. It has been predicted that Hirst would be used in the Army game but his injury took him from his squad just when he was going best. When in shape Hirst is the fastest man on the Navy squad and this fall he played excellent football for a rookie on the A squad.

ALL SECTIONS

When the Navy goes into action in the Pasadena stadium football fans will have an opportunity of watching an aggregation which is representative of the entire United States. Out of twenty-four men who have played in a majority of games this season there are represented fifteen States, the District of Columbia and the Territory of Hawaii.

New Jersey leads the fourteen before mentioned States with four men. Lenthe, Heuber, Hirst and Don Walker all come from the land of the mosquito, which incidentally, is the home of the head coach, Bob Folwell. After Ney Jersey, Missouri has given most men to the Navy squad. Shewell, Devens and Caldwell hail from the Show-me State. Pennsylvania has given the Annapolis team two good players in Ira McKee, Navy's forward passer de luxe, and Eva Brant, the light but aggressive tackle.

COAST REPRESENTED

Californians will be interested to learn that two of the most spectacular warriors on the Blue squad come from the land of perpetual sunshine. Red Ballinger, Navy's star drop-kicker hails from San Pedro, where he gained his first football experience on the San Pedro High School team. Ballinger, in addition to being a good kicker, is a sterling back and a good defensive man. The flashy Shapley was appointed to the Academy from California. This young star comes from a Navy family and gained his first football knowedge at Peddie Institute, N. J.

The mountain district is represented on the Navy eleven by Bo Matthews, Navy's veteran center. Bo comes from Denver where he played on the Colorado team before entering the Naval Academy. In addition to being a great football player Matthews is captain of the Navy's champion boxing team. He battles in the heavyweight class.

OBSERVATIONS by the INNOCENT BYSTANDER

W. M. H.

Tad Wieman, who brought much fame to Los Angeles through his magnificent work as tackle, center and fullback for Michigan in the years just previous to the war and who since that time has been assisting Coach Yost at Michigan by handling the line, comes to the bat with a brief, but pungent cheer regarding the wonderful success of the Maize and Blue team.

Incidentally Tad has advanced from his position as line coach to that of assistant athletic director. He is right-hand man to Coach Yost and assists in the organization and administration of the four-year courses in physical education and athletic and school health, as well as the summer school for coaches. In fact the former Los Angeles High star will handle in detail much of the work over which Yost has general supervision.

Tad always was a rather modest young man and simply rises to remark, "We had a great season. Eight games in a row with 150 points for Michigan and twelve for opponents." He doesn't mention that almost all the individual instruction came from Los Angeles men for Wieman handles the line and A. J. Sturzenegger, also of our fair city, bosses the ends and backs and likewise does the scouting. But here's what H. G. Salsinger of Detroit thinks about Michigan:

"Michigan's 1923 football team will not go down as the greatest eleven in the history of the game at Ann Arbor, but it may well be considered the most intelligent.

"The Michigan team had physical and mechanical ability, to be sure, but several other Yost-coached elevens had more.

Among its own peers Michigan found several teams much better physically—Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Chicago and Illinois, teams that Michigan

Glendale and Long Beach in Title Contest

Southern California Honors Go to Winner

Preliminary Tilt for Rival Midget Teams

BY BRAVEN DYER

Glendale and Long Beach High School football teams will meet Saturday afternoon at the Coliseum to settle the prep championship of this end of the State of California. Negotiations were closed last night with the Community Development Association for the use of the big stadium, and all that remains now is for both teams to get themselves in perfect physical condition. A crowd of some 20,000 persons seems assured.

An added touch of color will be given to the afternoon's entertainment in that the 110-pound teams of the two schools will meet to settle the Southern California championship of the class B football elevens.

The first game will start promptly at 12:45 o'clock, and the big tilt of the day is carded for 2:15 o'clock. That will give all spectators ample time to get home to dinner before dark.

After watching Glendale murder Santa Monica last Saturday we are inclined to believe that the Dynamiters have a chance of trimming the powerful and fleet Jackrabbits. However, we were informed by "authorities" from the beach town that Coach Schuettner's lads will run over the Glendale outfit for at least two, and possibly three touchdowns.

There is no doubt but that the Dynamiters will be up against a tough proposition. The Jackrabbits have cleaned up big in their games and don't intend to be stopped—at least not yet. Coach Hayhurst's boys will undoubtedly be outweighed, perhaps ten pounds to the man. That doesn't seem to bother them, however, for Santa Monica had some such advantage.

One thing is certain—fans who like a good fast game in which

BAN ON POST-SEASON GAMES WILL ENCOURAGE COMMERCIALISM

BY BILL HENRY

The high-minded gentlemen who pilot the destines of the Pacific Coast Intercollegiate Conference are either going to stand by post-season college football as played in Southern California or else they're going to go on record as having deliberately encouraged professional football. Southern California, with its marvelous climate and its great sport-loving public, is going to have football, following the regulation college season. Southern California would like to see the game in its highest form as typified by college teams. But if the colleges turn up their noses and refuse to participate, Southern California will turn up football which may not be so darn pure but which is fun to watch anyhow.

It is an open secret that certain colleges propose to attempt an absolute ban on post-season games. They plan, it is said, to attempt to force through a resoluion to this effect at the meeting in Berkeley this week. Their argument is the same one used by eastern colleges, to the effect that "post-season football tends to introduce he taint of commercialism."

Far be it from a lowly citizen who merely likes to watch good football to criticise the distinguished gentlemen who run the Coast Conference, but let one of their own members supply the best logic that has been advanced in regard to post-season football during the entire controversy. The University of Southern California recently put out a statement on this matter which ought to carry a lot of weight. It follows, in part:

"After an exhaustive study of several months, the faculty committee [of U.S.C.] does not feel that a Christmas Day game in Los Angeles will in any way deter from the interest in the New Year's game at Pasadena but rather that it will augment the football enthusiasm of the general public. We do feel, on the other hand, that playing a game at Christmas time under collegiate auspices with college teams would forestall any attempts at professional football on that day."

There is the whole business in a nutshell. If the Coast colleges are as truly interested in boosting college football and freezing out the professional game, as they pretend to be, the way to reach that end is to foster and encourage the post-season games in this region instead of trying to adopt a "holier than thou" attitude.

With the issue clearly before them the colleges of the conference, if they vote against participation in post-season games, can only lay themselves open to the suspicion that their motives are, after all, not solely the purity of the game but rather are inspired by sectional jealousy.

The post-season football games staged by the Tournament of Roses have been handled in a clean manner and have served more than any other one thing to establish the high ranking of Coast colleges throughout the country. The taint of professionalism has not entered in and college football on the Pacific Coast has been raised to a high pedestal. The Tournament of Roses Association and the Community Development Association, are two nonprofit organizations whose directors are beyond the criticism of the callow youths who manage college football teams. The president of any college on the Coast would feel himself honored to sit on a board of directors like that of the Community Development Association.

The University of Southern California athletic committee has hit the nail squarely on the head and if the heads of the other colleges of the conference are honestly laboring for the purity and preservation of college football, they will recognize that the best way to accomplish this worthy end is to support and encourage post-season games under such auspices as they are conducted in Los Angeles and Pasadena.

Bigger and Better Polo for Coming Season Planned for Coronado Country Club Field

DATES SET FOR WINTER EVENT

Tourney Opens March 22 and Closes April 20

Ten Teams Signed Up to Play in Border Classic

Spreckels Trophy Match Big Feature of Games

More polo and a higher class of games than have been witnessed on the superb fields of the Coronado Country Club in many years are definitely assured at Coronado Beach for the winter season of 1924. The dates authorized for holding the annual midwinter tournament are March 22 to April 20. Frequent match games, however, will be played beginning early in January following the arrival of I. B. Humphrey's Denver club and a number of other teams and individual players. Maj. Colin G. Ross, secretary of the Coronado Country Club, expects to have a strong aggregation to represent the local club in preliminary games as well as various matches in the big tournament.

MANY SIGNED UP

The midwinter tournament will be held under the direction of the Pacific Coast circuit subcommittee of the American Polo Association. Its membership consists of John B. Miller of Los Angeles, chairman; Max Fleischmann, W. S. Tevis, Jr., Maj. Colin G. Ross, S. F. B. Morse and Col. Kenyon S. Joyce.

Among the polo fours which have already been booked to participate in tournament games are the following: Denver, Honolulu, Eleventh Cavalry, Fort Bliss, Midwick, Riverside, San Mateo, Del Monte, Cardinals and the Thirteenth Cavalry. There is said to be a strong possibility of at least one Canadian team.

The most important event of the midwinter tournament will be the competition between teams rated at over twelve goals for the Pacific Coast All-American polo trophy presented by J. D. and A. B. Spreckels. In addition to the prized trophy and replicas for each player on the winning team, victory in this event carries with it the Pacific Coast polo championship title for 1924.

HANDICAP EVENT

Other events include the novice tournament for teams of six goals and under, Pacific Coast junior championship for teams of twelve goals and under and competition for the Pacific Coast circuit cups awarded by the American Polo Association. This event is to be played under handicap and only teams rating twelve goals and over will be eligible.

Victory for the Dynamiters may rest solely upon their ability to stop Morley Drury, high-powered Long Beach back. Drury has run wild through all opposition this year, and will be twice as hard to stop as any lad the Glendale team has gone up against.

BIG GOLF TOURNEY BEGINS DECEMBER 12

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Dec. 3.—The big winter golf feature of the valley, a tournament between the Mountain Meadows Country Club, Indian Hill Golf Club and Red Hill Country Club, will start the 12th inst., local golf officials announced today. This is the second time the tournament has been held, Red Hill winning last year. The local eighteen-man team will be picked this week and will meet the Indian Hill team on the 12th inst. in the first play of the tournament. The complete schedule of the triclub tournament is as follows: The 12th inst., Mountain Meadows, at Indian Hill; the 19th inst., Red Hill, at Indian Hill; the 26th inst., Mountain Meadows, at Red Hill; January 2, Indian Hill, at Red Hill; January 9, Indian Hill, at Mountain Meadows; January 16, Red Hill, at Mountain Meadows.

CUE PLAY REACHES SEMI-FINAL STAGE

With the elimination of three players in the 18.2 balk line tournament yesterday, the contest has reached the semifinal stage at Stevens's Billiard Parlor here and Cochran's Billiard Studio at Hollywood. W. R. Williams defeated William Ogden, 85 to 75, and E. P. Archer defeated William Eckert, 100 to 81, at Stevens's last night, while L. R. Bike defeated H. S. Foraker, 100 to 64, and J. Pimentel defeated R. R. Lee, 100 to 87, in the afternoon. In the one game played at Cochran's today C. E. Williamson defeated Dr. Jones, 100 to 82.

MEXICALI TO BOOST NEW BOXING ARENA

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CALEXICO, Dec. 3.—Joe Flores, active boxing promoter of Mexicali, has announced his intention of building a new athletic pavilion on the site of the building recently vacated by the A. B. W. gambling club. Flores said he expected to pattern the new arena as closely as possible after the Jack Doyle arena at Vernon. Los Angeles sporting interests are expected to be interested in the new project.

BUCK KAYOED

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—Young Marullo of New Orleans knocked out Soldier Buck of Louisville, after one minute and eight seconds of fighting in a scheduled fifteen-round bout here tonight. The men are middleweights.

O'DONNELL WILL TAKE ON MARTIN

St. Paul Lightweight and New Yorker in Main Event at Vernon Tonight

Johnny O'Donnell, winner of three straight starts at Vernon, will meet "Pepper" Martin in the main event at Jack Doyle's coliseum tonight.

More spectacular than O'Donnell and a harder hitter, Martin will be heavily backed when he meets the St. Paul boxer tonight, but O'Donnell will not be without his followers.

Each boy has had three bouts at Vernon. Martin started by knocking Frankie McCann kicking in one minute. He then dropped a decision to Phil Salvadore and later received a draw with the same boxer.

O'Donnell beat Al Grunan in his first start, gave Joe Lyman, as good a hitter as Martin, a boxing lesson on his second time out, and topped off his run of three by taking a clean-cut decision from Salvadore, the boy Martin couldn't beat.

In his two bouts with Salvadore Martin was on the floor three times, while O'Donnell has yet to be off his feet. The bouts in which Martin and O'Donnell have appeared make it appear that O'Donnell should be a sure winner if the bout goes the limit, while if it ends inside the four rounds Martin will be the fellow to put over the win.

Bud Soults and Ritchie Davis, a pair of hard-hitting 145-pounders, will box the semi-wind-up, and Mickey Nelson and Abie Gordon will box the feature preliminary.

Kid Moha, who has not appeared in a local ring for some weeks, but who will be remembered as a slam-bang slugger, is matched with Morrie King at 125 pounds; Johnny Spahr meets Bert Meyers at 145 pounds. The two started a bout at Hollywood several weeks ago, and were warming up to a great scrap when Spahr was accidentally fouled and the bout stopped with Meyers the loser.

Young Friedlander will meet Harry Whitman at 145 pounds, and Chief Anderson meets Bud Nelson in the curtain raiser. They are lightweights.

OBSERVATIONS OF BYSTANDER

did not meet, were both physically superior.

"But in the Western Conference, there was not another eleven as well schooled and as intelligent in its execution as the Michigan team.

"It was an unusual season at Ann Arbor. Michigan made a remarkable record. Outweighed by nearly every opponent that faced her this year, Michigan had her goal line crossed but once. The Marines from Quantico scored the only touchdown recorded against the Wolverines. Iowa and Wisconsin each made a field goal. Twelve points was the total scored against the Wolverines. In turn Michigan scored 180 points.

"This record is proof of an extraordinary defense; a highly intelligent one. It cannot be said that Michigan was able to defend her goal line by means of weight. Her defense against opponents that were invariably far heavier and that carried power and drive, was made possible by fine knowledge, courage, spirit and tradition, but, above all else, intellect."

After the Minnesota game a husky gentlemen arose in the press box. He represents one of Michigan's strongest rivals and he came to Ann Arbor to look over the new material that Yost was compelled to use in the game. As he was about to leave he paused a moment to make a passing comment:

"All I have to say is that this game is the finest tribute to a coaching staff that I have ever seen in football."

The strength of football at Ann Arbor rests in this coaching staff. Michigan has finally secured an ideal combination. With Fielding H. Yost, George Little, Tad Weiman, A. J. Sturzenegger and Ernie Vick in charge of the varsity squad, and Bob Fisher in control of the freshmen material, Michigan's future in the game can be regarded with optimism. Michigan will not always be on top, but she will win a great many more games than she loses, and it is the average that counts in a long run of seasons.

If nothing else the season showed the value of substitutes. Michigan years ago learned her lesson, and out at Ann Arbor the policy is not to put the bulk of attention upon the eleven regulars, but to develop the entire squad. It is the aim to have at least as many good players on the sidelines as on the playing field. Michigan had them this year, and that is the reason Michigan went through her season without defeat.

When Uteritz was injured in the Marine game the most valuable defensive back, the best forward passer and the most intelligent field general in the Western Conference was removed fro mservice. In his place came Rockwell, and Rockwell scored a touchdown on the first play Michigan made after he substituted for Uteritz. Rockwell's touchdown beat Wisconsin and Rovkwell's touchdown made certain the defeat of Minnesota. Besides his mechanical feats, Rockwell did a first-class job of running the Michigan attack.

GREB RETAINS HIS MIDDLEWEIGHT TITLE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

PITTSBURG (Pa.) Dec. 3.—Harry Greb successfully defended his middleweight boxing title tonight against Bryan Downey of Cleveland, O., in the first fight conducted under the McBride Act legalizing ten-round decision bouts in Pennsylvania. Greb was awarded the judges' decision after ten rounds of fast fighting.

GOLFERS WILL BE KEPT BUSY

Season of 1924 Promises Plenty of Action

Open Championships Start Off Year of Golf

Tie for Low Gross in Pro Tourney at Flintridge

BY CHARLES WEST

An intensive season of golf tournaments will open in Southern California along with the year of 1924 and its wreckage of good resolutions. The first event on a busy calendar will be the State Open Championships, one of the biggest tournaments of the year, which is dated for the Los Angeles Country Club, January 13 to 16. The selection of the L.A.C.C. for the scene of the affair was especially good, the two courses being able to handle a large field, and furnishing a hard test of golf.

The field will probably be limited to amateur players of ten handicap or under in order to keep hopeless duffs from entering for the thrill or rubbing shoulders with the mighty. This matter and other details will be settled Friday night when the Southern California Professional Golfers' Association will meet at Spalding's.

Play for the open title will be seventy-two holes of medal play, a lavish purse going to the professional champ, while if an amateur wins the glory he will be rewarded with a trophy.

Immediately after the open title is decided, invitational tournaments will come thick and fast. Hillcrest will lead off with the first event February 7, while Montecito Country Club stages an invitational February 21 and San Gabriel February 27. Tournaments will be played all during spring, summer and fall, Southern California golfers having supported summer golf so well this year.

Emler Holland of Hillcrist and Murray Pressler of Hacienda tied for low gross honors in the monthly professional tournament yesterday, which was held at Flintridge Country Club, each scoring a 72. The narrow fairways and well-guarded greens of Flintridge are usually enough to keep scores high and cards in the low seventies are quite scarce.

Paul Scott of Flintridge shot a 73 for third place, while Tom Stevens, Mel Smith and Vic Dalberto each turned in a 75.

In the blind bogey Dave Finley, professional at Flintridge; Pat Patterson, of the municipal links, and Cliff Castle each had a 74.

Dr. Whitney Waterman won the medal round of the San Gabriel Country Club's annual club championships with a 74, Arnold Statz finishing one stroke behind. Other scores of qualifiers follow: F. P. Young, 82; Loop Keller, 82; L. H. Buell, 83; P. E. Schrumm, 84; E. A. McMillan, 85; J. W. Penell, 86; Vic Forsythe, 87; W. F. Marmion, 87; George Morgan, 87; Ike Boyd, 88; Dr. L. D. Cheney, 88; M. A. Leach, 88; H. R. Miller, 89; O. J. Magary, 90; L. G. Richardson, 90; W. Cheek, 90.

Leon Keller and Crawford Waterman will meet Saturday in the finals of the board of directors' tournament. Keller defeated W. F. Marmion 1 up in the semifinals, while Waterman disposed of L. D. Bedford by the same score.

Big Ten Will Name Referees in All Games

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Selection of officials for 1924 western conference football games is to be taken out of the hands of the coaches and handled by a Big Ten committee, similar to the system by which major league baseball umpires receive assignments.

Prof. Ralph W. Aigler, of the University of Michigan, Prof. B. J. Lamber of the University of Iowa, and Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of athletics, will form the committee to choose all the officials for all games, instead of having them selected by the respective coaches, as has been the custom.

Under the new arrangement the football officials will carry the authority of the faculty committees of the big ten and will not be responsible to either the coaches or directors of athletics.

The faculty committee decided on the new plan of selecting officials as a result of the demonstration which followed a decision of the Michigan-Wisconsin game. Some of the older coaches in the conference, it was said, were responsible for the suggestion that resulted in the adoption of the new plan.

JOE LYNCH PUTS COULON TO SLEEP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEWARK (N. J.) Dec. 3.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight champion of the world, knocked out Eddie Coulon of New Orleans in the third round of the scheduled twelve-round bout here tonight.

Lynch led from the outset and although at times the Southerner penetrated the champion's defense, Lynch was the aggressor most of the time.

In the second round Coulon absorbed enough punishment to slow him up and in the following round the titleholder polished him off, a right hook to the chin following several solid thumps to the midsection turning the trick.

VANDALS HOME FROM CALIFORNIA TRIP

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

MOSCOW (Idaho) Dec. 3.—University of Idaho football team is home again today after its California trip. The Vandals were given a warm welcome upon their arrival here yesterday, when they were met at the depot by students, faculty members and townspeople. The Chamber of Commerce is planning a community dinner in their honor in the near future.

Handicap Tennis Tourney Will be Finished Sunday

Play in the annual handicap tournament will be continued Saturday and Sunday of this week on the courts of the Los Angeles Tennis Club. Considerable interest is being manifested in the event, because of the entry of Walter Westbrook, former University of Michigan star, who was ranked in the first five doubles teams last year with Hennessy as his partner. Westbrook is due to meet Harold Godshall.

Play in the tournament was postponed from last Saturday because of the celebration of the opening of the new tennis clubhouse. A huge crowd was present Saturday night, more than 150 dinner reservations being made, and double that number, being present for the entertainment and dance which followed. At the end of the dancing at midnight Cliff Herd put on a one-man show, which lasted another hour and was much enjoyed.

BUCHANAN ANNEXES VOLLEY BALL TITLE

Buchanan street grammar school's volley ball team won the city championship yesterday afternoon in a fast game played at Central Junior High School by defeating West Vernon grammar school in two games, 15-3 and 15-8. The playing was exceptionally good, and as an exhibition of play discipline was faultless, according to observers.

HACKETT REPLIES TO TILDEN'S CHARGES

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Controversy surrounding the play of William T. Tilden in the famous doubles match of this year's Davis Cup challenge round, in which America defeated Australia after five record-breaking sets, came into prominence today when Harold H. Hackett, member of the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, replied to the national champion's charges that the committee overstepped itself in giving him advice during the contest at Forest Hillls.

Tilden, in an article published in American Lawn Tennis, criticised the cup committee for requesting him to alter his tactics after the Americans had lost two of the first three sets to the Australians, declaring that "suggestions on methods of play would come better at any other time than between the third and fourth sets," and adding "it is then too late to change."

Branding Tilden's statement as "uncalled for and erroneous," Hackett asserts that the national champion, "after verbally refusing the advice or instruction of the committee during the intermission, went out on the court and proceeded to follow this advice or instruction to the letter, and the result was he played tennis of the highest caliber and the match was won."

According to Hackett, whose statement will be contained tomorrow in American Lawn Tennis, criticism in Tilden's performance was based on his failure to play position properly and give adequate support to Williams, whose brilliance was outstanding in the first three sets. Hackett held the national doubles title for four years and was captain of the Davis Cup team which brought the trophy back from England in 1919.

"I am one of the great majority who considers Tilden not only the greatest singles player of his time, but of all time; still, his doubles game is quite another matter, for he absolutely fails to understand the great fundamental of the doubles games, which is position play," asserted Hackett. "Unfortunately, Tilden considers himself not only the greatest singles player, but also the greatest doubles player."

BULL MONTANA IN DRAW WITH LONDOS

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TULARE, Dec. 3.—Bull Montana, Metro screen comedian and erstwhile wrestler, grappled one hour to a draw with Jimmy Londos, Greek champion, in the main event of a card in the local I. D.E.S. Hall. Londos had promised to flop Montana twice within an hour.

Peter Buzukos obtained the first fall from Chris Olson, Swedish welterweight of Portland, in twenty-five minutes with a back toe hold in the semifinal event. Buzukos forced a second fall in one minute with a side toe hold. A four-round boxing match between local amateurs served as preliminary.

EDDIE MAIER AND PARTY MAROONED

Dr. A. Sorenson of Los Angeles returned here from the Imperial Valley last Sunday night with the information that Eddie Maier, owner of the Vernon baseball club, was marooned with a party of friends in the valley as the result of a cloudburst last Friday afternoon. In the party are Bill Essick, Howard Lorenz, Bob Meusel, Arnold Boeckle and Harry Hannah. Autos had to be abandoned on account of the deep mud. It will probably take a day or two to extricate the bogged autos. When this is accomplished the party will return to Los Angeles.

TROJANS WILL HOLD CINDERPATH TRYOUTS

Tryouts for places on the squad the University of Southern California plans to enter in the midwinter relay carnival which will be held Saturday at Occidental, will be held this afternoon on Bovard Field, according to Coach Dean B. Cromwell. The Trojans plan to enter a large squad in the meet Saturday and competition for places on the team is keen.

Otto Anderson and Yale Martz, star U.S.C. trackstars, will not take part in the meet at Oxy. Anderson is going hunting, while Martz does not feel he is in good enough condition to take part.

Expect Many Surprises on Mercury Bill

Surprises may be expected in the big nine-bout card of boxing arranged by Matchmaker George Blake for the fistic fans of the Los Angeles Athletic Club Thursday night of this week.

In addition to three headline bouts, Tommy Coyne, champion of Toronto, and Wilfred Parker, a welterweight whiz from Indiana, will receive their first introduction to a Los Angeles audience. Parker meets steady, rough-and-ready Al Leonard, and Coyne is matched with Joe St. George, one of the cleverest 130-pounders in this part of the country.

Ernie Clark will referee. The remaining numbers on the bill are:

Manuel Kaplan vs. Joe Woods, 175 pounds.
August Goltz vs. Sailor Conrad Collyer, 135 pounds.
Jack Fields vs. Henry Garcia, 118 pounds.
Ned Golden vs. Sailor Walsh, 118 pounds.
Phidl LaBarbe vs. Sailor Nawrocki, 114 pounds.
Joe Salas vs. Sailor Barrett, 125 pounds.
Eddie Gleason vs. Julius Jessick, 125 pounds.

REDLANDS, Dec. 3.—George E. Spears, world champion straight rail billiard player, gave an exhibition of billiards for the local cue men here tonight. Prep School Basketball Organizations to Start Play Next Month

SCHEDULE ANNOUNCED

High School Fives Play First Games January 18; Season Closes Five Weeks Later

High School basketball teams of the city will go into action January 18 in the first week's play of the 1924 schedule which was drawn by local coaches and vice-principals yesterday. Each team will play games, the season ending February 22.

Although it was expected that season's schedule would see change, in that each five would play every other team in the loop, officials were forced to stick to the old regime, there being too many protests against any increase in the number of athletic contests for the boys.

All games are to be played on Friday afternoon and will start at 3 o'clock. Lightweight teams will meet on the same afternoons and on the same floors as the first team.

Roosevelt High, one of the newer institutions of the city, has been included in the schedule, although it has not yet been decided where their games will be played. Fremont, another new school, will enter a class B lightweight team for the season.

Manual, winners of the championship for the past two years, have a good chance of repeating this year, as the Toilers are blessed with three veterans—Capt. Redman, Stewart and Ruttman. Coach Doris Blair would like nothing better than to cop the pennant three times in a row, and unless the other schools hustle he is likely to do just that. Hollywood and L. A. High seem to be his most dangerous rivals right now.

Here is the schedule as given out yesterday:

January 18—Franklin at L. A. High, Hollywood at Jefferson.
January 25—L. A. High at Hollywood, Manual at Jefferson, Lincoln at Poly.
February 1—Franklin at Hollywood, Roosevelt vs. L. A. High, Jefferson at Poly, Lincoln at Manual.
February 8—Lincoln at Franklin, Jefferson at L. A. High, Poly at Manual.
February 15—Franklin at Poly, L. A. High at Manual, Hollywood at Lincoln.
February 22—Franklin vs. Roosevelt, Poly at L. A. High, Manual at Hollywood, Jefferson at Lincoln.

"THE TIMES" PANORAMA OF BASEBALL

(Copyright, 1923, in U. S. and Great Britain by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved.)

THE BEHAVIOR OF THE BALL

This Is the Picture of a Great Moment in History

It shows Charles Radbourne thinking. He said, "Now I am going to think of a way to improve the slow ball," and his mates on the Providence team gathered round in sober attitudes and the photographer pressed the bulb. You can pick Radbourne out because he looks so cool, calm and collected and also because he is the third from the left, standing, and has his hand on the shoulder of Harry Wright, the manager, who is seated. The mustached fellow with the cap, on the other side of Radbourne, is George Wright. Oh, yes: Radbourne really did improve the slow ball.

A baseball is a baseball, but it's a skittish little thing, as uncertain as a race horse, dependent on who takes it in hand. There are more personalities in a ball than are dreamt of by the average fan and the batsman has to get acquainted with them and not notice their temperament so as not to get rattled. There is the slow ball and the fade-away and the knuckle ball and the hook ball, and the spit ball and the palm ball, and the high floater and the fast fader, and the thumb jumper and the ball that changes its pace with a seeming intelligence that fools the man at the plate. And every one of these is a sort of discovery. The man behind the ball in every instance has gone down in baseball history as a particular hero.

Whose name is identified in mind with the spin or slow ball? That of Alphonse Martin, who had fought in the Civil War and sprang it on New York teams in 1863. We have already answered the question: Who pitched the first curve? Arthur Cummings. Who perfected the chop hit, which in a fashion is a cousin (hit on the head) of the bunt? The Baltimore Orioles of '94. Who made the spit ball a wonder? Strickiett, of the Chicago Americans, in 1903. But it is claimed by some baseball writers well up in the history of the game that some quarter of a century before, Bobbie Matthews, who was the curve pitcher to follow Cummings, really invented it. Who improved the slow ball? Radbourne, a Providence star. And do we not all hail Chris Mathewson's fade-away, and Mordecai Brown's hook curve, due to his having only three whole fingers on his pitching hand?

There's a way to hold the ball, there's a subtle use of the fingers, hidden jerks of the thumb, beautiful twists of the wrist; and you became a famous pitcher. Some of these different behaviors of the ball were noted in early history of the game, after the curve set the pitchers thinking; then they passed out of favor, and were rediscovered, and so it will be until baseball ceases to be played. And because of the temperament of the ball, the science of it has been studied, and the game has been tightened to cope with it, and both infielding and outfielding have developed to meet the different emergencies. Diagrams have been drawn to show how the ball revolves and the physics of motion have been studied so that something of the mystery of the spitball may be explained. But still the ball is the mystery, the very heart of the game. And the twirler is the real hero. It's the pitcher who is taken out when the dykes break and the opposing team get a torrent of runs. The batsmen are literally "on to his curves" and can hit him all over the place. You don't find anyone else being taken out of the game. But a pinch hitter is often called to meet the emergency of the ball. It's always the ball and how the ball behaves that holds the victory and the loss in baseball.

Cubs to Fete Peagreen Grid Team Tonight

The 1923 conference championship freshman football team of the University of California, Southern Branch, will be honored tonight at a banquet at the university Y.M.C.A., at which time speakers will heap praise and eatables on the peagreeners.

As this is the first year that the Cubs have ever had a freshman team, the victory is especially stimulating, and great things are promised for the branch in the future. Coach Harry Trotter, who taught the freshmen their tricks, deserves considerable praise for his efforts. Trotter formerly coached the varsity. The S.B.U.C. varsity, in contrast to the frosh this year, failed to win a game this season.

Guy Harris is handling the banquet for the yearlings tonight.

REDLANDS PLAYERS TAKE UP SPEED BALL

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

REDLANDS, Dec. 3.—Malcolm Smith, coach of athletics at Redlands High School, is keeping his huskies in shape between seasons with the new game of speed ball. Speed ball is a combination of soccer, rugby and basketball and keeps the men who are playing on the move all the time.

Coach Smith will call his men out for basketball practice in a few days. He has lost most of the members of his team last year, among them Reitzell, Maccubbin and Yost. He still has Sutt and Brown and figures on developing some new material that will be worth while.

PITCHER MAKES APPEAL

Shocker Lays Case Before Landis Against St. Louis Browns; Fined For Refusing to Join Club

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Urban Shocker of the St. Louis Browns, one of the greatest pitchers in the American League, today carried his fight to be declared a free agent to Commissioner Landis on the plea that his liberty has been infringed upon because officials of the St. Louis club had refused to permit his wife to accompany him on a trip with the club.

Shocker was fined $1000 and suspended September 12, when he refused to join the Browns on their last eastern trip of the season after being denied permission to take his wife along. Shocker asked that Commissioner Landis have the $1000 fine refunded, his salary paid from September 12 to the end of the season, and he be declared a free agent.

WON TWENTY

The St. Louis pitcher, who won twenty games and lost twelve during the 1923 season, appeared before Commissioner Landis with his attorney, Jerome F. Duggan of St. Louis, while Attorney S. W. Swartz and Business Manager William Freil represented the Browns.

After two hours of argument, Commissioner Landis requested Brown's attorney to file an answer to the charges of Shocker with the understanding that the pitcher's attorney would be given time to offer testimony in rebuttal.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Miller Huggins, diminutive pilot of the world's champion New York Yankees, declared today that while he expected to stand pat on his present line-up for the 1924 campaign, he was open to any deal which might strengthen the club.

Huggins asserted he would bid for the services of Urban Shocker, St. Louis pitcher, if the Browns put him on the market, but declined to disclose what offer he might make. Huggins traded Shocker to St. Louis in 1918.

Waivers have been asked on Carl Mays, it was revealed by Huggins, who said that all American League clubs had waived but that three National League teams had filed claims for the "submarine ball" twirler. It is possible the Yanks may arrange a deal which will send Mays to the senior circuit, where, Huggins believes, he might regain his effectiveness.

Culver City Is to Open Track Christmas Day

BY ED O'MALLEY

Dick Ferris—Dick the irrepressible—has touched Alladin's lamp and swears by the rood that Culver City racing (betless—mind you) will be in full swing Christmas Day. Dick waxed busy yesterday and in a short time procured a signed guarantee from the Birch O'Neal Co., to have everything in ship-shape order December 25. This includes ten stables and a spacious grand stand.

An attempt will be made to finish the clubhouse at the same time, but this was not guaranteed. Ferris's activity reached out and grabbed the Donaldson Printing Co., which will immediately get out a large number of three-sheet posters announcing the glad tidings.

The Pacific Electric Railway Co. will shoot in a spur to the track from the main road and will run racing trains at regular intervals The fencing of the entire plant at Culver City is now in progress.

Secretary Bill Finn has been at Tijuana for a day or so and will return to Los Angeles today. While at the border course, Finn, according to Ferris, garnered a big list of horsemen who promised to send some of their nags to Culver City. General Manager Ferris was very enthusiastic last night about the coming opening, declaring that all obstacles had been overcome and that the track would surely open, rain or shine, on Christmas Day. C'est cela.

DEFERS ANSWER ON REPARATIONS

Hughes Awaits Result of British Election

Seeks to Avoid Embarrassing Premier Baldwin

Paris Worried by America's Reported Refusal

BY HENRY WALES

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, by the Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Dec. 3.—From British quarters I learn that Secretary of State Hughes has agreed not to give a final official reply to the invitation to send delegates to two committees of experts to be named by the Reparations Commission until after the English elections.

This is to avoid embarrassing the Baldwin government in the crucial phases of the campaign.

FRANCE ANXIOUS

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

PARIS, Dec. 2.—Premier Poincare's plan for a commission of experts to examine into the question of Germany's ability to pay reparations is considered to have received a distinct setback through the reported refusal of Secretary of State Hughes to have the American government take part. But the disposition in French government circles tonight was to go ahead.

The British attitude, it is admitted, will be the deciding factor. The British views are not yet known.

As much as the French government regrets the abstention of the United States from participation, its declination has caused no great surprise. The newspapers take it quite calmly, but not without some of them making a few caustic remarks.

SEE MORE DELAY

The adherence of Sir John Bradbury, the British representative on the Reparations Commission, to M. Poincare's proposal for two expert committees to investigate German finances was greeted first in France as a happy preliminary to probable complete accord with Great Britain; but on second thought, the press seems to treat it more as just another postponement of the final reckoning. Since the British judgment previously had been against a limited inquiry as not worth while, it is suggested in some political quarters that Great Britain may seize upon the absence of the Americans as a reason for discouraging a continuation of the committees, particularly as Sir John Bradbury announced at the time that he regarded American delegates as vitally essential.

The Reparations Commission, however, may decide to get American counsel on the expert committees through the International Chamber of Commerce, or by direct invitation to prominent Americans.

The French feel that this will be done, for they doubt if the British will offer any objection, so long as Americans sit on the committees.

ARCTIC VESSEL MAUD HEARD FROM BY RADIO

AMUNDSEN'S BOAT REPORTED TO HAVE TALKED TO SPITZBERGEN

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 3.—Advices from Christiania say that Capt. Roald Amundsen's exploration ship, Maud, which is believed to be drifting toward the North Pole with the Arctic ice packs, established radio communication with Spitzbergen yesterday. Capt. Wisting reported that Engineer Sievertsen died on July 10, last, after an illness of several months, presumably of inflammation of the brain.

The Maud was in communication with Spitzbergen early last March reporting that she was then about 300 miles northeast of Wrangell Island. She left Seattle in June, 1922, carrying Capt. Amundsen and an exploration party, but Amundsen later left the vessel to make preparations for his airplane flight across the North Pole, which he subsequently abandoned, but which he is planning to carry out next summer.

PHILIPPINE SENATE APPROVES JUDGES

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS]

MANILA, Dec. 3.—The Philippine Senate in executive session today confirmed a number of appointments made by Gov.-Gen. Leonard Wood last summer before differences arose between the Legislature and the Governor-General. It is stated that the confirmations, which included those of seven judges of the Courts of First Instance, have no bearing on the controversy between the executive and legislative branches of the government.

Prison-Made Garments Hit as Unfair Competition by American Makers

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

ATLANTIC CITY, Dec. 3.—"It won't be long now!"

This is the latest edict from the fashion center abroad regarding the length of skirts worn by milady in America, according to reports made to the convention of the Associated press industries of America.

"The advices from Paris fix the length of the skirt for fashionably attired women at eight inches from the ground," said David N. Mosessohn, head of the industry.

The trade is finding the competition of prison-made goods a detriment to their business, it was declared by Mr. Mosessohn. "Through the arrangement whereby manufacturers enter into contracts for prison-made goods, they are able to put products on the market in competition with the products of the free American labor at a price ratio of approximately 38 cents to $1.25," he asserted.

"It is the intention of this convention to formulate plans whereby various trade organizations of wholesalers, retailers and manufacturers will co-operate with national, State and local chambers of commerce in agitating legislation against the unfair competition that the marketing of prison-made goods brings about."

WASHINGTON, Diciembre 3.—Las exigencias de los republicanos insurgentes de que se liberalicen los reglamentos ha determinado un estancamiento en la Cámara de Diputados, que será un obstáculo para el Congreso hasta tanto que se salga del punto muerto o se llegue a algun arreglo con la organización republicana regular, que sigue inconmovible en su actitud.

La Comisión del Comercio entre Estados ha denegado la petición de que se celebre una conferencia nacional sobre avalúo de los ferrocarriles americanos, para que sea repuesto el procedimiento relativo.

El proyecto de Muscle Shoals fue discutido en una conferencia celebrada en la Casa Blanca entre el Presidente Coolidge y Henry Ford.

Los delegados canadienses a la conferencia mixta sobre el cumplimiento de la prohibición, celebrada en Ottawa, han manifestado el sincero deseo de cooperar con los Estados Unidos para impedir el contrabando de licor procedente del Canadá.

La producción de gasolina en los Estados Unidos durante Octubre ascendió a 859,060,570 galones, lo que constituye en récord.

Noticias Sobre la Inundación en Italia

BERGAMO (Italia) Diciembre 3. Hoy temprano se rescataron ciento treinta y siete cadáveres en la región del valle del Bergamo, 600 de cuyos habitantes se cree perecieron ahogados en la gran inundación ocasionada el sábado por la caída de la gran presa que almacenaba las aguas del lago Gleno.

Los grupos de salvamento integrados por tropas y civiles trabajaron toda la noche en el fango y en el agua, buscando a las víctimas del diluvio en un area de cincuenta millas cuadradas, y procurando brindar ayuda y consuelos a millares de gentes privadas de sus casas por el siniestro. Espérase que el Rey Victor Manuel visite hoy el teatro de los acontecimientos.

Centenares de casas, incluyendo en su totalidad las de los pueblos de Dezzo, Corna y Bueggio, quedaron destruídas por la avalancha de diez millones de yardas cúbicas de agua que se despeñaron desde el lago artificial. La inundación se detuvo en el lago de Iseo, situado a 15 millas de distancia.

El campo en los alrededores de Darfo está convertido en un vasta laguna, y a medida que el agua se retira, va dejando depósitos de barro en los que se hundieron muchas cabezas de ganado.

Las torrenciales lluvias de la semana próximo pasada alcanzaron serias proporciones el viernes y el sábado, llegando la presión que se ejercía contra las cuatro millas del dique de Gleno a ser mayor que la resistencia de éste, a pesar de que su mamposteria tenía 25 yardas de grueso. La presa se reventó, y el agua se precipitó con tremenda violencia por el valle barriendo cuanto encontró a su paso. Para colmo de males, los trabajos de salvamento se han hecho más difíciles por la onda fría que está castigando a esa región.

NOTAS LOCALES

Búscase a los Dueños de un Auto que Mató a Dos

El verde coche de la muerte, que arrolló a la Sra. Mary Wiley, de 73 años, y a su hija, Jessica Wiley, de 42, la noche del sábado, en el cruce de las calles de Colorado y Oak, Pasadena, privándolas de la vida y siguiendo en su precipitada carrera, ha sido encontrado, según declaró ayer la policía de Pasadena.

El auto fue hallado en Monrovia por los detectives, en la parte de atrás del café Rainbow, y ha quedado inequívocamente identificado como el rápido vehículo de la muerte, al decir de la policía.

Los dueños de ese automóvil son el señor y la senora Leonard V. Saunders, que explotan el café mencionado, y ya se les busca con órdenes de aprehensión en las que se les acusa de homicidio. Ayer les daban caza en Long Beach los detectives Culver y O'Rourke, de la policía de Pasadena, pues se decía que se habían ido a la citada población playera.

La máquina trágica es de marca "Marmon", y está pintada de verde. Tiene rota la linterna derecha de enfrente, y el tope quedó doblado por el choque, según dicen los detectives. Los testigos del accidente han identificado el coche, afirmando que es el que dio contra las dos pobres mujeres.

La policía de Pasadena recibió ayer mañana una indicación anónima, según se ha ha subido, y es la que le permitió encontrar el auto, y descubrir quiénes eran sus dueños, pues los detectives que fueron encargados de hacer averiguaciones después del accidente, tan sólo pudieron seguir la huella del coche hasta Arcadia, y allí la perdieron.

Pláticas Diarias en Español por el Prof. R. Guerrero, del Departamento Español de "The Times"

En la frase citada al final de mi Plática 116 no está empleado con propiedad el verbo "zanjar", cuya significación figurada es "remover todas las dificultades e inconvenientes que puedan impedir el arreglo de un asunto o negocio". Se "zanjan", pues, obstáculos, pero no ofensas y agravios. Aquéllas y éstos se "vengan", y creo que eso es lo que el autor ha querido decir. Por otra parte, debió haber puesto el participio en masculino, y no en femenino, puesto que modifica a "ofensas", que es femenino, y a "agravios", que es masculino. Por último, observe el lector que en la citada frase el participio "rdcibidas" debe regir la preposición "de", al paso que "proferidos" se construye allí con "a". Cuando, como en el caso actual, el sentido pide dos complementos de preposiciones diferentes con un mismo término, hay que expresar ambas preposiciones, reproduciendo el término con algun pronombre después de la segunda. En tal virtud, el autor debió haber escrito como sigue: "con el fin de dejar 'vengados' en el campo del honor las ofensas recibidas de otro muy principal caballero o los agravios proferidos al mismo".

Dice Espasa que el estilo arquitectónico que reemplazó en todo el Occidente de Europa a la arquitectura ojival, y que ha subsistido en sus últimas modificaciones hasta nuestros días, se llamó del "Renacimiento", y consistió esencialmente en volver a la imitación de las antiguas formas clásicas, siguiendo la corriente del movimiento iniciado ya desde fines del siglo XIV en el terreno de la literatura y de las artes. La resurrección de la arquitectura clásica en España, donde tan extraordinario florecimiento había alcanzado el arte ojival, pasó por una especie de adaptación en que se fundieron este último arte y el del Renacimiento, dando origen a un nuevo estilo llamado "plateresco", por haberlo puesto en boga los plateros en la innumerables obras de su arte ejecutadas entonces en España, y que consiste en la adopción de los órdenes clásicos en sus líneas generales, pero desfigurados por una ornamentación prolija y minuciosa, en la que entraban las crestería caladas, los arabescos, mascarones, bichas y otros elementos decorativos que con profusión empleaba por la misma época la arquitectura ojival, ya en plena decadencia entre los esplendores del estilo gótico florido.

Abundan en España los primores del arte plateresco, pudiéndose citar entre las obras arquitectónicas más características de este estilo, la fachada del Hospital de la Santa Cruz de Toledo, la de la Universidad de Salamanca, y el maravilloso palacio de Monterey, de Salamanca también, construído para el conde de Monterey, que fue virrey de Méjico.

Tras el florecimiento del estilo plateresco, se afirmó la reacción hacia lo clásico, edificando Juan de Herrera el frío y austero palacio del Escorial, a imitación del cual, cubrióse luego la península española de severas y rígidas construcciones mal avenidas con los hermosos edificios platerescos de Burgos, Toledo y Salamanca. Pero ya desde mediados del siglo XVII se inició la contra la reacción, que rompía con las austeras rectas trazadas por el cartabón y la plomada de Herrera. En todas las regiones de Occidente se exageró esta contra-reacción hasta degenerar en estilos de exuberante, exagerada y, a las veces, estrambótica ornamentación, como el "barroco" en Italia, el "rococo" en Francia y Alemania, y el "churrigueresco" en España. José Churriguera, célebre arquitecto y escultor español nacido en Salamanca en 1650, a pesar de no haber sido el iniciador de este estilo, dio nombre a las formas llamadas "churrigueresca" y al movimiento denominado "churriguerismo". Este estilo, cuyas formas extremaron y exaltaron los imitadores de Churriguera, se caracteriza por el recargo de la ornamentación exagerada y la exacerbación de las líneas quebradas y movidas, que llega al paroxismo en la Sacristía de la Cartuja de Granada, por el lego fray Manuel Vázquez. Entre las obras representativas del estilo churrigueresco podemos citar el Trascoro de la catedral de Granada, la puerta del Hospicio de Madrid, y la portada del Sagrario Metropolitano de Méjico.

Coughs and Colds are germ diseases

Zonite kills germs

A COLD is not a mere cold or "just a cold." A cold is an infection. Most colds are highly contagious, and are caused by germs, or bacteria. It is difficult to dislodge these germs once they have become established. The time to kill them is at the start before they penetrate to the recesses of the throat and nasal cavity.

Zonite provides a safer means of preventing oral, nasal and bronchial infection than has hitherto been available. Unlike the old-fashioned germicides, it is neither poisonous nor burning in its nature. Unlike the old germicides it can be used freely on the sensitive linings of the throat and nasal cavity. Zonite represents an entirely new principle in antiseptics.

Zonite is not a poison. It is non-caustic and non-irritating. Furthermore, Zonite is actually 40 times as powerful in germ-killing effectiveness as the strongest solution of carbolic or iodine or bichloride of mercury which can be safely applied to the human body. And compared to peroxide of hydrogen, Zonite is 73 times as effective in germicidal strength.

FRAUD IN SOAP MINE CHARGED

Arizonan Accused of Misusing United States Mails

Counties Fighting Asserted Outlaw Stage Lines

Contend Money Lost Through Many Accidents

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

PHOENIX, Dec. 3. — In the United States court, stretching out to greater length than any other action of the term, is the case of the United States against Joseph W. Boyd, charged with use of the mails in connection with an asserted fraudulent scheme. Boyd is charged with having represented that in the hills of Arizona north of Phoenix he had discovered a mine of veritable soap. On the basis of this he formed the Natural Soap Company of America, incorporated in Arizona.

Assertions are made by the prosecution that Boyd held he had contracts of immensely valuable sort from India for his saponavious clay as a cleanser acceptable to people who refused to be defiled by the use of soaps made with animal fats. He took prospective investors to his mine of thirty-four claims on the Black Canyon Road, near Canyon Station. These claims, it is asserted, reverted because of failure to do assessment work.

OFFICERS INVEST

The government states that $65,000 was expended by Boyd, this representing about the income from stock sales, and that the company has no present assets. Sales in California were not many, as Boyd, according to Dr. J. B. Spaulding of San Francisco, refused to make application to the California Corporation Commission for authority to sell. The witness stated he had been told of a factory under course of construction at Richmond, Cal., but found only a vacant lot when he visited the site.

Soap used in Boyd's demonstrations is said to have been made by G. S. Rodgers of Phoenix. The promoter operated largely in Texas and Colorado, whence have come about thirty-five witnesses, some of whom had put as much as $5000 into the enterprise. Army officers especially appeared to have been convinced of the wealth that Boyd offered. The case is expected to last at least a week more.

STAGE LINES

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 3. — Dr. Edward Gotthelf, county health officer of Pima county, has addressed a letter to the Arizona Corporation Commission asking if some way cannot be found to fix a degree of responsibility upon the Los Angeles-El Paso stage lines and their operators. These stages, carrying about 2000 Mexican laborers a month through Arizona, are said to number about 100, and to be continual causes of expense to the Arizona countries through which they operate.

The Mexico and Texas Stage Company of El Paso is said to have had four accidents within the State in four months. Through one overturn near Tucson, Pima county already has been put to an expense of $200 in the care of nine injured passengers. The companies deny responsibility, stating they merely are agents, securing passengers for the drivers or owners of the cars.

No license fee is paid in Arizona, the stage operators claiming interstate privileges. It is believed probable that the State, however, may demand liability bonding, in the same manner as is exacted of domestic stage lines. It is known that the Corporation Commission has been giving consideration to the matter, but it is understood that conclusion had been reached that the matter is one that best can be handled by the countries through which the outlaw transportation lines operate.

THREE DIE IN AIRSHIP COLLISION

Fatal Accident Occurs in Fleet Maneuvers at San Diego Harbor

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 3.—A spectacular collision in midair between two navy airplanes flying over San Diego harbor precipitated three men to their death in the waters of the bay this noon.

The dear are Lieut. F. M. Byers, chief machinist's mate; W. B. Jackson and Chief Machinist's Mate T. E. Entwistle. They were all attached to the aircraft squadron of the battle fleet.

Lieut. Byers was piloting a Vought plane, Jackson and Entwistle were flying in a J. N. land plane. The two ships were speeding in maneuvers about 2000 feet in the air when they collided, according to reports from the North Island Naval Air Station.

Both planes hurtled into the waters of Spanish Bight, a mass of twisted wreckage. Rescuing parties were dispatched at once and reached the spot where the two planes fell in a few minutes, but they found that the airmen had apparently met death instantaneously.

Efforts were being made this afternoon to drag the wreckage of the planes from the water. It is believed by aviation officers, however, that the two machines are destroyed.

BABBITT BY SINCLAIR LEWIS

(SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS INSTALLMENTS)

George F. Babbitt, prosperous realtor of the fast-growing young city of Zenith, and Myra, his wife, together with their children, Verona, Ted and Tinka, reside in the Floral Heights section. Babbitt is at once practical and whimsical. He is a hustler and an exponent of "100 per cent efficiency" ideas as applied to both his home and office. Wife is conventionally honest, a conscientious worker and a tireless hoarder for his dirty. While superficially a modern urbanite, he is fundamentally provincial. His instincts are conventional. His closest friend, Paul Riesling, is unhappily married.

The Zenith Advocate-Times is reporting Babbitt's speech at the annual get-together fest of the Zenith Real Estate Board.

"'But it's here in Zenith, the home for manly men and womanly women and bright kids, that you find the largest proportion of these Regular Guys, and that's what sets it in a class by itself; that's why Zenith will be remembered in history as having set the pace for a civilization that shall endure when the old time-killing ways are gone forever and the day of earnest efficient endeavor shall have dawned all round the world!

"'Some time I hope folks will quit handing all the credit to a lot of moth-eaten, mildewed, out-of-date, old, European dumps, and give proper credit to the famous Zenith spirit, that clean fighting determination to win Success that has made the little old Zip City celebrated in every land and clime, wherever condensed milk and pasteboard cartons are known! Believe me, the world has fallen too long for these worn-out countries that aren't producing anything but bootblacks and scenery and booze, that haven't got one bathroom per 100 people, and that don't know a loose-leaf ledger from a slip-cover; and it's just about time for some Zenithite to get his back up and holler for a showdown!

"'I tell you, Zenith and her sister cities are producing a new type of civilization. There are many resemblances between Zenith and these other burgs, and I'm darn glad of it! The extraordinary, growing, and sane standardization of stores, offices, streets, hotels, clothes, and newspapers throughout the United States shows how strong and enduring a type is ours.

"'I always like to remember a piece that Chum Frink wrote for the newspapers about his lecture tours. It is doubtless familiar to many of you, but if you will permit me, I'll take a chance and read it. It's one of the classic poems, like "If" by Kipling, or Ella Wheeler Wilcox's "The Man Worth While;" and I always carry this clipping of it in my note book:

"'"When I am out upon the road, a poet with a peddler's load, I mostly sing a hearty song, and take a chew and hike along, a-handing out my samples fine of Cheero Brand of sweet sunshine, and peddling optimistic pokes and stable lines of japes and jokes to Lyceums and other folks, to Rotary's, Kiwanis' clubs, and feel I ain't like other dubs. And then old Maj. Silas Satan, a brainy cuss who's always waitin', he gives his tail a lively quirk, and gets in quick his dirty work. He fills me up with mullygrubs; my hair the backward way he rubs; he makes me lonelier than a hound, on Sunday when the folks ain't round. And then b' gosh, I would prefer to never be a lecturer, a-ridin' round in classy cars and smoking 50-cent cigars, and never more I want to roam; I simply want to be back home, a-eatin' flapjacks, hash, and ham, with folks who savvy whom I am!

"'"But when I get that lonely spell, I simply seek the best hotel, no matter in what town I be—St. Paul, Toledo, or K.C., in Washington, Schenectady, in Louisville or Albany. And at that inn it hits my dome that I again am right at home. If I should stand a lengthy spell in front of that first-class hotel, that to the drummers loves to cater, across from some big film theayter; if I should look around and buzz, and wonder in what town I was, I swear that I could never tell! For all the crowd would be so swell, in just the same fine sort of jeans they wear at home, and all the queens with spiffy bonnets on their beans, and all the fellows standing round a-talkin' always, I'll be bound, the same good jolly kind of guff, 'bout autos, politics and stuff and baseball players of renown that Nice Guys talk in my home town!

"'"Then when I entered that hotel, I'd look around and say, 'Well, well!' For there would be the same news-stand, same magazines and candies grand, same smokes of famous standard brand, I'd find at home, I'll tell! And when I saw the jolly bunch come waltzing in for eats at lunch, and squaring up in natty duds to platters large of French fried spuds, why then I'd stand right up and bawl, 'I've never left my home at all!' And all replete I'd sit me down beside some guy in derby brown upon a lobby chair of plush, and murmur to him in a rush, 'Hello, Bill, tell me, good old scout, how is your stock a-holdin' out?' Then we'd be off, two solid pals, a-chutterin' like giddy gals, of nivvers, weather, home, and wives, lodge-brothers then, for all our lives! So when Sam Satan makes you blue, good friend, that's what I'd up and do, for in these States where'er you roam, you never leave your home, sweet home."

"'Yes, sir, these other burgs are our true partners in the great game of vital living. But let's not have any mistake about this. I claim that Zenith is the best partner and the fastest-growing partner of the whole caboodle. I trust I may be pardoned if I give a few statistics to back up my claims. If they are old stuff to any of you, yet the tidings of prosperity, like the good news of the Bible, never become tedious to the ears of a real hustler, no matter how oft the sweet story is told! Every intelligent person knows that Zenith manufacturers more condensed milk and evaporated cream, more paper boxes, and more lighting fixtures, than any other city in the United States, if not in the world. But it is not so universally known that we also stand second in the manufacture of package butter, sixth in the giant realm of motors and automobiles, and somewhere about third in cheese, leather findings, tar roofing, breakfast food, and overalls!

"'Our greatness, however, lies not alone in punchful prosperity, but equally in that public spirit, that forward-looking idealism and brotherhood, which has marked Zenith ever since its foundation by the Fathers. We have a right, indeed we have a duty toward our fair city, to announce broadcast the facts about our high schools, characterized by their complete plants and the finest school-ventilating systems in the country, bar none; our magnificent new hotels and banks and the paintings and carved marble in their lobbies; and the Second National Tower, the second highest business building in any inland city in the entire country. When I add that we have an unparalleled number of miles of paved streets, bathrooms, vacuum cleaners, and all the other signs of civilization; that our library and art museum are well supported and housed in convenient and roomy buildings; that our park system is more than up to par, with its handsome driveways adorned with grass, shrubs, and statuary, then I give but a hint of the all-round unlimited greatness of Zenith!

"'I believe, however, in keeping the best to the last. When I remind you that we have one motor car for every five and seven-eighths persons in the city, then I give a rock-ribbed practical indication of the kind of progress and braininess which is synonymous with the name Zenith!

"'But the way of the righteous is not all roses. Before I close I must call your attention to a problem we have to face, this coming year. The worst menace to sound government is not the avowed Socialists, but a lot of cowards who work under cover—the long-haired gentry who call themselves 'liberals' and 'radicals' and 'non-partisan' and 'intelligentsia' and God only knows how many other trick names! Irresponsible teachers and professors constitute the worst of this whole gang, and I am ashamed to say that several of them are on the faculty of our great State university. The U is my own Alma Mater, and I am proud to be known as an alumni, but there are certain instructors there who seem to think we ought to turn the conduct of the nation over to hoboes and roustabouts.

"'Those profs are the snakes to be scotched—they and all their milk-and-water ilk! The American business man is generous to a fault, but one thing he does demand of all teachers and lecturers and journalists: if we're going to pay them our good money, they've got to help us by selling efficiency and whooping it up for rational prosperity! And when it comes to these blab-mouth, fault-finding, pessimistic, cynical university teachers, let me tell you that during this golden coming year it's just as much our duty to bring influence to have those cusses fired as it is to sell all the real estate and gather in al lthe good shekels we can.

"'Not till that is done will our sons and daughters see that the ideal of American manhood and culture isn't a lot of cranks sitting around chewing the rag about their rights and their wrongs, but a God-fearing, hustling, successful, two-fisted regular guy, who belongs to some church with pep and piety to it, who belongs to the Boosters or the Rotarians or the Kiwanis, to the Elks or Moose or Red Men or Knights of Columbus or any one of a score of organizations of good, jolly, kidding, laughing, sweating, upstanding, lend-a-handing Royal Good Fellows, who plays hard and works hard, and whose answer to his critics is a square-toed boot that'll teach the grouches and smart alecks to respect the He-man and get out and root for Uncle Samuel, U.S.A.!'"

IV

Babbitt promised to become a recognized orator. He entertained a smoker of the Men's Club of the Chatham Road Presbyterian Church with Irish, Jewish, and Chinese dialect stories.

But in nothing was he more clearly revealed as the prominent citizen than in his lecture on "Brass Tacks Facts on Real Estate," as delivered before the class in sales methods at the Zenith Y.M.C.A.

The Advocate-Times reported the lecture so fully that Vergil Gunch said to Babbitt, "You're getting to be one of the classiest spellbinders in town. Seems 's if I couldn't pick up a paper without reading about your well-known eloquence. All this guff ought to bring a lot of business into your office. Good work! Keep it up!"

"Go on, quit your kidding," said Babbitt feebly, but at this tribute from Gunch, himself a man of no mean oratorical fame, he expanded with delight and wondered how, before his vacation, he could have questioned the joys of being a solid citizen.

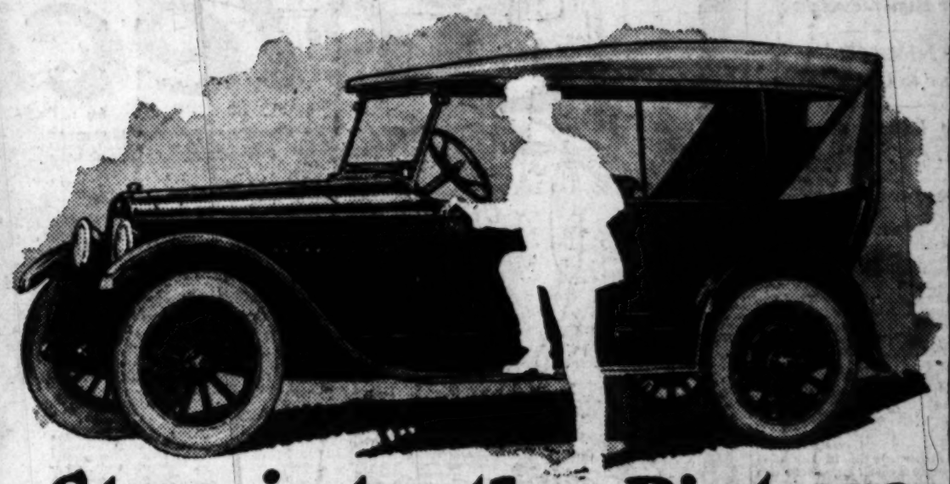
INTEGRITY Studebaker SERVICE



Step into the Picture and save $207.50!

YES—you can afford a finer car. "But the cost?" you ask. Why—it actually costs you 11.4% less to run a Studebaker Light Six than to operate the average lower-priced car!

It doesn't seem possible. Yet hundreds of Los Angeles men—who formerly thought they couldn't afford the luxury of a fine automobile—are today riding comfortably in a six-cylinder Studebaker.

And when the speedometer reads "25,000" miles, they have each made a saving of $207.50. To ride in the average lower-priced car—selling at from $700 to $1200—would have cost them $207.50 MORE in repairs and maintenance.

Now these men enjoy the prestige—the higher social standing—that comes with ownership of a high-quality automobile. They enjoy more comfortable riding—freedom from frequent repairs and delays. But most important of all—they are saving money every mile!

This startling discovery of Studebaker economy was made when auditors examined the automobile expense records of large Southern California corporations. They also found that cars priced below $700 cost only 4-100ths of a cent per mile less to operate. For 25 miles of comfortable, carefree riding in a Studebaker, you pay just one cent more than the cost of traveling the same distance in the lowest price class of cars. In 25,000 miles, six-cylinder comfort costs only $10 more. Isn't it well worth the difference?

Since these facts have been uncovered, dozens of local firms are replacing the lower-priced cars in their fleets with Studebaker Light Sixes—priced at $1210 delivered here. These firms find that men who drive Studebakers have greater pride and self confidence. They cover from 50% to 81% more miles every month. And the firms save thousands of dollars yearly!

These figures prove that you can afford a Studebaker. You actually save money by driving a Studebaker. Start that saving now. Phone 874-361 and a Studebaker Light Six will be delivered to your door. You can drive it and test it yourself.

PAPER MARK YET WILL BUY FOOD

Potatoes Cost Few Trillion Per Hundredweight

Berlin Jobless Driven by Hunger to One Thought

Farmers Willing to Sell if They Get Price

BY SIGFRIED SCHULTE
[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Ten pounds of potatoes, twenty eggs, three pounds of venison, four pounds of veal, a loaf of bread and a pound of butter were all I purchased in a trip through the country. I could have bought more potatoes, even with paper marks. While people stand in line for hours in Berlin buying potatoes for 5 gold marks ($1.25) per hundredweight, in the country north of Berlin you can buy the same amount of potatoes for 3 gold marks, paying in paper marks at the day's rate of exchange. I found not one single farmer who refused to sell small quantities of food for paper marks in the districts surrounding Berlin, where the crop has been good.

With an army of hungry and jobless I left Berlin—mostly a crowd of dreary men, women and youths, who knew but one thought—food.

SHOES FOR GRAIN

One shoemaker had two pairs of shoes along to trade for grain. One young couple had collected money from their whole family as a wedding present and were taking this trip to purchase potatoes for the wedding feast, and the first week's married life.

I went to Passewalk, formerly headquarters of the special guards of the former kaiserin. It now is a dead little country town. The bold, hungry food seekers scattered to surrounding villages. I found that they could all buy potatoes for paper marks, but their ambition often was higher—flour, grain and butter were their dream, but the farmers would like real money for those.

The town food seekers met keen competition. Dozens have dismissed their farm hands at every village. Farm laborers are migrating in big masses to the city.

I saw many jobless of all descriptions from the country near Passewalk trying to build cave-like dwellings, but the soil is soft and there are some rocks in the neighborhood, and every rain turns the carefully packed walls into soft, sliding mud. Now the would-be caves are frozen mud, and the days when the jobless could build a fire and roast potatoes begged from the farmers are gone. They are on the road. At the poor men's hotels in Passewalk dozens gather nightly.

FARMERS HAVE HEART

The loads the people were carrying to the station showed that the farmers had a heart. The young couple on their wedding trip returned with 300 pounds of potatoes and some grain, which, when skillfully roasted would be the best possible wedding coffee. The shoemaker whom I had seen on the morning train was chased from a village because he wanted 1300 pounds of rye for a pair of high boots, or $12, five times more than the peace time price.

Of seventeen farm houses where I called two were closed. The fifteen others were willing to sell small quantities of whatever they held for paper marks. There was thrift, bordering on poverty, among some, and of miserliness among others, but no trace of waste could be seen anywhere.

The food supply mentioned above cost 35,000,000,000,000 paper marks, which was about 50 per cent cheaper than the price in town, but the railroad ticket for the fifty-kilometer trip was almost 3,000,000,000,000 marks, or more than $1.

Seek to Annul Boy's Wedding to Elderly Woman

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

RIDGEFIELD (N. J.) Dec. 3.—Burton S. Tucker, 18 years of age, of Salem, Mass., and his 50-year-old bride, formerly Mrs. Susan O. Simpson, owner of the Hotel Pasadena in New York City, are living happily in South Ridgefield Park, apparently oblivious to the threats of the young husband's parents to have the marriage annulled.

Joseph Tucker, postmaster of Salem, the boy's father, has sought the aid of the prosecuter of Hudson county, New Jersey, not only to have the marriage annulled, but also in prosecuting persons suspected of having entered into a conspiracy to fraudulently obtain a marriage license.

"I am ordering an immediate investigation and hope to be ready to present the facts to the grand jury by the middle of the next week," Aloysus McMahan, assistant prosecutor, said at Jersey City today. "If this woman and this boy are guilty of perjury in this State, both will be punished. If anyone has aided in the perjury he will be punished also."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) Dec. 3.—The colored pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist Church has asked for police protection after receipt of a letter bearing skull and cross-bones and directing him to "leave town within a week or prepare to meet your God."

KING BENJAMIN LIVES IN SPIRIT

Davidite Leader's Soul in Temporary Hiding

Man in Sympathy With Belief Talks

Work Will Continue Despite Court Proceedings

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

IRONWOOD (Mich.) Dec. 3.—King Benjamin is dead, but his spirit still lives and rules the House of David, which he founded, and no power of the courts can overcome him or disperse his people.

That is the statement made on board a train between Iron River and Ironwood last week by George Norman Wiest, who said he was on his way home to Winnipeg after a visit with relatives at the Benton Harbor colony.

Wiest is not a member of the House of David, he said, but he is affiliated that he is in full sympathy with its doctrines and books of religious law. The conversation came about accidentally on the train. Wiest mentioned that he had just visited the colony, and this led to the inquiry:

"Did you meet King Benjamin?"

REINCARNATION EXPECTED

"Yes," declared Wiest seriously, "King Benjamin's body is dead. Only members of the inner council know where his body lies. Many, King Benjamin's wife, may know again, she may not. But soul is immaterial; for his soul—his immortal soul—still lives, and it is almost ready to be reincarnated in the body of a young man, a faithful member of the House of David. Then King Benjamin will go on with the ingathering—"

"What will happen to the soul of the young man?" he was asked.

"It will enter into rest," Wiest replied. "But that has no bearing on the case."

"Who is this young Davidite—what is his name?"

"That I do not know," Wiest answered. "I couldn't tell you anyway, for the time has not come to announce the transition to the world. Maybe it will not be announced—it may be that King Benjamin will choose to keep the identity of his new body a secret from all save his own people."

PURPOSE APPOINTED

"He is still seeking 'to gather the 144,000 elect?'" Wiest was asked.

"Certainly, and why not? Is he not the anointed, and is the ingathering not the sole purpose for which he was sent to earth?"

The strange light in Wiest's eyes was identical with that so often noted in the eyes of Davidites who testified at the one-man grand-jury investigation in Benton Harbor last summer. It was the gleam that lights up the face of the religious zealot. And it contrasted yet somehow fitted in with the gloomy, almost desolate region through which the train was passing—foreboding, mystical.

"King Benjamin came to serve God's purpose," Wiest declared. "No man-made court can hope to balk that purpose, for God will find a way to make mock of such interference."

FACTS LACKING

"How is this translation of souls to be effected?" Wiest was asked.

"I do not know that," he answered. "I am not of the elect—yet—and my information comes second-hand. But in the colony there are those who are watching for the return of King Benjamin's spirit. They know he is coming back."

"What move will Benjamin be likely to make to overcome the quo warranto proceedings now facing the colony to force it into receivership?"

"He will need to do nothing," Wiest asserted confidently. "Quo warranto proceedings may break up the corporation which holds title to all property of the colony, but these proceedings cannot compel the members to disperse. Dispersion of Israel is something its enemies cannot encompass."

DEITY'S WILL GOVERNS

Wiest was asked about the State's reported plan to seek the dispersion of the colony on the ground that it is a nuisance.

His countenance changed expression slightly.

"Members of the colony do not believe such an action will be started," he said. "God will prevent the bringing of an action like that. The virgin law is the will of God for the sanctity and purity of his elect people, and He will defend it."

OPERATIC STAR DINNER FEATURE

Mme. Schumann-Heink to Sing at Banquet

Whittier Anniversary Event Plans Shaping

Sale of Tickets Progressing With Speed

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

WHITTIER, Dec. 3.—Mme. Schumann-Heink, noted operatic and concert contralto, will sing for Whittier College. She is to appear at the $100,000 Whittier banquet at the Ambassador in Los Angeles the 17th inst., at which 1000 guests will pay $100 each for their plates in order to add to the Whittier endowment. The occasion is John Greenleaf Whittier's birthday.

Among the speakers at the banquet will be William G. McAdoo, Speaker Merriam of the Assembly, Senator Rominger, Mrs. Dr. Cowles, former president of the National Association of Women's Clubs, and possibly Gov. Richardson. The Governor has been invited, but has not yet given a definite answer.

FUND SOUGHT

The sale of tickets for the banquet is proceeding rapidly. Fifty business men selected by the Whittier Chamber of Commerce are canvassing this week, and many tables are being sold in the other towns of Southern California.

Whittier is seeking an endowment fund of $1,000,000, under the leadership of Dr. Walter F. Dexter, president of the college, who started an expansion campaign as soon as he came to the institution. One result has been the addition of 100 acres of rolling land to the campus. This was done by a local syndicate which purchased the Worsham ranch for $300,000 and is subdividing a portion of the ranch to make up the purchase price.

GIFT RECEIVED

Another result is the gift of $100,000 by A. Wardman of Whittier, which is to be used to build a boys' dormitory group. Plans for the group are being drawn by Allison & Allison, Los Angeles architects, and construction will start in January.

Mme. Schumann-Heink, who will be guest of honor and principal feature of the dinner, was 62 years of age last June and has been before the public as a concert and operatic singer forty-five years, but her wonderful contralto is still unimpaired and she is as great a favorite as ever.

GROWERS WARNED

State Standardization Law to be Enforced

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

EL CENTRO, Dec. 3.—Lettuce growers and shippers were told by Dist.-Aty. Utley today that they must expect to see the new State standardization laws enforced to the letter. The new laws require the proper labeling of all lettuce shipments and prohibits placing large heads on top with smaller ones beneath.

The District Attorney said that not only the growers and shippers would be held accountable for the proper packing and labeling of the thousands of carloads of lettuce to be shipped from the valley this season, but that he would also look to the packing contractors to see that the State laws were observed.

The meeting of lettuce men also was addressed by S. S. Rogers, Sacramento, representing State Horticultural Commissioner Hecke.

The musically inclined have been encouraged to hope that the Chamber of Commerce and interested citizens would provide the instruments and uniforms.

BRIDE ASKS SHERIFF TO FIND MATE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 3.—Somewhere in the cotton fields of Kern county there is a young bridegroom who is probably wondering why he does not hear from his 18-year-old bride whom he left in Brawley, Ark., a few months ago in order to come to California and build their love nest. And for the past week the young bride has been pining in a Bakersfield hotel, each day hoping to hear from her husband and to join him out in the fleecy fields of Kern. While the modern Evangeline does not consider her plight as serious so far, as that of her historic predecessor, her spirits are waning, and she has enlisted the aid of the Sheriff's office in locating her husband.

James Wilton left his bride in their old Arkansas home about two months ago and came to Bakersfield to go to work in the cotton fields near the city. During a brief slack period in cotton picking, Wilton worked on the road in Kern River Canyon but later returned again to the cotton fields and wrote his young bride of his success in finding employment in Kern county near Bakersfield, but giving no clearer directions as to his location than the general delivery window at the East Bakersfield postoffice.

SLAYER TRIAL OPENS

Defendant Charged With Fatal Fresno County Shooting

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

FRESNO, Dec. 3.—A dramatic accusation against the defendant by the slain man's buddy featured the opening today before Superior Judge J. E. Wooley of the trial of Leandro Castro on a charge of murdering Francisco De la Rosa on the M. F. Tarpey ranch near Clovis on September 27.

Called by the prosecution, Julio Flores, who was in an automobile with De la Rosa when the latter was shot to death, declared that Castro fired the first shots in the duel from the kitchen window of one of the ranch houses. De la Rosa was foreman of the ranch, and Castro, one of his employees, declared after the shooting that De la Rosa had "bawled him out."

Attorney H. F. Briggs, counsel for Castro, indicated at the opening of the trial that he intends to plead self-defense for the defendant.

POMONA HAS STRONG MAN

Policeman Carries Home Packing Case for Lumber and Finds Large Phonograph Inside

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

POMONA, Dec. 3.—The Pomona police department has just discovered a contender for the world's champion strong man of no mean ability in the person of Fred (Jack) Foster, husky patrolman in the local business section.

When approached upon the subject, Fred was reticent and refused to be interviewed but hero worshipers among his admirers in the local force have determined that full publicity be given his latest feat.

While passing the Ressler Music Company in his rounds Fred noticed a good-sized box that he thought would be useful for some carpentering he had planned at his home, so he asked the proprietor if he might have the same.

The storekeeper told him to take it along, so the next morning the modest policeman hoisted the box upon his manly shoulder and carried it to his home a mile distant. The incident was forgotten by both Fred and the music dealer until this morning when Paul Ressler reported that a $350 cabinet phonograph had been taken from his place of business in a very mysterious manner. As it happened Fred was also dissecting the "empty" box about the same time and was dumfounded when he found the latest in phonographs inside.

Music dealer and night patrolman met about the same time in the police station, one to tell a tale of woe, the other a string of alibis, with the result that Foster is now proclaimed to the world as champion phonograph mover and strong man.

Foster weighs 250 pounds and is six feet three inches tall. He is a World War veteran and while in France served in various engagements. A manager is being sought and local friends of the policeman hope to see him soon in some vaudeville circuit in his exclusive and original "phonograph-lifting act."

WOMAN DIES AFTER AUTO TURNS OVER

Two Others Are Seriously Injured When Machines Collide Near Anaheim

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

ANAHEIM, Dec. 3.—An internal hemorrhage and a fractured skull, suffered in an automobile accident near here last night, caused the death shortly before noon today of Mrs. U. G. Tolle, 2241 Olive street, Long Beach. She underwent an operation at the Anaheim Hospital following a collision between a car driven by her husband and one operated by R. L. Butcher, 3010 Elliott street, Long Beach.

Her husband and her daughter, Mrs. Walter Thorpe, also were seriously injured, but are expected to recover. Mr. Tolle is suffering from a fractured skull and Mrs. Thorpe is being treated for concussion of the brain. Mrs. Thorpe's 10-year-old son Philip and a friend, O. L. Edwards, escaped injury.

Bank Cashier at Long Beach Refuses to Make Positive Statement as to Identification

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Dec. 3.—Although still stoutly maintaining his innocence and with no positive identification made of him, J. R. Matlock, 28 years of age, oil worker, was still in the City Jail here, where he is held for further investigation of his whereabouts, last Friday when the Pike branch of the Pacific-Southwest Trust and Savings Bank was robbed of $3200.

Police announced yesterday that Matlock had been identified by D. T. Pilchard, assistant cashier at the bank, as the man who thrust a note under his nose at the teller's window Friday and left with money which he said he handed the bandit.

Pilchard was not so positive of the identification today, however, and declared he believes the bandit was a shorter man than is Matlock. As a result of Pilchard's failure to insist on the identification being correcte local policce today declared that reports to the effect that Matlock had been identified as the bank robber were incorrect.

"We have no direct evidence that the man now in jail is the bank robber, but we believe from his actions and from information in our possession that he may be implicated in the crime, although there is a possibility that we may be mistaken," Chief of Detectives Worley said today.

Up to a late hour Matlock had not been questioned to any great extent on the crime of which he is suspected.

Pasadena Opens Campaign of Education; Posters to Warn Drivers; Signals Planned

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Dec. 3.—As a means of lessening the number of traffic accidents that occur in Pasadena, City Manager Keiner recently announced the establishment of an all-year-round safety campaign. Plans for this campaign were worked out at a special municipal conference yesterday and will be put into force immediately.

According to Keiner, the campaign will be an educational one. Signs and posters will be distributed about the city and the fifteen-mile speed limit will be strictly enforced. Warning red light signals at intersections and other safety devices will take a prominent part in the campaign, he said.

More deaths have been caused by automobile accidents during the past month than in any month in the city's history, it was announced.

Here are some of the printed warnings that will be distributed about the city:

"Better lose a minute than lose a life.

"Don't jay walk.

"The careless driver is a criminal.

"Blinding headlights are dangerous and unlawful. How about yours.

"Help make Pasadena safe from careless drivers.

"The jay walker is taking a short cut to the hospital.

LONG BEACH IS BLOCKED IN GAS PLAN

Company Wants to Retain Franchise Rights While Selling Plant

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent.

LONG BEACH, Dec. 3.—Because the Southern Counties Gas Company in its agreement to sell its local gas plant to the city of Long Beach desired to retain its constitutional franchise Long Beach may not get into the gas-selling business for some time to come, it was said here today by City Attorney Brown.

A legal tangle may develop that will prevent the formal transfer of property over to the city until such time as the gas company is willing to transfer also its franchise, it was pointed out.

"The city must without question have the franchise along with the property," Brown said. "It must have an unquestionable right at all times to serve everyone in the city who wants such gas service, including the Southern California Edison Company. This is vital from a legal point of view, as the question of municipal ownership is involved."

Over 50% by Water

Demand increases for vessels to transport lumber produced on the Pacific Coast. Over 50% of orders being booked by lumber manufacturers are for water delivery.

Since the DOLLAR PORTLAND LUMBER CO. is controlled by the largest cargo-carrier on the Pacific—The Robert Dollar Co.—it enjoys splendid shipping advantages.

For conservative investment we recommend Dollar Portland 7's, priced to yield full 7%.

MEXICAN WEST COAST CROPS

Many Products Similar to the "States'" Best Output

Proposed Tariff Reductions Interest California

Imperial Lettuce; New Citrus Rates; Gas Earnings

Coffee, cotton, rice, sugar, tobacco, wheat, and "garbanzos" are grown on the West Coast of Mexico, but none of these crops interests the United States as much as the toothsome tomato, which was introduced into that territory by American colonists fifteen years ago and the output of which is exported almost exclusively to the United States. Railroad officials and planters estimate the exportation of tomatoes to the United States this year at 2000 carloads.

This interesting industry is centralized in two main districts of the State of Sinaloa, the Fuerto River Valley in the north and in several valleys of the south, according to a handbook on the Mexican West Coast and Lower California, by Trade Commissioner P. L. Bell, just issued by the Department of Commerce. The soil of Sinaloa is made up of river wash from the mountains and of lowlands which are virtually tidal plains. In the lower part of the Fuerte Valley the tomatoes are grown on heavy adobe soils, and in Southern Sinaloa on fine yellowish brown silt. Practically no fertilizer is used, though in some fields, which were running out, guano has been tried without result. Apparently there is no nitrogen deficiency in the soil, as the vines flourish like poison ivy.

Besides tomatoes, melons and winter vegetables are shipped to the United States. Sixty-five cars of cantaloupes crossed the border in the season 1921-22. Grapefruit does well in the Hermosillo and Yaqui Valley districts of Sonora, where conditions are much like those of California, and dates, figs, etc., are produced on the Gulf side of Lower California. Grapes, bananas, and alligator pears are grown in quantities. The alligator pear is reported to be the chief article of diet of the common people. The "garbanzo" (chick-pea) industry does not greatly interest Americans, as the bulk of the large crop is consumed locally or exported to Spain or West Indian islands.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS

A persistent effort sponsored by importers is now being made to secure a reduction in the tariff on several California products, including lemons, beans, walnuts, almonds and quicksilver, according to a letter from Congressman Arthur M. Free to T. C. Tucker, general manager of the California Almond Growers' Exchange.

Free states that the proponents of a lower tariff have two schemes in mind in approaching the problem of securing a reduction on the above California products. First they plan to persuade the President, under the authority given him by the recent Tariff Act, to reduce the schedules on imports competing with lemons, beans, walnuts, almonds and quicksilver, and, secondly, to get a reduction by an act of Congress.

LETTUCE SHIPMENTS

Freight traffic officials of the Southern Pacific are preparing to handle approximately 11,000 cars of Imperial Valley lettuce this season from about 20,000 acres planted to the product. The first cars of the season left Brawley and El Centro on November 30, and were placed in the fast perishable-freight trains running to the large eastern markets where Imperial lettuce commands fancy prices.

The movement is expected to increase to fifty cars daily by the 15th inst, and to 150 cars each day by January 1.

NEW CITRUS RATE

Lower freight rates on eastbound citrus shipments, amounting to a reduction of approximately 360 a car, went into effect yesterday, and resulted in an unusually heavy movement. Approximately 400 cars, which had been held back awaiting the new rates, left from shipping points in both Central and Southern California.

The orange crop in Central California is reported to be later than last yaer because of the tardiness of the fruit in meeting the color standards. The reverse is true in Southern California, and the crop is moving eastward at a satisfactory rate of progress.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

A series of public relations conferences are to be held by the Santa Fe's legal department and will be attended by officials and other representatives of the lines, for the purpose of discussing matters vital to the railroad and to the shipping public. The idea is a result of President W. B. Storey's campaign to educate and inform those who are dependent upon the prosperity of the railroads what conditions actually are in the transportation business.

The meetings will be held at Albuquerque, N. M.; Phoenix, Ariz., and in Los Angeles on the 10th inst. S. T. Bledsoe, general counsel for the Santa Fe, and Gardiner Lathrop, general solicitor, both of Chicago, will conduct the conferences.

GAS EARNINGS

Net earnings of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation for the month of October, as released through Bond & Goodwin & Tucker, Inc., show a total of $385,116.61, an increase of $95,098.26 over the same month of 1922. Gross earnings were $988,520.54, compared with $851,890.87 for October of 1922.

For the twelve months ended October 31, net earnings totaled $4,681,472.46, or a gain of $1,102,056.23 over the previous period. The balance for dividends and surplus amounted to $2,113,518.01, as compared with $1,640,798.32.

DAILY TRADE TALK

New Railroad to Link West Coast of Mexico and United States in Closer Trade Relations

Prediction that much closer trade relations will be established within the next few years between California cities and those on the West Coast of Mexico is contained in an article published recently in a special Mexican edition of New York Commercial.

It is declared that Guadalajara, now the second city of Mexico, will be notable in growth upon completion of the Southern Pacific's new line that will link that city with Tepic and other West Coast cities.

In this regard, the article states:

"The completion of the line of the railroad, which is expected in about two years, will bring Guadalajara in direct communication with the States of Nayarit, Sinaloa and Sonora on the West Coast, and with Nogales, Tucson, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other commercial centers of the Pacific Coast of the United States.

"Today the capital of the State of Jalisco is entirely cut off by direct rail from these regions, which are its logical markets, and for which it should be the distributing center because of its location.

"Guadalajara, now the second city of the republic, with a population of 170,000, a modern capital of great beauty, clean and sanitary, with a 'climate of eternal June,' the center of a rich agricultural district, was of little importance in the commercial life of Mexico until the railroad joining it to the Port of Manzanillo and Mexico City was built. But the good that came in the train of the inauguration of that road will be small as compared with what the Southern Pacific will do for it, in the opinion of competent observers."

After describing Guadalajara and resorts in its vicinity, the article says concerning the State of Jalisco:

"In the State of Jalisco there is a cotton-spinning industry of importance; over fifty sugar mills, most of them small, but equipped with modern machinery; the product of a large brewery enjoys a wide sale in Western Mexico; there are many soap factories, hosiery workshops, tanneries, shoe factories, iron foundries a brass foundry, many distilleries manufacturing alcohol from cane and maguey; the Chapala Hydro-electric and Irrigation Company, with a capital of $11,000,000, generates about 14,000 horsepower from the famous Juanacatlan Falls, transmitting power to the cities of Jalisco and to the mining camps of El Favor, Amparo, Cinco Minas and Espada, the charge for power being $60 per horsepower per annum.

"When the road is completed business men and salesmen from the Eastern States can go into Mexico through Brownsville, Laredo or El Paso, cover the entire republic and return through the Nogales gateway to attend to their business on the Pacific Coast and Mountain States of this country before returning home, thereby saving at least three days, as compared with the present means of making this journey."

"The West Coast of Mexico," it is declared, "is where California was sixty years ago."

COTTON LETTER

A. A. Housman & Co.'s closing cotton letter:

A big wave of selling just after the opening caused a sharp downward fluctuation in cotton which rather took the room by surprise. The market rallied afterwards, however, and backed and filled all the low prices in the last hour being made on liquidation supposed to be for the large Wall-street operator.

An analysis of the early selling led to the belief that it was in advance on the information as to the amount ginned to November 20. The figure, however, was not made public. This supposition and a crop estimate of 9,900,000 by the Commercial Appeal increased crop ideas and brought in quite a lot of selling orders to take profit on long cotton. London was said to be a large seller at one time. There was no particular news during the session. If the trade get the idea that Washington will make an estimate around 10,000,000 on the 12th, the market may meet it at a lower level than this.

COTTON IN GRIP OF REACTIONARY PARTY

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Cotton futures displayed a pronounced reactionary tendency in mixed trading today. But a poor response was made to better Liverpool cables and after the opening the list broke sharply under enormous selling by the South and local commission house traders. Western operators were also heavy sellers and it was reported the West was taking a bearish view of the cotton situation, as a whole. A slight rally in mid-session was followed by professional selling for a reaction again in the afternoon when a list reached new low ground for the day. Subsequently the market came back about 1-4 cent a pound, but the close, while considerably above the day's low, was 73 to 83 points under the previous finals.

Spot cotton was quiet, 90 points decline 36.75 for middling upland.

Bringing Chicago To Los Angeles

Residents of Chicago know the monogram at the left (above) is the stamp of a $50,000,000 organization — the widely known Central Manufacturing District of Chicago, which is the largest privately owned industrial community in the world.

The same men who have so successfully developed and managed the Chicago district since its inception, fifteen years ago, are now duplicating the plan here, and in this connection we are offering the Central Mfg. District of Los Angeles First Mortgage Bonds as a thoroughly sound and profitable investment. Maturities 1926 to 1938 are available as you may prefer.

We believe in the worth of these Bonds not only because of the character, experience and tremendous resources of the men behind this organization, but because of the ample security pledged, the earning power demonstrated to date, the guarantee by the parent corporation (which has a Net Worth of $6,284,691.) the high type of improvements being constructed, etc. Let us forward a descriptive circular which explains further. No obligation.

EXEMPT FROM PERSONAL PROPERTY TAXES IN CALIFORNIA

Underlying bonds of the Pacific Electric Railway System, owned through stock ownership by the Southern Pacific Company and operated as a distributing system for Southern California. The largest electric system in the world.

Recommended by Us for the Following Reasons:

1. Are obligations of an immense public utility company, which is inseparably linked with the development of Southern California

2. Due to the temporary decline in bond prices they can be purchased now at bargain prices to yield an attractive return over a long period of years.

3. Since their issuance over a score of years ago, Sinking Fund payments have always been fully and promptly met, thereby reducing each year the outstanding indebtedness.

4. The bonds are not callable before maturity.

5. In a rising bond market, sound discount bonds are the first to appreciate in value and as a consequence in addition to being an attractive permanent investment offer an opportunity for profit in advance of their maturity.

BOND QUOTATIONS

Mexican Issues Drop

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Postponement until later in the week of the expected announcement of a time limit for the deposit of bonds under the Mexican debt agreement plan influenced a sharp decline in Mexican bonds in today's bond market. Both the 4s and 5s continued upward in the forenoon but fell off quickly in the later trading, the 5s closing 1¾ lower and the 4s off fractionally.

Some improvement was recorded in the industrial and public utility groups, although the net changes generally were small. The buying orders were scattered including a few oils, coppers and rails. The sale of a sizeable block of American Telephone and Telegraph 4s of 1936 carried that issue down more than a point.

Good buying was evident among a considerable list of western railroad mortgages in the forenoon but with a few exceptions the trend was downward toward the close. Substantial gains, however were recorded by Chicago Great Western 4s, Chicago and Alton 3½s and New Orleans, Texas and Mexico income 5s.

Moderate improvement was registered by active United States government bonds.

Bankers announced early in the day the oversubscription of an offering of $12,500,000 St. Paul Union Depot bonds. Early offerings of an issue of about $10,000,000 Mapland Oil bonds were reported in the financial district.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Following are the closing quotations on bonds listed on the New York Stock Exchange. Furnished by Logan & Bryan, 636 South Spring street.

NEW YORK CURB

Mixed Prices

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Mixed price changes took place in today's curb market with the major activity on the down side. Magnolia Petroleum, up 2¾, was the outstanding strong stock among the active oil shares which were bought on reports of another reduction in the output of the Powell field.

Gains of a point or more also were registered by Gulf of Pennsylvania, Continental, Ohio Oil, Standard Oils of Kansas and Kentucky and South Pennsylvania Oil. Penn-Mex Fuel dropped more than 4 points.

A drop of 12 points, 5 of which later recovered in New York Transit which recently declared a dividend of 50 cents a share as against two previous payments of 62 each, featured the industrial list.

Stutz Motors and Glen Alden Coal each dropped about a point. West Virginia Paper and Pulp's 800,000 shares of no par value were admitted to trading, one sale taking place at 49¾.

Establishment of another new high record by Hawthorne mines at 64 and the recovery of United Verde Extension's recent substantial loss featured the mining list, trading in which was again centered in the penny shares.

Following are the closing quotations on the New York Curb market. Furnished by Logan & Bryan, members of the New York Stock Exchange, 636 South Spring street.

NEW EXCHANGE RULE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—The New York Stock Exchange, it was learned today, has adopted a new rule requiring all members receiving questionnaires concerning their financial condition, to state their position as of the day of receipt instead of within any time of fourteen days as heretofore. While official comment was withheld, it was reported that the purpose of this rule was to strengthen the exchange's supervision over its members and to prevent a shifting of amount possible under the old regulations.

WEEKLY COPPER MARKET REVIEW

Steady Production Increase With Lower Costs

Forty Per Cent of Output is Shipped Overseas

Surplus Continues to Grow, but Does Not Alarm

BY CHARLES F. WILLIS,
Editor "Arizona Mining Journal."

The heavy sales of copper during the past fortnight, both for domestic and foreign consumption have been responsible for the firmness of the copper price at 13¾ cents, with a prospect of an early increase, as it is probable that a copper buying wave is under way. The month of October was a month of records in the copper industry; the largest month's production this year, a new high mark for peace-time production, a rate of the highest annual production and the highest increase in shipments in over two years.

There has been a steady increase in production with a view to getting lower costs, even though it was known that the market could not absorb all of the copper. It is appreciated that the world need of copper is, however, greater than can be supplied. This uplift in copper is all the more noteworthy the fact of October's production suits.

Refined output last month amounted to nearly 230,000,000 pounds, an increase of 30,000,000 over September. Not only is this the largest month's production this year, but it sets a new high mark for peace-time production of refined copper.

This is the third successive month that production has topped the 200,000,000-pound mark. In the first ten months of 1923, therefore, there has been produced almost 1,900,000,000 pounds of copper, and in October alone output was running at the rate of nearly 2,800,000 pounds annually—another record. A significant feature of the copper situation is that the American capacity has jumped from 1,500,000,000 pounds annually before the war to 2,800,000,000 at the present time.

The supplies of copper in Germany are known to be very low, as Germany has been off the market for some time. This country is now permitted to sell manufactured copper products more cheaply abroad than at home, in order to collect foreign currency, and thus Germany is again in the buying column for some quantity of the metal.

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Foreign and domestic shipments during October came back sharply. They totaled 209,000,000 pounds, an increase of 48,000,000 pounds in the month, and the highest in the last two years. Of the total 85,600,000 pounds went overseas, or about 40 per cent. In the first ten months of 1923, therefore, foreign shipments of refined metal have amounted to 661,500,000 pounds, or about 35 per cent.

The potentialities of foreign consumption are great, far greater than the European countries can finance, in fact, it is estimated that the copper business with Germany is only about 30 per cent of their actual needs. Large though these shipments were, they fell short 21,000,000 pounds behind the refined output last month. There was consequently an increase in refined stocks—a large part of which represent copper sold but not delivered—bringing surplus up to 274,000,000 pounds, the highest of any month in over a year.

The continued increase in surplus has not reached a stage where it gives cause for alarm. The published statement of Gordon Campbell, president of the Calumet and Arizona Mining Company, that curtailment was inevitable has been widely quoted, but Mr. Campbell says that he was misquoted. The curtailment suggested was not because of any demoralization of the industry, or even because of a dangerous surplus, but rather because of the continued low price, which might cause some curtailment of the high-cost producers.

Cleveland H. Dodge of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation stated in a recent informal talk: "Germany, once the heaviest buyer of copper, will furnish hundreds of thousands of pounds of fabricated copper and electrical machinery for the remainder of Europe when it gets back on its feet. The country has had ten years of its life wiped out, and it will take many years for it to get back to normal conditions, but in the meantime the United States has increased its consumption enormously."

LOS ANGELES EXCHANGE

Traders displayed only a cursory interest in speculative shares yesterday on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. In the dealings in the oil list prices pointed downward in such issues as Union Oil Associates and Standard of California, while in the mining group Tom Reed ran contrary to the trend by advancing 4 cents. Bonds were firm and unchanged.

Opening at 47⅝, Union Oil Associates dropped off ⅜ of a point to 46½ and Union of California lost ½ point at 106. Standard Oil of California yielded ⅞ at a final price of 55.

Tom Reed forged upward 4 cents to 61½, while United Eastern was declining 2 cents to 1.04. Telluride sold at 21½ and Gold Dust at 7⅛ cents, off 1 cent.

Transactions in Los Angeles Investment were executed at 1.90, unchanged, and Los Angeles Gas preferred climbed ⅛ of a point to 89⅜.

Sales were made in Union of California 6s of 1925 at 99, in Pacific Gas and Electric 7s of 1940 at 106⅝, and in San Joaquin Light and Power series C 6s of 1950 at 96⅜.

GRAIN TRADERS SEEK ATTENTION

Speculators Think Federal Aid Appropriate

World Situation in Need of Lower Output

Liberal Corn Movement View Held by Some

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—While politicians and governmental officials are devoting time to discussing the need of aid by the agricultural districts, grain speculators think they might also give special attention to them and the grain trade generally, which is in need of help in the way of reduced taxation.

If a hedging market in wheat is to be preserved, which is the desire of the government and of leading politicians there will have to be a reduction in the taxes on trades and a speedy modification in the grain futures act and restoration of privilege trading. Speculators have been carrying the load in wheat for six months and are getting tired as they are receiving no help from the outside public.

SUPPLY LOAD LARGE

There are 75,000 bushels in the visible supply of wheat being carried by speculators. It is the largest load in years and speculators are in raptures over the condition. The impression of the trade is that the United States is on a domestic basis and that prices abroad should have no influence on values here. At one time last week Chicago traders bought May wheat in Liverpool at 2½ to 3 cents over May here. This is too narrow a difference, as it costs more than 20 cents a bushel to ship wheat from Chicago to Liverpool.

Taking the world's wheat situation there is necessity for a radical reduction in output if producers in Australia, Argentina and India are to prosper, as they can make comparatively little money by raising wheat at present prices. An advance of 10 to 20 cents a bushel would help the producer a great deal without injuring the consumer.

FAMINE LOOMS

Reports from Russia suggest a partial famine, despite the claims of large crops. This is not unusual for that country as distributing facilities are so poor that one section can starve while another is exporting.

The big changing operations suggest to the wheat trade that their objective is the stabilizing of values by those who have large interests in other lines that are likely to be affected adversely by a material lowering of wheat values. It is said they can afford to lose a lot of money and make it up elsewhere.

The bulk of the December wheat contracts have been changed over into May, with considerable in the July. One estimate made by a trader Saturday placed the estimate easily at 25,000,000 bushels changed within two weeks, which many in the trade believe a low estimate. The spread has ranged from 5 to 6 1-4, with the close at 5 5-8 discount for the December Saturday.

OATS STEADY

Low grades of corn have declined to a discount under the December, with No. 3 grades about December price. The trade is looking for a larger movement, which is due at this season. There are so many holes, however, to be filled up that it may take a liberal movement for the next thirty days or more to bring supplies up to normal. In the meantime the trade is to wrestle with the supply and proposition. December declined on liquidating sales to nearly 2 cents under the May at one time, with the close at 1⅛ cents discount, while recently it was 3-cent premium.

Cash interests have been large sellers of December oats. Scattered speculative holders have also sold and December trades have been largely transferred to May at 1 3-4 to 2 cents difference. There is no pressure on oats from the country and good cash premiums prevail, while the movement is not large.

SAVINGS GROW AT GREAT RATE

Thrifty Ones Add a Billion in Just One Year

Per Capita Increase Large Despite Drawbacks

Bank Strength is Also Shown by Surplus Gains

BY ARTHUR D. WELTON

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

[Copyright, 1923, Public Ledger.]

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Statistics of savings banks and trust companies gathered by the American Bankers Association show that the American people have on deposit in the form of savings accounts, $18,373,062,000. The amount increased over $1,000,000,000 in the year ending June 30 last and the report says that savings constitutes 52 per cent of all bank deposits.

Statistical information as to savings accounts has been difficult to get. The reports of the comptroller of the currency have given the information as to national banks, and a guess as to the savings in others, but national banks are primarily commercial banks and their savings departments are of recent development. Their total savings deposits are now less than 20 per cent of the total.

The statistics confirm the view that saving is the rule in the older and industrial sections of the country. New England banks have $3,121,000,000 of such deposits and the division described as the New England and Middle Atlantic have over $10,000,000,000. It is also noted that in the division by banks that the mutual savings bank holds $6,272,000,000 in such deposits or one-third of the total. Mutual savings banks, having no capital stock, are the rule in New England, New York and Pennsylvania. There are a few elsewhere; one in Cleveland; one in Minneapolis, several in California and outside of the business, savings deposits are arranged by the ordinary stock bank and trust company.

Of course, some of the owners of these deposits believe that these banks are merely places for the safe keeping of their funds. But savings banks like all other banks are instruments for the gathering and investment of capital. The particular function of the savings institution is to gather the driblets and invest it for the benefit of the depositors and itself. The savings depositors are the owners of billions of capital.

PER CAPITA INCREASE

The report shows a great growth in the deposits of savings banks in the years. For instance, the per capita increase in New England is from $245 in 1912 to $405 in 1923; in the South it has advanced from $18 to $45; in the West Central States from $40 to $94 with corresponding increases elsewhere. These figures are the more significant because during the latter part of this ten-year period of incentive to direct investment of surplus funds has become very much greater. It is not unlikely that the direct investments of these savers have become as large as their savings accounts. There is an increasing tendency to buy and own bonds without the intervention of the savings banks.

Considered in its entirety these new figures give some idea of the enormous increase in the country's wealth as it is stated in terms of dollars. It is because it is stated in terms of dollars and the condition in 1912 is taken as the basis of comparison that allowances must be made. The dollar of today is not what it was ten years ago. The tremendous wage increases and the high cost of living have brought savings to a new point, without, however, considering such things as purchasing the power of the dollar and the "money wages" the figures leave no room for doubt that the habit of saving has become general. If there is not a better and wider distribution of wealth, such a conclusion is out of accord with the data.

The increase in savings as shown by deposits in banks brings credit to the banks themselves. They have, within the statistical period covered, made radical changes in their methods of getting business. They practiced thrift, until it has become a word of real meaning. They have advertised and in so doing and supporting the promise of their advertisements, they have taken much of the old mystery out of banking and brought about a better and broader understanding of what banks are for and what they do. There is assurance that the aggressiveness of the banks will be not only continued but increased. The small town and country banks are becoming more and more alert and alive to the fact that if they want business they must go after it.

There is, however, another method of accumulating capital which probably is most important as it is resulting in the greatest annual additions to the country's capital. This comes from the surplus accumulations of corporations and business enterprises. These are carried in banks or invested in short-time securities and they constitute the funds toward which the radicals, in politics and out, are looking with longing eyes for additional taxes.

DECISION ON FEDERAL FOREST RESERVE FUND

SUPREME COURT GIVES TO STATES DISCRETION IN DISBURSEMENT

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Federal forest reserve moneys appropriated by Congress, paid to States and by them distributed to the counties need not be disbursed by the counties equally for public road and public school purposes, the Supreme Court held today in a case brought by King county, Washington, against Seattle school district No. 1.

The county contended that it was vested with discretion in the disbursement of the money, but the Federal Court for Western Washington did not take that view and its decision was affirmed by the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals. This was reversed today.

In its decision today the Supreme Court held that money derived from forest reserves belongs absolutely to the States when turned over to them.

Voters of Hungary must be 20 years of age and have paid State taxes for two years.

MARKET POWER IS IMPRESSIVE

Character of Support Given Proves Encouraging

Heavy Financing Forecasted by Banking Houses

Cotton Predictions Making Good; Money Demand

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—More than ever is Wall street impressed with the character of backing which the constructive stock market movement is receiving, and if one factor outshines all others in this respect it is the open confession by George F. Baker of his belief in the future of the country's prosperity. Away from Wall street the importance of the expressed views of this banker may seem to be exaggerated, but in the midst of the financial district there is no measure which may overstate this situation. Mr. Baker's investments are among the greatest of the land. He is chairman of the board of the First National Bank. Until recently he has been considered the "silent man of Wall Street" and his predictions for the future are well-founded, and of the utmost importance to banker and business man alike.

Financing of large sums is believed to be in the planning and among banking houses the statement is made that much of it is to be for railroad account. Of the industrial group it is not unlikely that the oil companies may make heavy demands for the handling of huge stocks of crude oil now above ground. There also is heard serious discussion of foreign loan possibilities of financial aid to Central Europe through the medium of an international syndicate.

The horizon is somewhat mixed as Congress takes its seat at the Capitol, but against this view and somewhat overshadowing it is the almost complete change of sentiment affecting business. First and foremost is the current inclination among corporation managements to pay out from overflowing treasuries some of their holdings in the form of extra or increased cash dividends. Some already are on record, and others are promised for the near future. Continued record demand for transportation facilities is enabling railroads to keep up their record of car-loadings to above 1,000,000 weekly and the present indication is that for the first time the leading carriers are to report for this year a billion-dollar gross revenue.

TAX REDUCTION

And while these things are in the immediate future there is looming up the growing favorable response to Secretary Mellon's program for tax reduction, not only for the intendent relief to the taxpayers but for the broader aspect in which capitalists are to find incentive for further expanding their energies which, in the long run, must accrue to the benefit of business and industry in general.

That a turn has come upon certain industries is the conclusion reached from price advances lately effected in pig iron and crude oil, and, while these seemingly have not been made general, they are considered a step in the right direction. Copper metal, too, had its period of improvement, but the demand apparently has been temporarily satisfied and, due to the speculative element ever present in this industry, prices are now back again close to their recent low levels.

As, in oil, the copper industry is, according to the Wall-street theory, facing a situation in which consolidations are to be undertaken, and these are thought to be now under discussion. The silver industry, cut adrift from a government pegged price, is seeking relief from what it considers to be a serious condition, and this may develop out of plans for merged efforts in foreign markets where the Sherman law may not interfere, but there is in mind the fact that today similar efforts on the part of copper producers are not meeting with the anticipated success in marketing abroad.

MOTORS, COTTON, MONEY

If there is one encouraging surprise to which Wall street now is being treated it is that centering about the automobile industry, in which production is holding up remarkably well and one in which the most ambitious plans possible are being made for the early spring activities. That the point of saturation, of which much is heard, has not been reached is apparently the view of leaders of the motor-making concerns, as they seem to be preparing for new high-record output the coming year.

Cotton predictions are making good, and now that 35 cents has been reached several weeks ahead of the anticipated time it is suggested in trade circles that 40 cents is not altogether an unlikely price for Christmas. But the effect of such high prices on the finished-goods market is a thing which now is commencing to disturb banking circles, where they hold a belief that demand automatically is to be held back for the raw product.

The relatively small increase in the demand for funds in the face of an almost steadily advancing stock market is a topic of discussion and leads up to the response which the rank and file, so called, is making to the changed speculative conditions. Majority opinion secured in a canvass of leading commission-houses is that no more than between 15 and 20 per cent increase in public participation is noted, but the results of the broader market are somewhat varied, as wire houses naturally are getting a much larger proportion of the business than are those confining their operations within a more restricted territory.

DEPOSITORS ARE TO REOPEN TUCSON BANK

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Dec. 3.—New steps toward reorganization of the Tucson National Bank have been taken by fifty depositors, headed by L. E. Haydock. An offer has been made to contribute 25 per cent of the deposits toward a rehabilitation scheme. A California banker for some time has been looking into the bank's affairs, with an idea of here establishing it as a branch of the chain of banks.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

Eleven thousand barrels of daily new production were added to the output of Signal Hill field within the past forty-eight hours with the completion of three new wells. The new producers are the Harlow Kent No. 7, with 7000 barrels daily; the Neece No. 1, credited with an initial flow of 3000 barrels and the K & H No. 4, said to be flowing at the rate of 1000 barrels a day.

All three wells are in the same territory north of Willow street and between Orange and Cherry avenue. The Harlow Kent blew in

GOLD

If Standard Gold Mining Co. was a mere prospect—no matter how promising — we would not recommend stock purchase.

But we are convinced that it is a REAL gold mine in a proven California GOLD district. Besides it has already produced MILLIONS. A water tragedy years ago forced abandonment with other millions in sight. Giant electrically operated modern pumps have recently reclaimed this treasure trove and there are the glittering gold veins as of yore ready to yield more millions.

Startling certified assays have convinced us. All that awaits is the installation of a modern hoist already purchased. Mill, costing $100,000 all ready for operation. Sixty feet additional development brings production from five rich veins. Transportation at hand. Rich "high grade" running thousands of dollars per ton should yield splendid profits, of which five per cent DIVIDENDS are payable every 60 days.

All we ask is to show you what we have seen. Then you will want some of our limited shares at 50c per share. Oil is down but GOLD is up. Therefore buy GOLD or trade your less attractive stocks for which we will give our best services FREE from commission charges.

Let us convince YOU. Open every evening till nine o'clock for this purpose. Ask for Mr. Sadler, who will SHOW you—give you the PROOF. Do not buy unless CONVINCED.

Please send me full particulars without obligation about Standard Gold Mining Stock.

DRUG KING SUSPECT HELD

Jaima, Known as "The Crow," Captured in Drear Surroundings After Long Chase

After weeks of relentless pursuit through the dark nooks of Los Angeles' underworld, and through secluded canyons of near-by hills, Police Lieutenants McD. Jones and Littlejohn of the narcotic squad quietly arrested Felix Jaima, alias "The Crow," and held him at the City Hall on a State Poison Act charge.

According to the police, the man is the leader of one of the most powerful and dangerous rings of drug peddlers operating here in recent years. His first lieutenant, known to the authorities as "El Diablo," and feared in the underworld circles almost as much as "The Crow" himself, missed arrest by a few minutes.

SPIRIT BROKEN

"The Crow" was taken into custody in a room at 106 North Los Angeles street. The much-desired two guns the man is said to have carried for years and all evidence of a "bad man" were found by the officers say. Ere captured by the weeks of chase, both in body and spirit, the sustenance was cornered in a dingy room and surrendered himself without a fight. A few weeks ago the police confiscated his automobile and at that time on have been on the trail every day, the arresting officers said.

Jaima, "El Diablo" and several of their followers were members of the ring that used a barricaded cave in the hills back of Lincoln Park when their last retreat was uncovered by the police, the officers declare. Lena Barillo, suspected of being the brains of the ring, and at one time "queen" of the cave, is now in jail. She was arrested some days ago in San Bernardino, when she came out of her mountain hiding place and was recognized by the officers searching for her.

FEAR PRESENT

"We have been on the trail of 'The Crow' for a long time," Lieutenant McD. Jones said yesterday. "His name has been a byword in the underworld for a long time, but he was a difficult man to trace because everyone feared him. His associates always told of the two loaded revolvers he carried with him and of the threats made to 'get' anyone who tried to arrest him."

USES HER FISTS ON RIVAL

Separation Suit Follows Attack on Other Woman by Mrs. Edna Brown in Hotel

How she engaged in a fist fight with another woman in a South Broadway street hotel for the love of her husband, who, with other guests, was a ringside spectator at the encounter, was recounted in a suit for separate maintenance brought by Mrs. Edna Brown against O. J. Brown, who named Mrs. Lola La Mont as the other woman, was filed yesterday.

In her complaint Mrs. Brown charged her husband with extreme cruelty. She stated she and Brown had separated over Mrs. La Mont on October 17, 1921, while the couple were living in Butte, Mont. On that date, she asserted, Brown left home and went to Portland, Or., where Mrs. La Mont was then residing. However, according to the complaint, he later relented and returned to Los Angeles, where, upon his promise to give up Mrs. La Mont, he resumed marital relations with Mrs. Brown in June, 1922.

STRIKES HUSBAND

He failed to live up to the agreement, and Mrs. Brown later found him in the hotel, where he was occupying a room next to that of Mrs. La Mont and her husband, Mrs. Brown continued.

On October 19 last, Mrs. Brown began to wait for her husband at the hotel, and he came in late in the evening in company of Mrs. La Mont, the plaintiff declared, adding that on that occasion she confronted him and he denied that she was his wife or that he knew her. Later, Mrs. Brown says, she struck Mrs. La Mont and some one found it necessary to call the police.

ASKS MAINTENANCE

It was on the following evening, during a similar meeting with Brown and Mrs. La Mont, that the fistic battle between the two women were in, according to the complaint. Mrs. Brown was also declared to have been seen kissing the co-respondent one evening while Mr. La Mont was repairing his automobile.

Mrs. Brown asked $25 a week and a division of community property, she said consisted of a soft-drink stand and lunch counter on South Spring street.

The Browns were married in Helena, Mont., April 28, 1919, and parted August 13, 1922, according to the complaint, which was prepared by the law firm of Verge, Dewey & Calhoun.

PRISONER FOR MANY YEARS GOES IN 'AGAIN

After spending seventeen years in different State prisons, Fred S. Cox, 61 years of age, is going back again. He appeared before Parole Reese yesterday and admitted that he had only left the Michigan State prison at Jackson two months when he arrived in Los Angeles and was arrested for petty, an offense which had led him to serve two other terms in prison. He said that he had served 15 years in Michigan and previously two years in the Colorado State prison. The prisoner pleaded guilty and, waiving time for sentence, asked to "have it over with." He was sentenced to Folsom prison for from one to fifteen years. It was understood that the man, who said he was ill, had served prison to vain efforts to "make good" while at liberty.

DR. BARBER DIES AT HIS SON'S HOME

Brief Illness Following Thanksgiving Day Visit Proves Fatal

Dr. D. C. Barber, prominent physician of Los Angeles for the past thirty years and at one time in charge of the County Infirmary for a period of twelve years, passed away Sunday night at the home of his son, Allen Barber at Blythe, after a brief illness. Dr. and Mrs. Barber had gone to Blythe for a Thanksgiving Day visit.

The deceased resided at 663 South Harvard Boulevard and had offices in the Merchants National Bank Building. He was a Shriner and a member of the Knights Templars.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The remains will be received today by the Ruppe mortuary, 342 South Figueroa street.

Woman Faints as Jail Looms; Gets Probation

Standing before Judge Conklin yesterday to receive sentence after she had pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery and asked for leniency, Mrs. Helen Osborne, 24 years of age, a secretary, who had just witnessed the sentencing of three others to San Quentin penitentiary and the County Jail, found the ordeal too much for her nerves and fainted into the arms of her attorney just as the court admitted her to probation.

She was taken into the judge's chambers by the bailiff and a woman attendant and revived. When Mrs. Osborne regained consciousness her attorney informed her that she would not have to go to San Quentin and she left the courtroom smiling.

Mrs. Osborne told the court it was her first offense and that she had forged checks on downtown department stores at the suggestion of an acquaintance.

REALTORS INITIATED BY BOARD

Membership Increased by 750; Honesty in Selling Property Urged

Seven hundred and fifty real-estate salesmen, employees of Los Angeles realtors, were initiated into membership in the Los Angeles Realty Board last night. The new members will form the salesmen's division of the board, a branch which for some months has been under organization.

Harry H. Culver presided as chairman of the meeting, Edwin A. Hart, president of the board, delivering the address of welcome. Mr. Culver stressed the importance of organization for the purpose of raising the standards of the real estate business and for the elimination of unscrupulous practice.

The same thought was elaborated by William May Garland, dean of Los Angeles realtors. Mr. Garland pleaded for the maintenance of the present prosperity of Los Angeles which, he said, lies mainly in the hands of real estate men. In order to maintain this prosperity, he declared, it is necessary to sell good goods to good people and that there must not be fraud or misrepresentation even to the slightest degree. He urged that the industry be kept on a sane and conservative basis and that salesmen do their part in preparing the city for a population of 2,000,000 by 1930.

C. C. C. Tatum, past president of the State Real Estate Association, asked co-operation of the salesmen's division with their parent organization; T. J. Lawrence, realtor, told of the benefits which salesmen will derive from their association with the board.

Temporary officers for the division were selected as follows: Fritz B. Burns, chairman; E. B. Johnson, vice-chairman, and C. M. Knox, representative of the division on the governing committee of the board. Election of permanent officers will take place in May.

A musical entertainment concluded the evening's program.

ACTRESS IS BURNED IN FILM ROLE

Eileen Sedgwick Saved by Cowboy Extra at Universal City

Miss Eileen Sedgwick, film actress, was seriously burned yesterday at Universal City when two sheets of flames, between which she was stationed, came together through accident. Her life was saved by Artie Ortego, cowboy and film extra, who seized a wet blanket, dashed through one sheet of flame, wrapped it around her and carried her out. As it was Miss Sedgwick's arm was scorched from hand to elbow and half her hair was singed off.

Miss Sedgwick was taking a part in "The Riddle Rider" and was supposed to be in a burning cabin with William Desmond. Desmond also suffered in the blaze, losing some of his famous bushy eyebrows and being slightly burned about the face.

Miss Sedgwick was attended at Universal hospital and sent home. Artego was slightly burned.

The picture was being directed by William Croft.

Miss Sedgwick's hard luck is the third casualty in the Sedgwick film quartet within a month. Edward Sedgwick, her brother, spent ten days in St. Vincent's Hospital with blood poisoning recently and when he got out his sister, Miss Josie Sedgwick, fell ill with the same affection.

WIFE IS LOSER IN DIVORCE CONTEST

Holding she was guilty of inflicting mental cruelty on her husband by her alleged participation in "wild" party and associations with other men, Mrs. Frank R. Pickering lost her contested divorce suit against Allen Wallace Pickering, according to findings and a decision in the case filed yesterday. The case was tried last September and taken under advisement by Attorney Louis J. Euler, sitting as judge pro tem. By the decision, Pickering was awarded a decree and the custody of a minor child. Mrs. Pickering instituted divorce proceedings against her mate, charging him with cruelty in going out with girl friends on automobile rides. Pickering filed a cross-complaint, accusing his wife of attending dances until late hours at night and keeping the names and addresses of men he did not know. He also declared she once was taken into custody by the harbor police for raising a disturbance at an alleged "wild" party.

HELD UNDER BONDS AS LIQUOR WHOLESALERS

G. W. McGhee of Long Beach, and George Hess and Mrs. B. Menard of San Pedro, were held in bond of $2500 each before United States Commissioner Long, yesterday, on charges of violation of the Volstead Act. They were engaged in wholesale traffic in moonshine, it is alleged by the prohibition enforcement officers. Prohibition officers yesterday visited the home of Joe Allex, 1651 West Thirty-seventh Place, where they declare they found a ten and twenty-gallon still at work on a gas stove and in the bath-room. Eight barrels of mash were confiscated.

WATER BONDS AT HAWTHORNE CARRY

Hawthorne voted yesterday overwhelmingly in favor of a new water system, passing a bond issue of $200,000 for the first unit by a vote of 427 to 26, a light vote being cast. The project was campaigned for by the Chamber of Commerce. The new system is expected to give better service and more fire protection.

ROMANTIC FIGURE ON HOME TRIP

"King" Zeeder, Captain and Filibuster, Coming to Retirement

Capt. Adrian Zeeder, known as "King" Zeeder wherever the smoke of steamships and the white wisps of sails cut into the horizon, will arrive in Los Angeles Harbor Friday in command of the Panama Pacific liner Manchuria, third of the company's ships to arrive at this port on the renewed coast-to-coast service.

Capt. Zeeder is well known on this coast, having been commander of the Siberia during the days of the Pacific Mail Line. He went to the Atlantic with the Manchuria in October, 1915, and made some notably fearless and successful trips across, carrying munitions to Plymouth during the war.

Capt. Zeeder is retiring from active service with the return of the Manchuria to New York and will come back to this coast on her next trip as a passenger.

In his early days "King" Zeeder almost duplicated one of the feats of a famous Richard Harding Davis hero.

Davis wrote an entertaining story of Capt. Royal Macklin, a fictitious character, who became vice-president of Honduras and whose adventures were breath-taking and whose exploits were stirring. Capt. Zeeder, commander of the steamship Manchuria, also became vice-president of Guatemala, another and more populous Central American country.

He engineered a filibustering campaign in Guatemala in the latter part of the nineteenth century, but his plans were frustrated when the captain of the Siberia died and he was given command of that vessel. He put off for the time his political ambitions in Central America, a land he loved, and never seriously considered them any more. His description of the southern country is summed up as follows:

"Where beggars ride on horseback like Spanish cavaliers, and and vagabonds perambulate like gamboliers. What a place!"

Capt. Zeeder will make his home at the Bohemian Club after his retirement, where he has many friends and cronies who have sailed with him. Another voyage is planned by Capt. Zeeder after a few months' sojourn in San Francisco, this time to South Africa.

GROTTO IS CENTER OF DIVERSION

Members of Municipal Employees Are Guests at Circus

Members of the City Employees Association last night took the annual Jinnistan Grotto Circus and Arabian Fete by storm. Several thousand members of the organization attended the festival on this occasion which was set aside in their honor by the circus management.

The fete is being attended by good crowds. The circus acts are being presented nightly in addition to the various concessions. A ballroom floor is provided in the center of the tent for those who wish to dance.

Tonight has been designated as Barker Brothers Night when the employees of that concern will attend in a body. Other nights this week have been dedicated to the Boy Scouts, Maccabees, Southern California Baseball Association, Business Women's League and other organizations.

Announcement was made yesterday by A. W. Shaw, managing director of the circus, that in addition to the regular musical numbers offered each night by the Jinnistan Grotto Band and Kitties Band, the Knights Templar Band of Los Angeles Commandery, No. 9, will put on a special program tonight and Friday night. On Wednesday and Thursday nights special programs will be provided by Knights Templar Band of Golden West Commandery, No. 42.

The fete is being given by Jinnistan Grotto, No. 76, composed of more than 4000 Master Masons for the purpose of raising money for the annual Christmas fund, Orphans' Home and Grotto building fund. The circus will be open every night this week, closing Sunday night.

Trio Given Jail Terms in Alien Smuggling Case

The first three men convicted of violation of the statutes relating to bringing aliens into the country, escaped penitentiary sentences, in United States District Judge Bledsoe's court yesterday.

John Dellacqua got ten months in the Orange County Jail; Claudio Dapra, four months in the Riverside County Jail, and Rudolfo Zotto-Dapra, one month in the San Bernardino County Jail. The light sentence of the latter was caused by the fact that he has been in the Los Angeles County Jail five months already.

All of the men live in San Pedro, and they are asserted to have conspired to bring two aliens from Italy across the line, in the vicinity of Calexico.

The aliens caught were a part of a load of Italians landed at Ensenada, last June, who, in various ways and at different times have, it is believed, made their way successfully across the boundary line.

AUTOIST HELD AFTER CAR KILLS LABORER

I. Fairweather, of 845 Stevenson avenue, Pasadena, was ordered held for investigation last night, after his automobile killed an unidentified man in front of 422 North Alameda street. Fairweather told Detective Lieutenant Stevens he was going slowly but the officer said the dead man's chest was crushed as though he had been struck with much force. The man was about 50 years of age and was apparently a laborer. His body was taken to the Graham undertaking rooms.

AVOID GAS AFTER EATING

Bloating and distention of the abdomen, dizziness after eating, pressure and pain around the heart, hands and feet cold and numb, nervousness, are the more common symptoms of this torment—gas.

All is due to the fermentation of food in the stomach.

Physicians state that the best adsorbent they have found for this foul gas is Standard No. 10 Gastritis. These little tablets also quickly relieve the pain and distress that come after eating.

If people would only give some attention to their diet and carry these wonderful tablets for emergency use they would quickly find that many of the ailments and symptoms would permanently disappear.

On sale only at the Standard Homeopathic Company, 316 South Broadway, Los Angeles, or mailed Parcel Post for 60 cents.

HENDERSON'S SKRATCH OINTMENT

MRS. LYNES SEEKS HUGE HEART BALM

Oil Operator's Wife, Sued for Divorce, Asks $50,000 From Mrs. Gates

A $50,000 damage suit, asserting alienation of her husband's affections, was filed by Miss Anna Lynes against Mrs. Mada N. Gates yesterday as a consequence of a divorce action brought by John Lynes against his wife on November 10 last, to which she entered a counter-suit.

At the same time Judge Summerfield directed Lynes to pay his wife temporary alimony of $150 a month for support of herself and the two minor children, given into her custody.

In the complaint for damages Mrs. Lynes asserts that Mrs. Gates pursued her husband so persistently that in December, a year ago, she persuaded him to leave his wife and come to live with her. The complaint avers that at various times since Mrs. Gates has made Lynes unlawful offers, and that recently she has been living with him at 1708 North Kingsley Drive.

In the divorce complaint Lynes accused his wife of cruelty, asserting that among other things she had caused a newspaper story to be published indicating that he had disappeared under mysterious circumstances. This story, he declares, was not true. In her counter-suit Mrs. Lynes charged her husband with cruelty.

Dan Hidey, attorney for Lynes, last night declared that Mrs. Gates was formerly secretary to Lynes, who is an oil operator, and the attorney said she is now sick in bed.

Woman Found Dead in Park is Identified

Herbert Von Leavy of 1037 Bradeo street, Belvedere Gardens, yesterday identified as that of his sister the body of a woman with slashed throat found Sunday 200 feet from shore in Hollenbeck Park lake.

He told Detective Lieutenant Rico that his sister, Mary Von Leavy, had been despondent for some time. Yesterday they had a disagreement, he said, and afterward he missed his razor. Apparently she had slashed her throat and thrown herself into the lake. A note found in her pocket read: "I saw you enjoying yourself—I told you you would be sorry that you did it." It was signed Mary.

Hundreds Pay Taxes by Mail Order System

Hundreds of people who could not be cared for at the office of County Tax Collector Welch yesterday, the last day for the payment of taxes without a penalty, stormed the Los Angeles postoffice and bought money orders and mailed registered letters containing checks for taxes.

The money order business Saturday was more than $120,000, and of that sum, $80,000 or more went across the street to the office of Tax Collector Welch.

Yesterday the rush for money orders and registered letters was much larger, and it is estimated that a quarter of a million dollars went through the local postoffice.

PUBLIC WORKS AND UTILITY BOARDS UNION IS SOUGHT

Consolidation of City Branches as One Department Considered by Freeholders

Consolidation of the Board of Public Works and the Board of Public Utilities and the inclusion of the duties and powers of the two agencies in a city street department possessing wide powers in the matter of street and traffic control were proposed to the Board of Freeholders last night by the Los Angeles Traffic Commission.

The proposed reorganization of the two departments, sought principally because of traffic congestion and other difficulties growing out of duplication of effort and authority, will be considered by the freeholders at a special session in the rooms of the City Planning Commission at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

WANT FIVE DIRECTORS

The Traffic Commission's recommendations, which were presented by Paul G. Hoffman and Harold S. Rounds, president and secretary of the organization, include a suggestion that the proposed Street Department be directed by a board of five salaried members. It is also recommended that the Street Department maintain a traffic division separate from the Police Department and that members of this division may be transferred from the police department or be retransferred to the police department.

From comments on the program of the Traffic Commission at last night's meeting of the Freeholders it appeared that a majority of the charter-making body approve the general provisions. Adoption of the plan, according to its sponsors, will provide for rapid and efficient solution of traffic conditions and street construction and maintenance.

After lengthy debate the freeholders approved various charter amendments relating to Los Angeles Harbor and the functions of the Harbor Board. Attorney Harry Bauer, representing the Committee of 200, was present and explained certain suggestions made by the organization for the improvement of harbor conditions.

The special election at which the people will vote on the proposed new charter will be called for the same date as the Presidential primary next May. This was decided by unanimous vote.

ASKS PUBLICITY FUND

The long and tedious considerations of technicalities and minor legal points relating to Harbor matters was briefly relieved when Dr. John R. Haynes, freeholder and member of the Board of Public Service Commissioners, sought to gain a "publicity and advertising" fund for the water and power bureau.

His interest in the matter was aroused by a clause in the provision creating a Harbor Board and further providing for funds "for necessary publicity and advertising for the port of Los Angeles."

Dr. Haynes appeared very favorable to the proposal.

"I move," said he, "that the same privilege be accorded the Board of Public Service."

"Then I move we strike that clause out of the harbor report," responded Freeholder Mead.

While the doctor took his seat in some chagrin his fellow-members approved Mr. Mead's suggestoin. A later effort by Mr. Mead to rescind the board's rule requiring eight votes for adoption of recommendations and reports failed to carry.

PIONEER OF CITY BURIED FROM HOME

Mrs. Dryden Settled in Los Angeles in 1868; Was 92 Years of Age

In the death of Mrs. William Dryden, 3825 West Adams street, Saturday afternoon, Los Angeles' list of pioneers lost another member of prominence.

Mrs. Dryden was 92 years of age. She came to California with her husband in 1861 and settled in Los Angeles in 1868. Their first home was in a tent at what is now Ninth and Main streets. Later they went into the back country and purchased a ranch. The ranch site centered in the district between what is now Vermont and Western avenues.

Mrs. Dryden leaves two sons, George W. and Charles E., and three daughters, Mrs. Roy Stevens, Mrs. E. R. Bohlinger and Ada Dryden.

Private funeral services were conducted at 3825 West Adams street, Mrs. Dryden's home, yesterday afternoon.

FIRE THREATENS OIL REFINERIES

Southland's Largest Plants Periled by Blast

Foamite is Used to Combat Flames at Vernon

Loss Kept Within $50,000 as Los Angeles Gives Aid

Threatening to cause a conflagration that would sweep through the refining plants of half a dozen of the largest gasoline companies supplying Southern California an explosion at the plant of the White Star Refining Company, Thirtieth street and Santa Fe avenue, Vernon, early last night started a fire that destroyed six 1000-barrel tanks and caused a loss of $50,000.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by static electricity, generated while a truck was being filled at one of the tanks or by the blowing up of a still, a tank used to refine gasoline and under which a hot gas flame is kept burning.

TANKS CATCH FIRE

Immediately after the blast, several of the 1000-barrel tanks caught fire, and at 6 p.m., fifteen minutes after the explosion, the fire had assumed menacing proportions.

A block away from the White Star plant is the General Petroleum Company's $2,000,000 plant; across the street is the Hercules Refining Company and within a radius of two blocks are several more gasoline refineries, each storing huge quantities of gasoline.

A call was sent to Los Angeles for help and two companies, in charge of Capt. Martin O'Malley, answered the call. Realizing the danger to their plant, officials of the General Petroleum Company had trucks of foamite, the only known extinguisher that can be successfully used to fight an oil fire, brought to the scene and pumped into the burning oil tanks. The greatest danger was that one of the burning tanks would burst and flood the surrounding territory with burning gasoline or oil. It was due to the fact that the tanks, although not constructed of steel, did not break that the fire was brought under control at 9:30 p.m.

Some of the tanks held crude

NEW BRANCH OF CHAMBER IS PLANNED

Many Attend Meeting of Business Representatives of Southwest Section

A meeting considered likely to result in the organization of a Chamber of Commerce for the southwestern portion of the city, held at the auditorium of the Manchester and Hoover school, was attended last night by more than 500 persons and caused the appointment of an organization committee, which will call further meetings in various parts of the district south of Slauson avenue and west of Alameda street.

Predictions that this would prove the greatest industrial section of the entire West were made by several speakers, including the presiding officer, L. J. Coburn, president of the Textile Worsted Mills; Secretary Lyons of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company; Secretary McKinney of the Santa Monica Chamber of Commerce, and H. B. Pier and Ben H. Schouboe of the Standard Organization Service.

Mr. Schouboe told of splendid results the Greater Pico Boulevard Association has received from a full-page advertisement in The Times and urged that much newspaper space be used by the new organization. Speakers stressed the value of co-operation in bringing about community development, and the achievements of the Pico and Washington Boulevard associations were pointed to as marks for the new organization to aim at.

The final organization will not be perfected until a general meeting follows a number of neighborhood meetings, and until that time the organization will be nameless.

ACTOR TO SPEAK

George Hackathorn, screen actor, who had an important part in the "Merry-Go-Round," will be a speaker Friday evening at the Photoplaywrights meeting in their new clubroom, Room 202, Trinity Auditorium Building. The meeting is open to the public.

HUGE PAPER MILL PLANNED

Negotiations Completed for Largest Plant of Kind on Coast to Cost $2,500,000

Negotiations were completed yesterday for the location in Los Angeles of the largest paper manufacturing establishment on the Pacific Coast. It will represent an aggregate outlay of $2,500,000. This fact was given out late yesterday by local men who have been working in conjunction with the National Paper Products Company, a national organization with which the Zellerbach Paper Company of Los Angeles and San Francisco is affiliated, towards the realization of the project.

According to present arrangements, the National Paper Products Company will erect a plant on a twenty-five acre tract at Cudahy Station on property adjoining the holdings of the California Cyanide Company and connected by the Southern Pacific and Union Pacific Railroads. Purchase of the tract was closed yesterday by F. W. Braun through the firm of Blue & Mason.

WATER PROVIDED

An option, taken on the property several months ago by the paper company, stipulated that the tract would be purchased if sufficient water could be developed to permit the operation of the plant. Last week a deep-water well was found which assured an abundance of water. It is the plan of the paper company to sink at once additional wells which will provide 3,000,000 gallons of water daily.

After the development of water, negotiations for the purchase of the property were completed and papers have been signed for the transfer of the property and immediate completion of architectural and engineering plans. The site for the proposed plant is a part of the Blue & Mason industrial tract which comprises several hundred acres occupied by industrial plants, including the Air Reduction Company of America, Maas Chemical Company, California Cyanide Company, California Clay Products Company and the Bent Concrete Pipe Company.

J. Y. Barun, general manager of the Zellerbach offices here and representative of the national concern in the transactions, stated that details for the construction of the plant and other improvements had not been completed, but gave assurances that the project

HUNT THIRD MAN IN HOLD-UP

Two Bandits in Robbery of Pacific Electric Cashier Captured After Being Shot; One Confesses

Deputy Sheriffs and police last night were seeking a third man implicated in the hold-up yesterday morning of G. W. Potter, cashier of the Pacific Electric at Sherman, by the confession of Howard Hanna, 21 years of age, who, with Arthur Joslin, 28, lies wounded in the General Hospital. Though Hanna did not know the man's name, he furnished Deputy Sheriffs Bright and Hunter with a full description, and it is expected he will be arrested today.

The hold-up was well planned and executed with dispatch. The getaway was left to chance and failed. Within an hour after the robbery the hills back of E. L. Doheny's mountain home were completely surrounded and the bandits fell into a trap. With the exception of $650, all the money taken in the hold-up, amounting to $4032.21, was recovered, where the men had jettisoned it as they fled. Men from the Sheriff's office found $2429 and police officers recovered $953.

Joslin was seriously wounded by Detective Sergeant Frank Barnes of the Beverly Hills police force, and Hanna was shot through the right arm by Sergeant Z. J. Gruey of the Los Angeles police department when the officers came upon the fugitives hiding in the brush.

At the General Hospital Mr. Potter identified both men as the robbers. Hanna recognized Mr.

ASKS POWER BUREAU REPAY

Attorney Tells Court $12,450 Bond Election Expenses for Bands and Marcel Waves Were Illegal

Declaring that the political campaign expenditures of the Board of Public Service Commissioners made last spring in a vain effort to "put over" a $75,000,000 bond issue for the municipal Bureau of Power and Light were illegal and unwarranted by law, Attorney T. B. Cosgrove, attorney for W. W. Mines, argued yesterday afternoon before Superior Court Judge Butler in support of a motion to compel the commissioners, the City Auditor and City Treasurer to replace in the city treasury for the benefit of the taxpayers $12,450 paid out to posters, handbill distributors and employed by the Power Bureau during its campaign and for "marcel waves" given young women employees of the public service department and paid for from public funds.

Special Counsel W. B. Mathews, representing the Board of Public Service Commissioners, admitted all of the allegations of fact set forth in the Mines complaint, as to the expenditure of the money, but defended it on the ground that Los Angeles was a large city and was growing larger and that it was necessary to stimulate the voters' interest in the bond campaign and in the approaching election.

"The size of the city has nothing to do with the question," said Attorney Cosgrove. "The law is the same for small cities and large ones and definitely states the machinery that shall be used during bond campaigns.

"Sample ballots were mailed to the voters and the provisions of the bond law complied with. But the Public Service Commission went beyond this and had printed and distributed thousands of circulars, handbills, postcards and had large banners swung across the downtown streets, all paid for from public funds. This we contend was illegal and we hold that had any of the creditors brought suit in the court for the payment of their claims, the courts would have ruled the claims unenforceable."

Superior Court Judge Butler, who lies in Marin county in the

POLICE FIND DEATH AUTO

Owners of Green Car that Killed Two Women of Pasadena Now Sought by Officers

The green death car which hurtled down on Mrs. Mary Wiley, 73 years of age, and her daughter, Jessica Wiley, 42, Saturday night at the intersection of Colorado and Oak streets, Pasadena, snuffing out their lives and speeding on, has been found, Pasadena police declared yesterday.

The car was traced to Monrovia by detectives. It was found in the rear of the Rainbow Cafe and has been definitely identified as the speeding death vehicle, police stated.

The owners of the car, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard V. Sanders, who also operate the cafe, are being sought on warrants charging manslaughter. They were hunted yesterday by Detectives Culver and O'Rourke of the Pasadena police at Long Beach, where they are understood to have gone.

The machine is a Marmon painted green. Its right headlight is broken and fender bent, the detectives stated, from the impact. Witnesses to the accident have identified the car as the one which struck the two women, the detectives said.

"It may be that Sanders had nothing to do with the case but we want to find out about the broken headlight lens and ask him other question in connection with this accident," said Marshal E. A. Boves of Monrovia yesterday.

An anonymous "tip" received by Pasadena police yesterday morning, it was disclosed, led to the finding of the machine Detectives working on the case had traced the car after the accident to Arcadia. There the trail had been lost.

Yesterday, however, Detectives Culver and O'Rouke appeared at Monrovia and declared the machine found in the rear of a cafe to be the death car. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, however, could not be found. Sanders was said by Monrovia police last night to have been known as Jack Scott at Pomona, where he once owned a restaurant.

Elementary and high school bonds totaling $3,640,000, constituting the remaining block of bonds of the record issue of $17,400,000 voted in 1922, will be placed on sale at 11 a.m. the 10th inst., it was announced last night by the Board of Education. The first portion of the bonds was sold December 11, 1922. Immediately following the sale of remaining bonds next Monday that money will be paid out by the board, bringing the total amount expended on schools within a little more than a year to $17,400,000. The bond issue voted in Los Angeles in 1922 was said to be the largest school bond issue ever voted in any section of the United States.

The survey for school bonds was made in January, 1922, and voted a few months later. With but one exception the bonds have sold at high premiums when placed on the market in blocks. Bonds to be sold next Monday will represent $2,800,000 of the elementary school lot and $840,000 of the high school allotment.

With the money derived from the bond issue, 140 new buildings have been completed. Of this number, thirty-nine entirely new schools were constructed on new sites. The rapid growth in population of the city necessitated the immediate expenditure of the large amount of money on new buildings.

The board last night rescinded its former ruling which called for the reopening of schools on the 31st inst. Under the new ruling, all schools in the city will remain closed from the 14th inst. to January 2.

In answer to request from local workers for the Harding Memorial Campaign, the board passed a resolution asking that each pupil in the public schools who wishes to do so, contribute to the fund. A maximum of 10 cents per pupil was set. The campaign is seeking to raise $3,000,000, half of which will go for the purchase of the Harding home at Marion, O., and the erection of a mausoleum, and the remaining half for the establishment of a chair in diplomacy in one of the leading universities of the country.

ALL ARRESTED WILL BE FINGER-PRINTED

Every man arrested by a member of the Detective Bureau will have his finger prints taken as soon as he is brought in, Capt. Home of the detective force directed yesterday in an order. The order is expected to create opposition from outside the department, as Detective Bureau prisoners are often arrested for offenses for which finger printing is not usually required. The prints are to be taken before the prisoner is booked, the order says.

FILM FOLK PLAN FIGHT FOR BALL

Directors Discuss Forming Political League

Picture Advertisers to Ask Late Dance Party

Retreat From City Will Follow Refusal

Evidence that the film industry is determined to fight to a finish the issue brought up by the police ban on after-midnight dancing at the recent Motion Picture Directors' ball was furnished yesterday by the action of two of Hollywood's most important motion-picture organizations.

The Motion Picture Directors' Association, with 165 members in Los Angeles, last night delegated its president, Fred Niblo, to confer with prominent business men and heads of civic organizations of the city in an effort to determine just what representation would be most suitable for the association to have at the proposed meeting to formulate plans for a political league here.

In addition to this, the association listened to the ball committee's report of its deficit and passed two sets of resolutions, one of regret that the officials of the ball did not know until the day before it occurred that dancing would not be allowed after midnight and a second of confidence that the Mayor and Police Commission would impartially administer for the rest of the season the law as they interpreted it in connection with the directors' ball.

ADVERTISERS GET BUSY

The Western Motion Picture Advertisers, or the Wampas, with nearly all of the publicity representatives of the industry as members, took further action by drawing up a petition to be presented to the Police Commission, in which it will be asked that dancing at the annual Wampas frolic be allowed to continue until 3 a.m. If favorable action is not received on the request, the Wampas voted to conduct their affair at some place outside of Los Angeles, Howard Strickling, secretary of the organization, was instructed to proceed to San Francisco and investigate facilities afforded by the northern city. The Wampas has also received offers from Pasadena, Venice and other near-by towns, it is said.

In a statement made after he had called a meeting of all workers of the United Studios for Saturday night, James Young, prominent director, declared that it will be the purport of the industry not only to gain representation in the city government but also in the State Legislature.

"INDUSTRY ABUSED"

"The motion picture industry," Mr. Young said, "has been terribly abused by the present administration. We are charged $400 every time we use the streets of the city in the taking of a scene

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD FINED

Members and Engineer Griffin Held in Contempt for Failure to Abate Sewage Nuisance

City Engineer John A. Griffin and the members of the Board of Public Works were found guilty of contempt of court by Judge J. Perry Wood of the Superior Court yesterday and fined $250 each.

They were convicted of failing to obey the court's injunction to abate the nuisance created by the discharge of sewage from Los Angeles into Ballona Creek, at the juncture of Washington Boulevard and West Adams street, and the consequent accumulation of the refuse in the Playa del Rey Lagoon and in the Venice canals.

The members of the board are C. H. Treat, chairman; H. J. McGuire and E. J. Delorey.

In imposing the fines Judge Wood declared he could see no reason why a city of the size and wealth of Los Angeles could not comply with a court order.

Council Defeats Plan to Give Police Discretionary Powers on Dance Hours and Games of Chance

The City Council conducted a preliminary skirmish yesterday over the question of liberalizing the public dancing and other amusement laws, and two resolutions to give the Board of Police Commissioners discretionary power to issue late-dancing permits and authority for mild games of chance at charitable entertainments were defeated, the Council majority taking the position that it was up to the people to express themselves by direct vote on their desires for the kind of laws that were desired in Los Angeles.

The debate at yesterday's Council session yesterday does not mark the end of the battle at the City Hall over the amusement question, however, and today hotel owners of the city are scheduled to appear at the City Hall to request that the public dance laws be changed so as to permit dancing after midnight.

The storm which has been gathering since the Motion Picture Directors' ball at the Biltmore on Thanksgiving Eve was closed by the police at midnight broke yesterday in the City Council, when Councilman Mushet moved that steps be taken to grant the Board of Police Commissioners power to grant permits for after-midnight dancing. The commission has no discretion now under the law to permit public dances to continue after midnight.

Councilman Mushet's resolution was as follows:

MARY GREETED BY THRONGS

Pershing Square Packed When Idol of Screen Warns Film-Struck of Pitfalls

Yesterday was Mary Pickford Day and of all the days lately from Raisin Day to Fireless Cooker Day, not to mention Prune Day and Father-and-Son Day, it was the most generally observed. From 15,000 (police estimate) to 50,000 (press-agent estimate) persons gathered very closely in Pershing Square to see America's Little Sweetheart, who was accompanied by her husband, Douglas Fairbanks, her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, and a bevy of municipal and Chamber of Commerce officials.

Miss Pickford made a speech, in which she warned against the flocking of too many film aspirants to Los Angeles. Mayor Cryer made a speech and very patly described the crowd as "sea of faces." It was one of the biggest and jammiest crowds in Pershing Square record. Handkerchiefs were waived at Miss Pickford and Mr. Fairbanks, and when the latter cut a caper or two there were roars of laughter.

MAYOR IN SPEECH

The Mayor in his speech referred to Miss Pickford as "Our Mary" and as the "Queen of the Queens of the Movies," which caused two publicity agents to swoon away on the greenward, for Ella Honer had been asked to mention the name of Miss Pickford's latest picture, which he evidently forgot, but otherwise the event went off to everybody's satisfaction.

"This is Mary Pickford Day to you but for me every day is Mary Pickford Day," said Mr. Fairbanks. Mary Pickford Day was chosen some time ago and with great

JUDGE ARRIVES TO TRY OIL MEN

Sent Across Country by Attorney-General

Prosecutor Cahill Back in City From East

Mass of Evidence Ready for Grand Jury

United States District Judge J. Whittier Thompson of Philadelphia, Pa., sent to the Pacific Coast by Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, to try the pending oil cases, reached Los Angeles yesterday afternoon, and will be ready for work this morning.

David V. Cahill, assistant to Atty.-Gen. Daugherty, who has been behind all of the indictments against the oil promoters, also reached the city yesterday, from a business trip in the East, and will join Judge Thompson in the oil crusade this morning.

The visiting jurist will sit in Judge Bledsoe's department, and the first business before the court will be the argument on the demurrer, interposed in behalf of George A. Babcox, who operated under the name of South Texas Lease Syndicate, and cleared up about $40,000 from the unsuspecting, according to the charge.

GRAND JURY SESSION

The Federal grand jury will be in session tomorrow and it is understood that while evidence in the oil cases will be presented, there will be no indictments until a few days later.

Col. W. F. Allman, a postoffice inspector, who has been at work in the Forth Worth district for the past year, yesterday joined the force of inspectors investigating the oil situation. Nine are now on duty in this city.

As the inquiry is going on, the scope of the work is enlarging, and it looks now as if months would be spent marshalling the evidence.

PREPARE INDICTMENTS

Special Assistant Cahill will begin this morning the work of preparing the pending indictments, and in this he will be assisted by Special Assistants Nichols and Norcop. A mass of evidence has been taken before the grand jury in his absence and this he must pass on.

Speaking of the local situation, Mr. Cahill said yesterday that there would be a complete clean-up in Los Angeles before his task was ended.

CRYER REPLIES TO CRITICS

Declares Police Had No Alternative in Halting of Film Ball; Says Law Change is Remedy

Mayor Cryer yesterday issued a statement answering the attacks on the Police Commission, of which he is chairman, in regard to the action of the police in stopping the motion-picture directors' ball at the Biltmore at midnight.

He declared the police had no other course under their sworn duty to enforce the law and that if the law is objectionable the authorities should not be criticised but an attempt made to repeal the law which they of necessity enforce.

He declared the Police Commission has no power to grant extension of the dancing limit.

THE MAYOR'S STATEMENT

The Mayor's statement says:

Dec. 3, 1923.

The attacks which are being made upon the Police Commission as a result of the stopping of the recent movie ball are simply ridiculous. They are so utterly devoid of merit to one having any respect for law that it is difficult to discuss them in a dignified manner.

An ordinance of the city of Los Angeles provides that dances such as that recently given by the Motion Pictures Directors' Association may only be given upon permit issued by the Police Commission. It is further provided by said ordinance that all such dances must cease at midnight. No power or discretion resides in the Police Commission to extend the hours for dancing.

The Motion Picture Directors' Association incorporated in their application for a permit a request that they be allowed to continue their ball until 3 a.m.

CITES ORDINANCE

Chief Vollmer in his report upon the application called attention to the ordinance and it was explained to the representative of the Motion Picture Directors' Association that the commission had no power to authorize dancing after midnight.

After the permit in the usual form had been granted I dismissed the matter from my mind and knew nothing about the stopping of the ball at the midnight hour until the next day.

The Police Commission did not issue any special order to the police in this matter, and the Chief of Police has publicly stated that he knows of no such order.

The police department simply stepped in and did its duty when it appeared that the management of the ball did not intend to observe the law, and I am satisfied that no member of the Police Commission had anything to do with the matter.

The president of the Motion Picture Directors' Association is quoted as having said that in disclaiming personal responsibility for the stopping of the ball at midnight she [illegible] attempting to "pass the buck" to Chief Vollmer. Perhaps the director [illegible] that so far as I am concerned there is no "buck to pass." In other words, there is nothing to apologise for, in the fact that the officers performed their sworn duty under the law, and no apology is being offered.

Mr. Niblo claims to be a law-abiding citizen. If so, why did he not gracefully obey the law? Why was it necessary for the police department to interfere?

The Police Commission did not make the law, but that body is bound by it the same as he is.

If he and his friends are dissatisfied with the law let them proceed to have it changed, instead of attacking those whose sworn duty it is to see that the law is enforced.

CITIZENSHIP ON TRIAL

It is not the Police Commission, but the citizenship of the city of Los Angeles which is on trial in this matter.

Is this a law-abiding community, or is it not?

Do our people want the laws enforced, or do they want them winked at?

Do they approve of the holding of public officers up to scorn and ridicule because, forsooth, they do their duty and observe their oath of office? These are questions which the citizens of Los Angeles should ask themselves.

Respect for law is the cement which holds together the entire fabric of civilization. I know of no better way to destroy respect for law than by encouraging people to believe that they may decide for themselves what laws they will obey.

I can think of no more effective means of defeating a program of law enforcement than to encourage abuse of those who try to carry out the wishes of the people, as expressed in the laws which they have enacted for their own government.

GEORGE E. CRYER,
Mayor.

NEW CLUB QUARTERS

Negotiations virtually have been completed for the leasing of new quarters for the City Club in a proposed building to be erected on the southeast corner of Ninth and Hill streets by a syndicate represented by Birch-O'Neal Agency. According to C. A. Dykstra, secretary of the club, arrangements have been made for the purchase of a fifty-year lease on the top floor of the proposed structure involving an approximate rental of $1,350,000 for the term of the lease.

At a meeting last Thursday, members of the City Club pledged more than $50,000 as an advance payment to the Ninth and Hill Holding Company for the purchase of the lease. Since that time more than $100,000 has been subscribed. The building will be erected at a cost in excess of $2,000,000 under direction of Architects John C. Austin and Frederic Ashley, associated with Lyman Farwell.

Police Commission shall have power to grant permits extending the hours of dancing beyond midnight upon proper showing being made, and that the Police Commission be requested to exercise this authority upon publication of the ordinance."

Councilman Mushet also introduced a second resolution to give the Board of Police Commissioners authority to issue permits allowing games of chance. The Councilman said that he introduced the two resolutions to meet the objection of the Police Commission that it had no discretion under the law.

Councilman Mushet's second resolution was as follows:

Resolved, that the ordinance of the city prohibiting games of chance be amended so that the Police Commission shall have power to grant permits to charitable, benevolent and other organizations and persons upon proper showing being made, and that the Police Commission be requested to exercise this authority upon publication of the ordinance."

Councilman Mushet's resolutions were seconded by Councilman Gregory, and then Councilman Mushet, speaking in support of his dance resolution said:

"The law which prohibits public dancing after midnight is being rigidly enforced, therefore, to meet changed conditions in our city life. The only thing I see to do is to change the law so as to give the Police Commission authority to extend the dancing hour. The Commission will have discretion in the matter and consider each application upon its merits."

The resolution was opposed in speeches made by Councilmen Criswell and Mallard. Councilman Criswell said that he did not approve of discretionary power being given to the Police Commission as the board might give late-dancing permits to dances where the admission charged was $10 per person, and refuse the same permission to less costly dances. He said:

"The present dance-hall ordinance was adopted by the Council after a special committee representing all sides of the public dance question had unanimously recommended it. If we should not extend the hours, I am confident that a referendum petition would be circulated against the new ordinance by those opposed to after-midnight dancing. I think that the people who are urging that the law be changed should circulate initiative petitions and then if the people authorize the change, there can be no objection from anyone."

A strong defense of the present ordinance was made by Councilman Mallard who said: "The regulation we now have is for the protection of everyone. It is a measure for the extending of safety to society in general. The public dance situation is hard to control. I am convinced that those who are now agitating a change in the ordinance are actuated by selfishness. They want license, not liberty.

"Under the present law, public dancing can be held for eighteen hours a day and private dancing for twenty-four hours a day. Many of the same people who are now urging changes in the public dance ordinance are opposed to real enforcement of the law, and they wish that the Volstead Act were not enforced. Many unthinking people are encourging the present move to change the dance law. The closing of the Biltmore Hotel 'movie' dance was just an incident in the enforcement of a law that was drafted for the protection of the entire public."

Councilman Mushet's resolutions failed to carry. For the resolution giving the Police Commission authority to issue late-dancing permits, the vote was, for, Councilmen Mushet, Gregory and Wheeler (3); opposed, Councilmen Allan, Criswell, Mallard and SanBorn (4); President Workman and Councilmen Baker, absent.

The vote on giving the Police Commission authority to issue permits allowing games of chance was, for, Councilmen Mushet and Gregory (2); opposed, Councilmen Allan, Criswell, Mallard, Sanborn and Wheeler (5).

Search for the couple was instituted at once and was still under way at a late hour last night.

A Coroner's inquest will be conducted today at the undertaking parlors of C. F. Lamb & Son. L. A. Ducey, 1718 Casa Grande, will be the principal witness. He was driving close behind the green car and following the accident he chased the speeding car as far as Arcadia, where it dropped from sight.

The aged mother and daughter, who resided at 215 South Oak avenue, were on their way to a moving-picture show when the accident occurred, the police state. Both bodies were thrown high into the air and were horribly mangled. So terrific was the impact, the police declare, that Mrs. Wiley's heart was torn loose from her body. She also suffered a fractured skull and two broken legs. Her daughter's neck was broken.

Funeral arrangements will be made following the inquest.

and are forced to pay by the head for all actors and animals that appear in scenes taken in Griffith Park.

"This, in view of the taxes paid by the motion-picture people, and the immense value to Los Angeles of the world-wide advertising which it receives through the medium of motion-picture publicity, does not seem just to me.

"We want to put in an administration where no discrimination is used against film people and where the freedom of every citizen is assured."

Fred Niblo declared last night that the movement instituted by the film people has expanded far beyond the limits of the industry and that he was informed by dozens of letters a day that cooperation may be expected from almost every type of organization in the city.

MARY GREETED BY HUGE CROWD

care not to conflict with any of the so many days being celebrated lately, but in spite of all the precautions it collided with Golden Rule Day, which fell on yesterday, but observation of the latter was found in only a few gatherings in the city, and the former easily carried off the palm.

TELLS OF TOIL

Miss Pickford spoke well and to the point. It seems that the Chamber of Commerce statistics show that some 10,000 young men and women, less than legal age, come to this city every month to seek jobs in pictures, and of course only a small part of them have any talents or, if so, have the good fortune in the struggle to find places, for the directors are deluged with applications.

"I wouldn't exactly tell the boys and girls not to come," said Miss Pickford, "for the screen might lose much talent. But I would ask the boys and girls who go to the studios to be prepared to work for five years, if necessary, before reaching stardom, and that if they should fail, to be prepared to take up some other career.

"The girls should be accompanied by their mothers. I have always found my mother a great help. The mothers can counsel and help them as nobody can. But these boys and girls should think about it a long time before coming and feel pretty sure that they have the talents and the screen features."

HE TELLS 'EM

Miss Pickford said she regretted there was not a better understanding between the motion-picture industry and the officials of the city, and laid it to the fact that each had been too busy about their own affairs to get together. She told how her husband had sold Los Angeles real estate all the way to London and into Africa.

"He even told the Arabs we met that we had better camels and sand in California than they had, and they believed him, too," she said.

R. W. Pridham, vice-president, and Frank Wiggins, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, were on the platform. The Disabled Veterans of the World War sent their colors and a guard, and there was music by a jazz band. The Mayor in his talk praised Miss Pickford for her war work.

COIFFURE VIEWED

The crowds pressed so close to the speaker's stand that the police had difficulty in holding them back and, although Miss Pickford in her talk tried to use a megahone, relatively few could hear her voice. Most of the square was jammed.

The crowd insisted that Miss Pickford take off her hat, which she did, and the women, who formed the bulk of the crowd, admired her golden hair in its ample coils. The men were equally interested in Mr. Fairbanks's hair, which, to fit him for sheik parts, has been allowed to grow down to the small of his back, where it has been snipped off.

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD IS FINED

the city is therefore guilty of contempt," the court stated.

Judge Wood declared further that he was rather reluctant to fine the individual for a fault of the city, but that he could see no other way of enforcing the court's orders.

The injunction against the city was issued by Judge Wood in June, 1923. It cam eafter repeated protests from residents and property owners of Venice, who declared that the health of the community was being jeopardized and property values lowered by the flood of refuse finding its way from Ballona Creek into the canal system of the municipality.

At the time the injunction was issued Judge Wood stipulated that it should not go into effect for sixty days and that at the end of that time another forty-five days would be granted the city if it appeared in court and showed that it was taking steps to eliminate the nuisance. No extension of time had been asked by the city, Judge Wood declared yesterday in imposing the fines.

Since the issuance of the injunction residents of Venice have repeatedly appeared in court and filed many affidavits declaring that the city had taken absolutely no action to obey the injunction.

Judge Burks, sitting in Judge Wood's court on November 16 last, when the latter was ill, heard a demand from irate citizens of Venice to hold the city officials guilty of contempt of court. At that time Judge Burks declared that the city had been unjustifiably negligent in the matter, but continued the case until yesterday. He threatened at the time to take the case into his own court if Judge Wood was still ill and "send somebody to jail."

Since the court made this threat the city has appropriated a special fund for emergency work on a sewer. Judge Wood, declared he was aware of this action, but that it had been taken too late.

It was contended by the defendants that negotiations were afoot with the city officials of Venice over some plan which would eliminate the sewage nuisance, but that the Venice officials had refused to consider the proposition.

THIRD MAN IN HOLD-UP SOUGHT

Potter as the man he robbed, and gave the officers a full account of the affair. Joslin, who was shot through the body and the right knee with a rifle, was in no condition to be questioned.

"I was born in Canada," said Hanna, "but I'm really an American. Both my parents are dead. I lived for a while in Indiana. I've been working at Tijuana, carrying a hod, and came to Los Angeles a week ago. I've been living at the Blue Front Hotel on East First street. About a week ago I met Joslin in Pershing Square. We met the third man at the Plaza last week. He knew all about how they carried the money at Sherman, and took us out there and showed us how to do it.

STOLE AUTO

"Last night we stole a car that was parked on West Seventh street and drove it out near Sherman. This morning we went out there in the street car and got the auto. When the cashier came out of the car-barns I was standing across the street at the cigar counter. The other man was there too. He gave us the office by taking off his hat and scratching his head. I walked across the street, got in the auto, and followed the cashier to the bank door.

"'Just a minute, buddy,' I said to him as he put down the pouches at the bank door. Joslin and I pointed our guns at him and told him to throw the pouches in our car. Joslin was in the rear seat. I was shivering. If the cashier had refused I would have speeded away. My gun wouldn't shoot, because it had a wooden pin in it to hold the cylinder in place. We bought the guns from a Mexican boy on New High street for $3. He wanted the money to ride back to El Paso on the stage.

"When we got the money in our car we started off. No, I didn't know where we were going, but just started off to the hills. We went up Schuyler Road as far as we could and then left the car. We left the guns and some of the silver in the car. Then we climbed up over the ridge and sat down. We thought we were safe. Then we heard the law coming up on us. We hid in the brush and then tried to run.

NO EASY MONEY

"I thought I'd get some easy money. Now look where I am."

Potter's account adheres closely to the of the prisoner in all details.

When the call came that the cashier was robbed deputies from the Sheriff's office, detectives from Hollywood Station under Lieut. Graham, and a squad of officers under Charlie Blair, Beverly Hills Chief, immediately responded. Deputy Sheriffs Townsend and Schuits were first on the scene and Deputies Hunter and Bright went out to reinforce them.

Thirty minutes after Potter had been robbed three painters working on a house up Schuyler Canyon came on the bandit's stalled automobile. The officers started from this point to track the fugitives. Believing that they might be able to cross the hills to Ventura Boulevard, a squad of officers was sent to hold the canyon roads at the Hollywood Country Club. Officers Page and Holman of Hollywood Station went back to get horses from the Beverly Hills Hotel. Meanwhile Gruey and Barnes had pushed on over the ridge.

GUNS IN CAR

In the deserted car were found the two guns, a pair of overalls and two sacks of money. This was mainly in nickels and dimes. Lieut. Graham and Deputy Hunter later found a large pouch containing both currency and silver hidden in the brush.

Sergt. Gruey said he came on the fugitives in a canyon back of the Doheny estate. He could hear them whispering together in the brush. Both he and Barnes set out after them, calling on the men to surrender. This they refused to do, so the officers opened fire on them in the belief that they were armed, as they had been reported as carrying rifles. After a chase of some minutes Barnes and Gruey brought them down.

The wounded men were rushed to the Receiving Hospital, where their wounds were dressed, later being taken to the General Hospital.

The missing money was made up mainly of dimes and nickels. Hanna said this was taken instead of paper because of "nervousness." He said that he tore his pocket in the brush and was so tired that he threw the silver away.

The recovered money was turned over to Pacific Electric officials last night.

The case will be taken before the grand jury this morning. Robbery indictments, it is understood, will be asked, naming Hanna, Joslin and John Doe.

Sheriff Pleads for Twenty-six More Deputies

Twenty-six additional men to be appointed at once to carry on the work of the Sheriff's office were asked of the Board of Supervisors yesterday by Sheriff Traeger. He declared that work in his office has been increasing so rapidly that the present force is inadequate.

During each month, the Sheriff said, deputies handle 500 prisoners in the courts and that he has to take much-needed criminal deputies to take care of this work. The new men requested include ten junior criminal deputies, five criminal bailiffs, one assistant jailer, one identification bureau clerk, one assistant chef and eight office men.

Vollmer Plans Interchange of Force in Cities

An interchange of detectives with surrounding communities is being arranged, Chief Vollmer told the depective bureau yesterday.

Detectives of other Southland cities will be invited here to become acquainted with Los Angeles criminals and local detectives will be sent to other cities to study the criminals there, he said.

In this way, the Chief said, he expects to bring about better cooperation among the police of the various communities and make it less easy for criminals to take temporary refuge when pursued by the authorities.

CANADIAN GIVES REPORT ON KHJ

Indoor Antenna Receiving Program in Ontario

Letter Bespeaks Praise for Operation of Station

Silent Monday Here Has but One Broadcast Period

BY K. G. ORMISTON

With the increasing sensitiveness of radio receivers, the antenna which it is necessary to use is decreasing, and eventually a small indoor loop will suffice for all purposes, including reception over great distances. However, the sets which now are capable of great distance with small loops use many tubes and are very expensive to construct and require considerable knowledge and skill in their operation.

Exceptional work on an indoor loop antenna thirty inches square is being done by R. H. Combs, general manager of the Canadian National Carbon Company at Toronto, Ont., Can.,, who receives The Times station regularly with sufficient volume to operate his loud speaker.

REPORTS RECEPTION

The set used by Mr. Combs in this remarkable reception is a seven-tube superhetrodyne, using the Western Electric peanut "N" tubes. A letter received from him yesterday, dated November 28, reads in part:

"I want to report to you the particularly strong reception of your station at Toronto on my superhetrodyne with thirty-inch loop last Sunday night. The string quartet which you were broadcasting was received exceptionally clear and with sufficient volume for use with my Western Electric loud-speaker. The 'cello solo was particularly good as was the third movement of the quartet, played between 12:15 and 12:30 a.m., Eastern time.

"Last evening (Tuesday) I had the pleasure of introducing your station to Commander Edwards, Director of Telegraphs of the Department of Marine and Fisheries of the Dominion government, and his chief inspector, Mr. Manson, who were guests at my house. We tapped in on your carrier wave at 11:25 p.m., and held you for some time very clearly and distinctly. Tos were very strong and as this was the first time that Commander Edwards and Mr. Manson had ever listened to a transcontinental test they were exceptionally well pleased, especially considering the fact that you were being received with a thirty-inch loop and they asked that I extend congratulations to you on the very efficient operation of your station."

COST TO DECREASE

With the natural development of radio receptors it is not unlikely that the day is not far distant when instruments of sufficient sensitiveness for work of this nature will be simplified and reduced in cost so that they may be more generally used.

The noon-time program, the only broadcast from KHJ yesterday in keeping with the policy of "silent Monday," featured Frank J. Steiner, 'cellist, member of the Pasadena Artists' Ensemble and the newly-organized Trio Intime which made its debut in The Times studio recently.

Marjorie Chapin, pianiste of the ensemble, played the accompaniment for the 'cellist's solo work, and in the first movement of Sonata in F Major by Richard Strauss for piano and 'cello, Miss Chapin had an opportunity to demonstrate her artistry and unusual pianistic ability.

VIBRANT TONE

Combining a rich, vibrant tone with splendid technical ability, Steiner presented a recital that was particularly pleasing. He gave "Cecilienne," by Pergolisi, and "Serenade Antique," by Henri Van Praag, who is the musical director of the Pasadena Artists' Ensemble. "Traumerei," by Schumann, and "Melodie," by Gluck-Brambatti, were played without accompaniment, concluding a program of rare beauty.

Frank Steiner and Marjorie Chapin are teachers of the 'cello and piano, respectively, with Los Angeles studios.

Florence Heacock, a talented young pianiste, was heard in a solo, playing "Norwegian Bridal Procession," by Grieg.

Sidney K. Johnson, baritone, accompanied by Florence Heacock, sang two numbers. Godard's "Lullaby," from "Jocelyn," and the "Two Grenadiers," were given in a pleasing voice of satisfactory broadcast qualities.

DREAM OF AGED PAIR SHATTERED

Mrs. Clara May Foord Dies Near Day Set for Golden Wedding

The dreams of an aged couple for the celebration of their Golden Wedding anniversary flickered and died Sunday with the passing of Mrs. Clara May Foord, 82 years of age, at her home at 1421 Arapahoe street. The couple would have been married fifty years in January, and had looked forward with their relatives to observing the event.

Mrs. Foord was a native of Massachusetts settling in San Gabriel in 1874. The family moved to Los Angeles in 1887. She was a member of the Unitarian Church and of the committee of the Los Angeles Ophans' Home.

Besides the husband, James Foord, who was one of the early County Supervisors, she leaves a daughter, Mrs. E. Bichowsky of Pomona.

Funeral services will be conducted from Pierce Brothers' chapel at 720 West Washington street, tomorrow, at 2 p.m., with burial in San Gabriel Cemetery.

RED STACK FLEET TO GET MORE TUGS

MORE BARGES AN DDERRICKS ALSO ANNOUNCED FOR LOCAL HARBOR

Thomas Crowley of San Francisco, one of the Coast's leading shipping men, arrived in Los Angeles Harbor Sunday and announced the addition of three more large tugs, several barges and several derricks to the local Red Stack fleet. Mr. Crowley is president of the Red Stack Towboat Company which operates fleets in Los Angeles Harbor, San Francisco and Seattle.

The three tugs will have a horsepower of 600 each, Mr. Crowley said, and one of the barges, being brought from Seattle is 200 feet long, fifty feet wide and capable of handling 1,500,000 feet of lumber or eighteen railway cars, as it is equipped with tracks. Two other barges are en route from Astoria to be used in hauling the fill out to sea from excavations under way to widen the main channel to 1000 feet.

Mr. Crowley asserted that the city with a million people not only has such a momentum nothing can stop it, but its harbor development has just started. "But it needs equipment," he added, and indicated there is no limit to his expansion program.

"As the fellow said," he remarked, "we've heard of booms, but nothing like this; this one will not end."

In addition to the Red Stack Company, Mr. Crowley also is president of the Crowley Launch and Towboat Company, the Crowley Shipyards, and owner of a large number of steam schooners, among which is the lumber carrier Thomas Crowley, which operates on a regular run to this port. He began his career in San Francisco almost two score years ago when, as a boy he used to row out in small boats and meet windjammers from the far seas.

W.C.T.U. TO MEET

Los Angeles W.C.T.U. will meet on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the First Methodist Church, Eighth and Hope streets. Mrs. Hertha Dixon will give an address on "Prison and Jail Work" and Mrs. C. Bass will also speak. Miss Dorothy Treful will sing. The public is cordially invited.

Red Cross Drive Fails to Gather Quota Asked For

The Red Cross annual roll call was closed yesterday in accordance with an agreement between the national association and the Tuberculosis Association, which today launches its nation-wide sale of Christmas seals.

The general street canvass for the Red Cross was ended Friday night with the Los Angeles campaign behind in its goal for 100,000 members.

It is hoped, however, that the fund, to be used in humanitarian work among the former service men and their families, can be augmented in the next few days by returns from the business concerns which have not yet reported the results of their personal canvass.

D. C. MacWatters, chairman of the Los Angeles Chapter of the Red Cross, has asked that the many thousands of citizens who, by reason of the limited number of volunteer workers, were not personally approached and asked to buy a button will send in their yearly subscription to the Red Cross.

Headquarters of the Red Cross are in the Coulter Building, 213 South Broadway.

"BUY A PENCIL," CRY OF NURSERY WORKERS

DOWNTOWN DRIVE WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY FOR INSTITUTION

Los Angeles will be asked to please buy a pencil" this week. On Wednesday and Thursday a group of nearly 500 women and girls, in behalf of St. Elizabeth's Day Nursery, will sell pencils, and the Los Angeles public is asked to aid the institution by purchasing from these volunteer saleswomen one pencil and as many more as they may need.

The nursery, located in an old residence building at 135 North Anderson street, is strictly nonsectarian. It cares for from 80 to 100 little children a day, "mothers" them, provides them with a wholesome, healthy atmosphere; warm quarters for the rainy days and the cold ones; an out-of-doors playground for the pleasant weather; swings and teeters and sand piles. The institution, while receiving from such of the mothers as can afford to pay a very nominal fee of 10 cents a day, is far from self-supporting through these small charges and is dependent upon the public for its support.

Not All Cripples Limp

THERE are thousands of cripples besides those who use crutches. You may be crippled yourself and not realize it. If you have any foot troubles you are crippled.

The longer foot troubles are neglected, the greater the danger to the foot and the entire bodily structure. Absence of pain is no evidence of normal feet. Thousands upon thousands of men who thought their feet normal were rejected by Army surgeons during the war.

You owe it to yourself to try a pair of ANATOMIK SHOES—the scientifically designed shoes for keeping normal feet well and helping abnormal feet to cure themselves. You will stand better and walk better in ANATOMIKS and your health will be better for wearing them. Many styles to select from.

EQUAL RIGHTS AND LEFTS

"Landlady Battles Bandit," says a headline. Which is what lots and lots of lodgers would call a fairly matched scrap.

PRODDING THE PLUTOCRATS

Senator Magnus Johnson, the Minnesota explosion, says that he is going to boost the supertax on big incomes to an even higher rate. If he can do this singlehanded it will be quite an accomplishment, but there is a feeling that his voice carries farther when swept by the winds of the Minnesota prairies than when it is merely raised in the legislative halls at Washington.

RUNNING THE MACHINE

As campaign manager for the Presidential ambitions of the California candidate Frank Hitchcock will be unable to make any just levy upon Federal office-holders. To assemble voluntary contributions to an already lost cause is going to be something of a task, even for his capable hands. Hiram would prefer his Pennsylvania angel and his millions to a campaign manager who has merely brains.

HELPING THE FARMER

Senator Capper offers an administrative program on behalf of the American farmer that would keep Congress in conversation for the next ten years. Among the other items he wants some legislative action to foster co-operative marketing. Why must the farmer always look to Congress for everything he wants? There is no need in calling Congress in to provide systems of co-operative marketing. Co-operative marketing might aid the agricultural interests a lot and it can be achieved without aid from Washington.

THE SHELL GAME

The Chicago Council has before it a resolution calling for an ordinance to ease some of the warehousing problems. Among other things, it requires that every egg be rubber-stamped with the date of its admission to cold storage. So many storage eggs are being sold by careless grocers as being perfectly fresh that it is felt that something should be done to protect the public. There is often a difference of 30 cents in the price and this proves too great a temptation to the dealer. The storage egg may be perfectly good, but it should hardly be suffered to pose as being just from the barnyard—and at a fancy price.

MOLARS AND MORALS

It is announced that the Carnegie Institute has handed over some $80,000 to the University of California to be used in research work in the matter of the relationship of teeth to crime. Do bad teeth make a bad man or does a jumping toothache incite the sufferer to deeds of violence? Is there any connection between pyorrhea and bigamy? When a man's molars decay do his morals evidence a like leakage? Certain ulcerous deposits at the base of our teeth are said to indirectly affect blood and brain to the extent of influencing our actions. Shall those actions be inviable or criminal? The Carnegie philanthropists would have our incisors trained to virtue rather than vice. We may look, but we mustn't bite.

LOST MOTION

One of the nation's cartoonists gives pictorial emphasis to the fact that the schools of the country are crowded to the roofs and that both day and night sessions are held in many of them while at the same time there are thousands of huge and costly churches that are virtually open for but a few hours on the Sabbath day. In churches conducted upon the institutional plan food, amusement, occupation, home and education are supplied in addition to the religious program. That makes the church even more serviceable than the school. What would be best for the country would be a program which would permit the churches, schools and other public buildings to be of some service and value by day or night—this in addition to the express purpose for which they are built. Is it possible to work something out in this direction?

A FLEA EXHIBIT

The British museum has recently fallen heir to a remarkable and unique bequest. This is nothing less than the superb collection of fleas from the estate of the late Nathaniel Rothschild, said to be the most complete assortment of these vivacious insects in existence.

Rothschild, we learn, was the world's foremost authority on this somewhat bizarre branch of scientific research. Collecting specimens was not only a hobby, but a positive passion with him. When his collection was finally completed it was pronounced the only one of its kind in the world, since no university, government or scientific body would have expended the time and money required to secure such an array of specimens. Absurd is it may seem, Rothschild spent millions of dollars sending expeditions to all parts of the world to gain rare specimens. The collection comprises several thousand of these in all, each one preserved in a tiny bottle for the inspection of the flea lover.

BULLY-RAGGING THE MOVIES

What the motion pictures feel to have been an unjustified interference with their personal liberties in the stopping of the annual ball of the Directors' Association happened to come at a time when an effort is being made to uproot the whole motion-picture industry from Los Angeles.

This fall a conference was held in New York at which time several of the big producers urged that the motion-picture studios be removed from this city to the East.

It was contended by the proponents of this movement that the studios should be nearer the centers of picture distribution. It has become so largely the custom to build exterior "locations" in the studios themselves and work under electric lights that it was felt that the original reason for establishing the industry in California sunshine no longer has force.

The producers in favor of moving pointed out that companies on location very seldom work in the immediate vicinity of Los Angeles; they go to Canada, to Northern California, to Arizona and to other distant points, so they might as well start from New York as from Los Angeles.

One inducement that has always held the picture producers in this city has been their extensive real estate investments. It so happens, however, that most of the studios could sell out these holdings at huge profits. In fact, some of them are actually contemplating the sale of their studio property in order to move to other and cheaper locations near Los Angeles.

Adolph Zukor has formally announced that 40 per cent of all the Famous Player-Lasky pictures will hereafter be made in New York. The Goldwyn people are said to be contemplating making a part of their pictures at their New York studios. The Metro Company, according to rumor, is contemplating a somewhat extensive New York program.

The conference of the producers in New York did not result in an acceptance of the proposal to move the motion-picture business to New York.

A prominent producer who attended the conference states that the reason they decided not to move out was the attitude of the players. So many of the players have made real estate investments in this city and have bought homes here that a wholesale exodus would work terrible hardships upon them.

The players have found more happiness here than in the East and the producers have shown a disposition to yield to the preferences of these stars.

If, however, their lives should be made unhappy in California a reversal of these conditions could easily be brought about.

To put this matter in the mildest manner possible, it is a very poor time to start bully-ragging the movies.

THE SOB SISTERS AGAIN

The most poignant need of the community would appear to be a harmless outlet for the melodramatic instincts of the immature young ladies who write for various newspapers.

No sooner do the police succeed in getting handcuffs on the wrists of a crook than he straightway attracts the adoring sighs of the sob sisters. When the jail door closes upon a murderer their histrionic frenzy rises to fever heights and heats.

Carleton, the navy deserter, now in the City Jail on a charge of killing a special officer, is no exception to the rule.

Although the blood from the murder is hardly yet dry, a very much impressed young lady reporter, doubtless covered with goose flesh and quivering with dramatic excitement, has been to interview him in his cell.

She discovers, somewhat amazingly, that he is very much like Macbeth and that the reason he got into somebody else's house with a loaded revolver was "an impulsive tendency to quick action" and that "his face is open and generous" with "full red lips indicative of an affectionate nature."

The excited young lady reporter and this wretch who has been denounced by his own wife as a murderer seem to have exchanged tears over his cruel fate in being locked up for a mere breach of etiquette like taking human life.

The young lady reporter, in fact, treats the police very coldly for their unfeeling conduct in wishing to hang our little hero. She says:

> What sort of influence will be brought to bear on him in the future and what they will make of him lie in the hands of the authorities who want to hang him.
> Meanwhile the hero leaned over the table to the fair and agitated journalistic flapper and:
> "Couldn't you tell me some way I could get her out of it." He leaned across our section of the table and spoke quietly. "I'd do anything—it wouldn't matter if I hung. I guess I deserve it after what I have gotten her into. I didn't kill the officer, but if I should say I did—would it help her?"

All of which sweet, sad, melodrama probably impresses flapper reporters more than it does Chief Vollmer, who is bending every effort to get the active support and co-operation of the decent people of this community in his fight to eradicate the crooks and thugs.

The Scripture admonishes us that he who calleth his brother a fool is in danger of hell fire. As this probably goes also for sisters, we will content ourselves with the remark that a typewriter can be a dangerous instrument in the hands of a child.

GERMANY SECRETLY ARMS

It is undoubtedly true that Germany is making secret efforts to organize and equip another army. But it is equally true that this fact has been known in every war office in the world for a long time.

The attempt of the Reuter news service to fan this into a sensation has the color of propaganda. It is, as the London Times observes, a "spurious sensation."

That it is a spurious newspaper sensation does not, however, lessen the gravity of the fact.

From the moment it became known that Germany would lose the war it is reasonably certain that the German General Staff began to prepare secretly for the next one.

The French officers have asserted ever since the armistice that the Germans were concealing arms and munitions. From time to time there have come specific allegations of arms and ammunition concealed on the farms of the militaristic Junkers.

Although limited by the provisions of the peace treaty to an army of 100,000 men, it is common knowledge among military observers that Germany has kept alive many of the disbanded army units in the form of walking clubs, corporation employees, etc.

This was inevitable and was to have been expected. It is impossible to disarm a nation—particularly a nation trained to military pursuits.

The London Telegraph expresses the belief that Germany could not put more than 300,000 sufficiently armed men in the field and even that force would be woefully lacking in tanks, field artillery, field kitchens, etc., and that for such a force to attack the French army of occupation would be mass suicide.

It is difficult to believe that Germany has any such rash intention. More probably, Germany figures that France cannot maintain an army of 2,000,000 in the field forever, under staggering expense; she will just keep her soldiers drilled and disciplined—and wait.

The whole continent of Europe is in a condition of sitting on a powder keg with a lighted pipe. Anything is likely to happen anywhere.

Here's Hoping

OUR FORTY-SECOND BIRTHDAY

On this its forty-second anniversary The Times once more responds to the hearty congratulations of its numberless friends and well-wishers.

This last year our city has made phenomenal gains in health, wealth and numbers; The Times, as an integral part of the city, has grown proportionately in size, strength and circulation. We ask for no higher mead than to hear folks say Los Angeles and its oldest morning paper are traveling together the highway of progress and each helping the other along.

To have grown up with Los Angeles and Southern California is a proud distinction. To keep up with the pace set by this amazing community is a difficult feat. To be of assistance in promoting the growth of this extraordinary section of our country is an ambition worth fulfilling.

We are proud of our relationship to Los Angeles as an offspring of the great Southwest. From the sleepy pueblo of '81, with a population of 12,000, forty-two years of enterprise have constructed this modern metropolis of nearly 1,000,000 souls. And from a four-page sheet, with a circulation below 2500 copies, the same forty-two years have seen The Times expand to the biggest newspaper in the world, ministering to an average of 142,000 subscribers daily.

The Times, starting as a Republican paper in a Democratic stronghold, has lived to see its city become one of the most stalwart props of the Grand Old Party. It has lived to witness the free harbor at San Pedro, for which it fought so hard, grow into one of the leading commercial ports of the Pacific. It has helped with its annual Midwinter Number, spreading the gospel of California throughout civilization, to make Los Angeles, as it is today, the fastest-growing city in the world.

And it was the founder of The Times who first worked out a detailed plan for ending war by international combination, an issue that the peoples of all races—distinct from the diplomats—have more deeply at heart than any other question that is rocking humanity.

Coming down to our last year's endeavors we feel especial pride and pleasure in the way the children have been flocking into the big Times family. We now have 25,000 kiddies of all ages and sizes from all parts of the city, from the surrounding country and even from foreign lands across the seas, proud to wear Times Junior badges and help make a success of our magazine for the youngsters. The boys and girls who have been able to attend the parties and entertainments given by the popular "Aunt Dolly" are the most enthusiastic supporters a newspaper family could ever expect or ask for.

Nor must we forget "Uncle John" and his still larger circle of friends in Radioland, whose concerts and solo singers and speakers—not to mention his own good-night talks to the little ones—have made KHJ the three most famous letters in the alphabet. And the Pre-View—our weekly Wednesday supplement—has done for the movie fans what KHJ has been accomplishing in the wider regions of the air.

That we are keeping pace with the general growth of the community the following figures testify:

The total advertising in the first year of The Times' existence was approximately 1,000,000 agate lines. The total advertising last year, 1922, was 26,795,244 agate lines, exceeding that of any other paper in the world. Although this was a world record, for the first eleven months this year The Times has already printed 26,895,470 agate lines.

The latest circulation figures of The Times show a daily circulation of over 134,000, a Sunday circulation of over 200,000 and an average of over 140,000. For the year 1888-89 the circulation was 6464.

But, whatever material changes may take place in the physical features of The Times, the spirit of the journal is still the spirit of Gen. Harrison Gray Otis as he handed it down to those who would have to carry on the work after his own hand must release the tiller.

"Stand for sound, rational and tested business methods in order that this journal and all honest people may live long and prosper, grow in grace and be happy. Hold up the hands and cheer the hearts of the lowly and deserving, no matter how humble they may be. Quail not before the aggressions of unjust power. Fear God and do right."

In this spirit we shall attempt higher records in the year ahead of us.

THE MISSING

Possibly the Socialists will forget to vote in the next election. Without the name of Eugene Debs on the ballot it will not seem like an election and his followers will go right on with their plumbing, plastering and other labors and never go to the polls. With most of them Eugene is about the only candidate they can remember. His name has been on the ticket since away last century. He was the Presidential nominee of his party in five different campaigns, to say nothing of the occasions when he was running for Congress or a Governorship. Whether in jail or out made little difference with Eugene—in fact, he got his heaviest vote while he was behind prison doors. But now he says he will no more be a candidate. He says his health will not permit; but that should make no difference. Were he dead the same old group of Socialists would doubtless cast their ballots for him from sheer force of habit.

RIPPLING RHYMES

NO ENTERPRISE

I'm often joshed and chidden by caustic passers-by, for I have never ridden in airships to the sky; I've never gone a-soaring in vessels loudly roaring up there where stars are pouring their light on things that fly. In this resolve I'm bolstered when I survey the air; the earth is not upholstered, no snubbers do I wear; and if an airship stranded and on the earth I landed my works would be disbanded and I'd be prone to swear. I blush with shame when people inquire if I have flown up higher than the steeple, up where the clouds are blown; for all the rest have tried it; they find a plane and ride it, up to the moon they guide it; I walk, and I alone. I much admire the daring, the dauntless and the bold, who in their planes go faring through dangers man-ifold; I sing them as they teeter, in sonnets sweet and sweeter, in short and common meter, but my own feet are cold. Men say there are in flying sensations grand and new, and none should think of dying before he's soared a few; but I won't leave my knitting; I'd be afraid of hitting a pasture field and splitting this blamed old globe in two. Oh, let the airmen wander in ether lanes afar, in empty realms up yonder adjacent to a star; their lives are high and cleanly, their curves are smooth and queenly, but I'll jog on serenely in my old pewter car.

The giant navy airship, just completed, has been named the Shenandoah, the Indian word meaning the daughter of the stars. Now if the wind does not treat it like a step-child.

There are some good things about the English government. When Parliament is dissolved it can't come back after its successor is elected and revenge itself upon the electors by adding to the taxes.

What we really need in this world is some scheme or device that will make what is known as the process of "climbing down" less ungraceful and dangerous. This constitutes one of the gravest of society's problems. It looms large in the political field where position is everything.

THIS IS THE DAY

The American Antislavery Society was organized at Philadelphia in the year 1833. This declaration marks the time when slavery became a national issue in the United States.

Washington bade farewell to his officers at the end of the Revolutionary War in Fraunce's Tavern, New York, in the year 1783. The building is preserved by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS

BY J. A. GRAVES

It is generally conceded that the Pacific Coast is leading most sections of the United States in activity and prosperity. It is also conceded that the country, of which Los Angeles is the center, leads the Pacific Coast in industrial and financial progress.

Many causes contribute to present local conditions. First and foremost of these is climate, which is attracting people from all over the world. They come to stay, not simply to look us over.

The population of the city of Los Angeles is now believed to exceed 1,000,000 souls. All the territory surrounding her has grown as fast in proportion, in population, since the census of 1920, as has the city proper. Her geographical position is most favorable for both overland and oversea traffic.

Los Angeles still leads all the counties of the several States of the Union in the value of her agricultural products. She leads in the petroleum production; in the number of new industries established in the present year. Her open-shop condition has done much for her industrial and manufacturing life. She leads in real estate activity.

REAL ESTATE BOOM

In fact, there are many who are of the opinion that the real estate market is too active for the good of the community.

She leads any city of her class in building activity. Every line of business seems to be prosperous. Her wage-earners are numbered by the thousands and they possess a very large individual purchasing power. Bank expansion during the past year has been continuous. Real estate values have increased so fast that even the experts are hard put to keep up with them.

This is the condition that the closing month of the year finds this country in. No man can read the future. Next year is Presidential year and no knowing what politics will do with the prosperity of the nation, but if a slump comes this section will suffer as little as any other portion of the country, except that her real estate boomers, who are actually insane from success, will get the trouncing of their lives and the deluded victims will suffer great losses and untold hardships. There is neither sense nor honesty in the present real estate upheaval. It is time for those who have the future of this country at heart to call a halt.

PESTIFEROUS POLITICIANS

As a matter of fact, nine-tenths of all the ills of the United States, other than such as are caused by unwarranted speculation in real estate, stocks, bonds or food commodities, are the result of politics as manipulated by the politicians.

Office-hunters seeking votes inflame the public mind or at least that portion of the public mind that thinks or can be taught to think that it has any cause for complaint against the government or any line of business which is prospering. Hence, the organization of various blocs to secure by legislation some personal advantage.

We read sobbing obituaries of the United States merchant marine in the daily press. Ninety-five per cent of the papers of the country, from cowardice, pure and simple—from fear of the loss of patronage of organized labor—fail to point out the true reason why America cannot successfully operate, under the American flag, the ships in which millions of dollars have been invested. Our public officials, from the highest to the lowest, evince the same desire to dodge the issue which the press does.

UNION DOMINATION

There is but one reason why these ships cannot be successfully operated and that is union-labor domination of our shipping laws. The La Follette Act, coupled with other shippings rules equally infamous, is driving our ships from the sea. Under these laws it costs twice as much to run an American vessel as it does an English vessel. The difference against us is still greater with German, Italian and Japanese vessels. Solely for the benefit of union labor the government is yearly wasting millions of dollars in maintaining a poor semblance of a merchant marine.

Repeal the La Follette Act and all other regulations that are throttling American shipping. Let American shipowners run their ships with foreign crews, if necessary, and American business men will soon put American shipping on a firm and lasting basis. They must be allowed to compete with foreign ships in the price paid labor and in working conditions of their crews.

When American sailors get to the stage that they demand the same fare upon the great liners that first-class passengers receive it is time to call a halt. These first-class passengers pay for their meals Waldorf-Astoria Hotel prices and it does not stand to reason that seamen should receive the same expensive menus. Our shipping laws must be changed if the American flag is to float over freight or passenger vessels or the government must continue to tax its people and spend untold millions to make up the difference between the earnings and expenses of her ships.

THE RAILROAD SITUATION

General business conditions throughout the United States are favorable. Steel and iron industries show some depression. In some places business is bad; in other places it is poor; but the general average is good. Railroad earnings are large, but the labor employed by the roads is costing them so much more than it normally should, while all supplies are, in the air in price that the roads do not have, after paying interest and taxes, sufficient funds for properly safeguarding their equipment against continual deterioration. Sixty-one per cent of the gross earnings of the roads goes to labor. Dividends to stockholders are necessarily small.

Railroad extension work is practically at a standstill.

On top of all their other difficulties the roads are compelled to combat on every side the agents of demagogues and some of the latter are openly out for government ownership. If McAdoo is nominated for the Presidency he will possibly make government ownership the sheet anchor of his fight. Other demagogues clamor for reduced freight rates for the farmers; others want lower rates for coal. To cut any rate to a point where the hauling of freight either results in loss or produces no profit is economically wrong.

RULE OF REASON

If high wages are to prevail in every industry in the United States, including the railroads, then high commodity prices and high freight rates must continue.

You can wander around in a circle from daylight until dark and you always come back to the same proposition, namely, that high wages are the cause of inflated values.

No sane person expects the rule of reason to be applied to the situation. The change will come only after a breakdown of our present prosperity followed by a period of drastic retrenchment in the personal expenditures of all the people.

The farm bloc will find much of its ammunition gone by the time Congress meets. Farm products other than wheat, are selling at good prices. The average farmer is not suffering. The prodigal farmer, who thought the good times created by our war expenditures would last forever and who bought land at inflated valuations and loaded up his farm with automobiles, is feeling the effect of changed conditions. He is in the same position as the merchant who in 1920 found his shelves stocked with high-priced goods that no one would buy at a figure that would leave him any profit.

The merchant took his medicine like a man. He did not send emissaries to Congress of the Magnus Johnson stripe to seek for him political alms. He sold his goods at what they would bring and stood the loss. In many cases he had to get extensions from his wholesalers, but he never shirked his debt. Of course, some of the merchants were so heavily involved bankruptcy was their only means of escape.

THE ALARMISTS

It is noticeable that all the alarmists, theorists, reformers in dulging in propoganda for relief for this, that and the other financial lame duck are principally seeking re-election to office or initial political advancement. All of them take a whack at the railroads, Wall street and the banks.

The truth of the matter is that the railroads, Wall street and the banks make the wheels in the country go around and keep the majority of the population from starvation. Economic laws are inflexible, even brutal in their rigidity. They cannot give or bend to suit the whim of the spendthrift, the incompetent or the improvident. They teach that if you spend more than you make you go broke. The American people are today through their very active competition for gain, where everybody is trying to surpass his neighbor, paying labor an unnecessary and unreasonable wage. The result is disaster to labor itself as well as all the industries of the country. High rents, high cost of living are a natural result and in these particulars labor suffers with everybody else.

SPENDTHRIFT HABITS

There is no denying the unfortunate fact that the American people have adopted spendthrift habits. They have thrown all ideas of economy to the wind. They forget that thrift accumulates capital and extravagance dissipates savings. Their only object in accumulating seems to be to have a good time, to spend frivolously, foolishly and often, not only at the expense of saving for a rainy day, but even at the expense of invested capital. All of this is evidenced by the reckless purchase of diamonds, other jewelry, unnecessary luxuries and of automobiles and the wanton waste incurred by uneconomic use of machines after acquirement. Machines, the cost of which runs into millions, are left out of doors, parked in the open streets day after day, while their owners follow some employment. The wear and tear of this constant exposure runs into money very fast.

We are living in a reckless age. Few people are satisfied to remain in their own homes even on Sundays. Even those who go to church after services put in several hours of the day in automobiles. Those who are not church attendants go off for the day, either to the mountains or seashore. There is no quiet contemplation; constant excitement is sought. The movies occupy the time of many after they have exhausted every other form of amusement.

HEAVY TAXATION

Of course, there are those who will applaud the people's spendthrift habits. They will tell you that because people spend money times are good and they encourage even frivolous expenditures by every form of enticement. Extravagance on the part of the people at large begets extravagance by those who administer our affairs. They do not curb expenditures anywhere. The result is an overcreased tax rate. Extravagance prevails where thrift should be practiced. The last election in California turned wholly upon this point. Ex-Gov. Stephens and his followers represented extravagance in all of its worst forms at the expense of the taxpayers. Richardson pleaded for economy—was elected on that issue and is making good.

It is possible that the present wave of financial thoughtlessness sweeping over the country will wear itself out by its own momentum and the people will come to a return to a saner level of expenditures than they are now practicing.

In the meantime the ordinary citizen can look pleasant, grit his teeth, swear under his breath and pay his local taxes and get ready for his income-tax statement which is to be filed in January of next year.

Veronica Helps McGrath

C. E. McGrath of the McGrath Hardware Co. is a busy merchant in Hastings, Neb., who says: "During the past year I have used Veronica Water for constipation and its attendant ills. Previously, for a long period, I used all sorts of laxatives, neither one of which, at best, gave more than temporary relief. My trouble was gradually becoming more complicated and more stubborn to handle with the different remedies which I used. I have found Veronica Water actually does the work in the system just as represented, and no bad after effects. It gives me pleasure to recommend this wonderful water to all who may be suffering with intestinal troubles."

Veronica is a natural mineral water. Thousands have found that Veronica affords almost miraculous relief from constipation, indigestion, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, and other stomach disorders. A big, generous 1-I gallon bottle at your druggist's seventy-five cents.—[Advertisement.

SHOWS FATE OF FAMILY DOCTOR

Dr. Gant Sees City Physician as His Successor

High Cost of Education is Given as Cause

Says Graduate Fears Risk of Practice

That the general practicing physician in the country town is gradually giving way to the medical man employed by the municipality is the statement of Dr. Samuel Goodwin Gant, of New York City, surgeon, specialist in intestinal diseases, author of several medical text-books and until recently professor of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital.

Dr. Gant, who is a guest at the Biltmore, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday and will spend the winter here. "I like the California winter climate," he said, "and plan to spend all my winters here from this time on."

In discussing the trend of medicine in this country, Dr. Gant suggested that in his opinion the training required to become a physician today involves such a long period and so great an expenditure of money, that many young men for this reason are deterred from taking up this profession.

GRIND LONG, HARD

"If I want to make my son a doctor," he said, "I must first send him two years to a preparatory school, four years to college, five years to a medical school, and then he has to serve at least two years' interneship at some hospital before he is considered qualified to practice." All this represents, in addition to the time spent, an investment of some $25,000 or $30,000, or more than the average doctor can ever hope to get back out of his profession."

In the doctor's opinion this vast amount of training is not productive of the best results. "There is such a thing as being overeducated," he declared. "Moreover, it has been my observation that the young man who starts out to practice medicine after such a long course of training has become largely unfitted to put up the fight necessary to establish a practice. His head is full of theoretical knowledge but he is often shy of the practical common sense that is as necessary to make a success in medicine as it is in any other line of endeavor.

It is for this reason, the doctor said, that many young men who graduate from a medical college rather than face the hard knocks incident to the building up of a practice in a little country town, prefer a job as physician to the community on a salary paid them by the municipality.

AUTHOR OF TEXT-BOOKS

Dr. Gant is widely known for his medical treatises which are now used as textbooks in the leading institutions. He has won particular fame as the man who popularized local anesthetics for major operations.

"The outstanding feature of the method I employ in my surgical work is the application of water to deaden the nerves of the part to be operated on," he said. "In addition, I use novacaine or some other local anesthetic and only in cases where the operation involves particularly deep-lying parts do I employ a general anesthetic."

The doctor states that in a large number of major operations it is not necessary that the patient should be confined to the hospital for two or three weeks and that in cases where merely a local anesthetic is used, it is possible to have the patient up and about in a few days.

HAS HOBBY

In addition to being a physician, Dr. Gant is a sleight-of-hand performer of no mean ability. He makes this his hobby and is well known for his gifts along this line among his scientific brethren.

"I have delivered lectures before students and medical societies all over the country," he said, "and invariably when I am through with the scientific part of my address there is a demand that I perform a few tricks for the edification of the assembly. I also use sleight-of-hand to keep my patients cheerful. There is nothing that will take a man's mind off his ailments more quickly than to see a coin pass through a plate or a lighted cigarette stub —ashes, tobacco, paper and all apparently absorbed in the performer's closed hand, leaving not a trace behind."

PROWLER WAS SEEKING WIFE

Held as Burglar for Trying to Adopt Orphan by Window Route

So many people have matrimonial troubles that Leonard Burns was afraid to take a chance picking a wife the usual way. So he broke into the Los Angeles Orphan Asylum and tried to kidnap one young enough to be brought up to meet his ideas.

Burns was held in $3000 bail to answer a burglary charge yesterday after Augustine Marinthier, an inmate of the institution, had told of being awakened by a man shaking her. Sister Anastasia of seeing a man jump through a window, and F. A. Wallace, a watchman, had told of catching Burns trying to break in again the next night. Burns himself told the court he wanted to adopt a child and was trying to pick out one "that would make him a good wife."

Justice Baird heard the case, which was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Helpecke.

Hastings Child Placed in Care of His Mother

The fight between Roy Hastings, church organist, and his former wife Mabell over the custody of their 8-year-old son, Ross Roy Hastings, ended in Judge Summerfield's department of the Superior Court yesterday without a legal blow being struck. Mrs Hastings retains custody of the child, according to the decree of the court, but cannot take him outside the county, a restraining order to this effect being issued by Judge Summerfield.

The case began and ended without incident and with no witnesses. Hastings's attorney opened the case by calling attention to Mrs. Hastings's trip to Alaska and the charge that she went through a certain form of marriage with Capt. Summerville, a wealthy fur farmer, while there. Then he asked for a restraining order to prevent Mrs. Hastings from taking the boy outside the county.

"If that is all you want there is no need of taking all this testimony," Judge Summerfield remarked after the attorney had concluded.

Then, turning to Mrs. Hastings, the court inquired:

"You didn't get married, did you?"

"No, sir, I did not," was the answer.

Judge Summerfield thereupon granted the restraining order and the case was concluded.

Court Upholds Patriotic Hall Appropriation

The Supreme Court has upheld the action of the Board of Supervisors in appropriating $500,000 for the building of Patriotic Hall at Eighteenth and Figueroa street, Supervisor Bean said yesterday, and work on the building will be begun at once. The court granted a writ of mandate, directing County Auditor Payne to pay claims of the allied architects.

The building is to be used as a meeting place for veterans of the various wars of the United States. The County Auditor held up warrants for the building on the ground that it was not a public building.

TWO MEN ARE FINED, AUTOS CONFISCATED

In the United States District Judge Bledsoe's court yesterday, William H. Hale, who was found with ninety gallons of alcohol, was given three and one-half months in the Riverside County Jail, with a fine of $150, and the confiscation of the automobile is which he was carrying the stuff. William M. Ryan, 344 Beverly Drive, had fifteen gallons of liquor in his possession, which he said he intended for his own use, but he pleaded guilty to a violation of the Volstead Act, and was fined $200 by Judge Bledsoe. He lost his automobile in which he had an equity of $700, in addition.

Cemetery Suit Testing County Powers to Open

United States District Judge Bledsoe will today begin the trial of the Palm Crest Development Company, against the County of Los Angeles, to test the validity of an ordinance passed by the Board of Supervisors on October 1, 1923, forbidding any person from establishing a cemetery where, within a mile from such cemetery, there are situated more than one hundred dwellings.

It is asserted that the ordinance is in violation of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution, by depriving the plaintiffs of their property without due process of law; is unreasonable and invalid, in that it makes the operation of a cemetery a penal offense, (the ordinance provides a fine of $50 and six months in the County Jail for violators of the instrument,) and prohibits the owners of the property from making lawful use of the property. An injunction restraining its enforcement is asked for. It is alleged in the defense that the land purchased by the plaintiff corporation is to be used for cemetery, mausoleum and crematory purposes. It has an area of 47.09 acres, and lies northwest of the city of Palms, which has recently been annexed to Los Angeles.

See the World With Carpenter
Every week, the popular travel writer, Frank G. Carpenter, contributes a fact-telling article to the SUNDAY TIMES Illustrated Magazine.

What is Neuritis?

Neuritis is an inflammation of the nerves that produces sharp, darting pain very similar to that of rheumatism. In fact, the disease is often mistaken for rheumatism and treated as such, with the result that the sufferer gets no lasting benefit.

Neuritis is usually brought on by colds, injuries, bruises, nervous exhaustion, malarial poisoning or infectious diseases. The pain may be confined to one spot or it may move from place to place. Sometimes it is accompanied by soreness in the muscles, numbness in the hands or feet, lame back, stiff joints, eye strain or severe headaches.

The only way to obtain permanent, lasting relief is to heal the affected nerves—get rid of the inflammation. Eopa Neuritis Tablets are compounded for that very purpose. Harmless, pleasant and effective. A trial package will convince you. For sale by the Owl Drug Stores and all other leading druggists. Boericke & Runyon Co., manufacturers, San Francisco. —[Advertisement.

A Woman's Way

"I tried for four months to get my wife to try Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which I know had helped a friend of mine who also suffered from stomach trouble. She insisted her case was different. I finally had to bribe her with a new dress. The first dose produced remarkable results, clearing up her complexion and restoring her appetite. She can now eat things she hadn't been able to for many years." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. All all druggists.—[Advertisement.

A Coat in Black and Grey

That coats are generally long and almost always straight—that fur is better than ever—that the little cloche hat is not universal—all these things one sees in the sketch. Black is the color of the fabric used, in a heavy dull-finished woolen. The fur is mixed gray, Persian lamb, in the darker shades. The creator is Molyneux, that Englishman in Paris who has such a smart clientele.

One holds this coat together, pulling it as tight across the back as one's figure permits. If this isn't easy, pull the coat up just a trifle before folding it over, and the line will be more becoming.

WASHINGTON PIE

Beat to a cream one-third of a cup of butter and beat into it one cup of sugar and beat well; beat in slowly two well-beaten eggs, a pinch of salt, the grated rind of half a lemon; beat five minutes and beat in, alternately, two cups of sifted flour, sifted with three level teaspoons of baking powder and one-third of a cup of milk. Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

TUBERCULOSIS

Yesterday I gave you a little history of the Christmas seal sale, the money from which goes to help eradicate that terrible (but preventable and curable) disease, tuberculosis. I gave you some facts about tuberculosis, among them the fact that it is caused by a specific germ known as the tubercle bacillus.

Perhaps you have read some place the germs are not the cause but the effect of disease; that they are in the nature of scavengers which come after the disease is started. This is not true. It is true that there are scavenger germs; however, there are also germs which do not come after the disease is started but which directly cause certain diseases. Among these diseases so caused, I will mention a few: tuberculosis, diphtheria, infantile paralysis, pneumonia, gonorrhea, syphilis, typhoid fever.

The people who write that germs are not the cause but the "effect" of disease know nothing of the science of bacteriology and apparently nothing of any other science pertaining to the human body. The falsehood they promulgate can do a great deal of harm, and cause untold sickness and death—for it would make those who are suffering and those who are caring for infectious diseases, careless.

If the statement that germs are not the cause but the effect of disease were true, then there would be no need for quarantine laws, or laws prohibiting diseased persons handling food. There would be no need for sterilization in operations. There would be no need for sterilization in maternity cases. Can you see the havoc such teachings, if accepted, would cause?

We all know that in tuberculosis and many other infectious diseases there usually has to be some other factor beside the specific germ causing disease. Anything that lowers the body resistance will lessen the curative powers of the tissues so that the infectious germs, if they do gain access to the tissues, are not destroyed so readily.

Let us take the specific case of these false teachings in relation to tuberculosis. An active tuberculosis case may expectorate from a few to billions of tubercle bacilli a day. Pottenger states that it is not unusual for them to expectorate several millions a day. Some patients will cough and expectorate for months and sometimes years. If these patients are taught that their expectorations are not dangerous, can't you see the far-reaching evil effects?

It is estimated that about 10 per cent of the cattle in the dairy herds have tuberculosis. If it is taught that these germs, which may contaminate the milk, are not dangerous, can't you see the far-reaching evil effect of this also?

One of the reasons cited by these misguided teachers that the tuberculosis germs, for instance, are the effect and not the cause of the disease, is the fact that the germs are not found in the sputum in the early stages of the disease. Now, the reason they are not found in the early stages is because the tissues have not yet broken down, so that the germs can be coughed up. They are there—that is, if the person has the disease. That is an established fact.

In tuberculosis, especially, lowered resistance is apparently necessary for the germs to multiply sufficiently to gain a foothold. You all know the causes of lowered resistance. The cause which I emphasize most in our column is the lowered resistance due to an imperfect diet — one not containing the elements necessary to build up the tissues.

The parable of the sower has been used to express the relationship between the infection from tuberculosis and the human body.

Some seeds fell by the wayside and the birds came and devoured them. (The germs do not get into the body, but are killed by the sun and sterilization.) Some seeds fell upon stony places. (The tissues are very resistant and the germs are destroyed.) Others fell upon thorns and the thorns grew up and choked them. (The germs fell and grew, but the protective forces of the body walled them off and protected the system.) But others fell on good ground and yielded fruit, some a hundredfold. (The germs fell where there was lowered resistance from some cause—most frequently from malnourishment—and nature could not overcome them.) He that hath ears, let him hear.

Have you bought your Christmas seals yet to do your little share in eradicating tuberculosis? Next week I'll have more on tuberculosis.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

A Better Mixture

If the spices used in making spice cakes are mixed with a little hot water it will take away the raw taste of the spice in the cake.

Avoid That Plumber

Don't keep the dishcloth when it gets to the raveling stage. It will only prove expensive as its lint will make tangle strands in the drainpipe.

Preserve the Temperature

The milkman delivers milk as soon as he possibly can after removing it from the cooler, or else he delivers milk that is packed in ice. It is as little as we can do to remove it from our doorsteps when delivered and put it on ice.

Good Health

Cleanliness of person.
Cleanliness of premises.
Sufficient hours for rest and sleep.
Proper ventilation in office, home and sleeping quarters.
Self-control instead of self-indulgence in appetite and ordinary living.
The use of nourishing plain foods, avoiding highly-seasoned foods, excesses in alcohol, tobacco, tea and coffee.

Doughnuts

An ice pick is a fine weapon to spear doughnuts from hot fat; two or three can be removed at once where a fork would lift but one.

Ammonia for Rubber

A solution of household ammonia and warm water is splendid for cleaning any rubber articles in the house, as it not only cleans rubber but it adds to its life by keeping it soft and normal.

GIFTS OF CHARM AT CLUB BAZAAR

Busy Morning Members Are Busy With Project

Variety Runs From Pillows to Fine Confections

Objects d'Art From Europe, Too, Are There

BY MYRA NYE

Many will rest the head that re- poses against a pillow bought Saturday or today at the Friday Morning Club Bazaar.

And more than easy—there will be no doubt where is fancy bred, in the heart or in the head. In the head, of course, for the satins and silks and brocades from which they are so deftly fashioned by members, in many shapes and many sizes were the material of smart dining and afternoon frocks worn by historic Los Angeles events. That is more than enough for history to feed on. Mrs. W. R. Up- hamd made forty-one of them and they are gorgeous con- fections.

There is the brown and gold satin which saw the opening of the Mason Operahouse; the gray and blue striped surah silk that was worn to the first luncheon given by the club in the old Alhambra where the new one is going up on Figueroa; the black faceted satin that went to the first grand opera ever given in this city; the blue fou- lard that went to see Mary Pickford in the first "Tess of the Storm Country," and a long slen- der graceful pillow of Alice blue that saw "Judith of Bethulia." Written by a press member of the club who then lived in Santa Mon- ica.

The pillows are not all of the artful charm of this bazaar which is conducted in the Arnold au- ditorium showrooms at Seventh and Figueroa. Undoubtedly the most popular is the Paris booth presided over by Mrs. W. A. Savage, Sr., who has recently come as from Europe, whence she brought delightful gifts from Florence, Rome, Paris and Gen- oa. Mr. Bonynge paid all the duty and so these foreign articles are very reasonable in price. By luncheon over half of them were sold yesterday. But there are still left tellum note books, hand- carved by a guild of girls in Italy, French dolls that keep immaculate the powder puff, royal French pottery with the coat of arms of the royal family, Langeais pottery of beauty and distinction, bead bags made in factories where no one is employed who is not related to all the rest employed, hand- blown glass, Schneider ware, ac- tually Rodin pottery, the Fibrentine leather goods for bridge scores and note books.

In the fancy work booth pre- sided over by Mrs. J. Vandusen there are all of the lovely hand- made things one would expect in a large Christmas gift bazaar but most noteworthy is the quilt do- nated by Mrs. G. H. Reynolds made by her Holland Dutch grand- mother in a log cabin pattern, made of 3191 pieces of silk and satin, hand sewed in the design which is not a hodge podge of color as one might suppose but lovely in its shadings and blend- ing of colors.

Other novelties are the redwood bowls in glass bowls which will prevent and make lovely house- plants in water until they are ready for transplanting out-of- doors in the spring, given by Mrs. J. T. Low; the candied fruits of Mrs. Ida Tuckers in the same flower and fruit booth where Mrs. A. Paxton presides are pos- sibly the most delicious confection that can be obtained.

Home-cooked foods in charge of Mrs. W. A. E. Noble proclaim the expert manufacture of candied grapes and fruits by Mrs. N. E. Kimball, with delicious candies made like a bunch of grapes or a basket of flowers so good to eat that it will all—leaves and blos- soms—melt in the mouth: dear old Grandmother Wakeman's delicious whole brown bread and citrus fruit marmalades; Mrs. J. E. Brown's creamy mayonnaise and wonderful high cakes and low cakes of Mrs. F. H. Kent and Mrs. Harry Reinholt and Mrs. James E. Berry's luscious doughnuts.

The exquisite skill of Viola Tidden in making novelties in ivory work; the versatility of Mrs. Griffith in her hand-made dolls of every nationality, the monkey dolls of Mrs. Martin Carter, the Indian booth presided over by Mrs. Joseph Segall and the mar- velous aprons for maids and mis- tresses, for kitchen and parlor, for bungalow and bungalow, these are made and sold by Mrs. McLaughlin Reid, Mrs. Irving Bush and Mrs. Lucien J. Fulks; the home-made candy booth with Mrs. Charles Judson Benham in charge—all are giving freely for the club's benefit. Mrs. Benham was also major do- mo of the whole affair yesterday while she was temporarily taking the place of Mrs. O. P. Clark who is chairman of the enterprise since its inception.

A prospective Christmas pur- chaser cannot go amiss in shop- ping at this big bazaar for the whole of the building and furnish- ings kind of the fine new club- house which will be completed the first of March. "Good goods, prices right and no gambling," as ad- vised by Mrs. Andrew S. Lo- ther, president of the club.

Ebell Club Musicale

Mrs. Elinor Remick Warren, pianist-pianist of rare talent, and Mrs. Howell Robinson, sing- er of undoubted ability, were ar- tists at the Ebell Club musicale Saturday afternoon. Both artists are well known in Los Angeles and their program was complete in every respect.

For benefit of the scholarship fund the Spanish department will give a Pan-American ball in the Ebell house Friday evening. ADORNMENT ARTICLES ARE SUBJECT TO TAX

U. S. Collector of Internal Reve- nue Goodcell was informed yester- day that he must investigate all dealers in beads strung on wire to be worn on the person, and deal- ers in certain religious articles, to see that such dealers are paying tax on such articles as jewelry. The collector further states that any article worn on the person or apparel for purposes of adornment is held to be jewelry and as such is subject to tax. This includes shoe buckles and pins, buckles and ornaments used on dresses and hats. A great many milliners, shoe dealers and vendors of ready- to-wear dresses are subject to this tax, and are liable to heavy pen- alties for not paying the same.

DUNGEIN OPENS FOR WOMEN IN PAIL RIOT

Six women remaining in the County Jail dungeon, of ten placed there for rioting recently, were returned to the women's depart- ment of the jail after making apol- ogy to Matron Wardell. These were said to be ringleaders of the riot which was directed against Mrs. Wardell, regarded as too strict a disciplinarian.

LESSON XXII

Daily Sewing Hints from VOGUE

HEMSTITCHING

A consideration of trimmings would be incomplete without a men- tion of hemstitching. When worked by hand it forms one of the most effective trimmings one can have in a dress of georgette crepe or of the lovely fresh linens, batistes, or the soft, heavy silk crepes. Its restraint and daintiness add much to delicate, hand-made lingerie.

After one set of threads of the material is pulled, the remaining ones are gathered up and bound in groups in many interesting ways, as in single, double, or diagonal hemstitching. In single hemstitching the threads are bound together along only one side of the band of drawn threads, while in double hemstitching this process is repeated on the other side of the band. Diagonal hemstitching with the small bundles of thread divided on the second edge and in turn bound to- gether, thus forming diagonal lines instead of vertical ones as a result.

Hemstitching done with a colored thread, or hemstitching which couches colored threads along its sides gives a very decorative and striking effect.

Although dependent on the threads of the cloth for its direction this drawn-work trimming may form interesting bands or block de- signs and may be used to sew and give definition to tucks and folds.

With these suggestions we may pass on to the important subject of fitting.

Frock No. 6865 shows an excellent use of hand-hemstitching as trimming.

DESMOND'S YULE TREE IN FLOWER

Men and Women's Gift Stocks Are Larger and Better Than Ever

BY OLIVE GRAY

Bigger, brighter, more inspiring than ever, the Christmas tree, an annual event at Desmond's, ap- peared overnight, growing with the magic of an East Indian's ledger- demain. Towering into the second story, a-glitter with tinsel and col- ored electric lamps, the tree looks down upon a store replete with Christmas offerings.

The new in every phase for gifting the man is to be seen, from garments of silk and wool, beauti- ful in grooming, to the myriad little personal articles, such as scarves, gloves, handkerchiefs, hosiery—all made gala by some novel turn of the season's fashioning.

In the woman's shop in a man's store, that section devoted to femi- nine attire and accessories, many fascinating articles suitable as gifts are shown. New weaves in sweat- ers, silk and wool; knitted dresses, scarves, unusual handkerchiefs, quaint novelties to offset the cos- tume for each occasion, vie with the practical, such as swagger suits and coats for links and for motor- ing, imported blouses and hats for sports wear. A striking dress, in fine silken knitted weave, is of cell and ivory, the wrap especially fitting the costume for theater wear, embodying the idea of the Spanish shawl. Imported handker- chiefs attracting attention are color- ful as the huge rose whose im- printed petals form the center. The convenience to men in being able to select gifts for their femi- nine friends while within the bounds of a genuine man's store is newly manifested here.

TRADE MARK IS CLEW

Burglars' Tools May Lead to Jewelry Theft Arrests

A maker's trademark on the side of a crowbar discovered by Deputy Sheriffs Sweezey and Allen may lead to the arrest of the daring burglars who late Sunday night stole a 1000-pound safe from the Charles Mylio jewelry store at 226 West Ninth street. The safe and the crowbar were found late yes- terday in a wash near Wilmar. The door of the safe had been broken open and $5000 worth of jewelry had been taken.

The safe was removed from the jewelry store, according to reports to the local police, by four men operating with the aid of a small truck. The robbery was discovered by a private watchman several hours after the burglars had es- caped with their loot. Later it was learned that pedestrians had seen four men removing the safe.

J. Bojorquez of 214 East Third street notified the Sheriff's office that the battered safe was in the Wilmar Wash and Deputies Allen and Sweezey investigated. The crowbar, a hacksaw and a heavy hammer were found by the offi- cers some distance from the safe. On the crowbar was the maker's trademark.

BEAN SPROUTS

W. A. H., San Fernando, asks that we give directions for cooking bean sprouts sold in the local markets.

Cover one pound of bean sprouts with boiling water, drain and dry. Chop fine half a cup of fresh pork fat, place in an iron frying pan and when hot add the bean sprouts and stir and fry for five minutes. Be careful not to burn. Season with three tablespoons of soy and a little salt and pepper; cover tight and let simmer fifteen minutes.

BROWN BETTY

R. O. B., Whittier, says that our recipes are greatly appreciated and asks that we help her with recipes for desserts made without eggs or whipped cream; also asks if the Betty puddings are made with eggs.

The Betty puddings are made without eggs. Try the following recipe: Measure out half a cup of sugar, one cup of bread crumbs, one cup of seedless raisins, two cups of peeled and chopped apples and two tablespoons of butter broken in small bits. Butter a pudding dish, cover the bottom with a layer of chopped apples and raisins, cover these with a sprinkle of sugar and dot with bits of butter; continue this method until all the ingredients are used, having the last layer of bread crumbs. Cover tight and bake forty-five minutes in a moderate oven, uncover and brown. Serve with melted tart jelly or milk.

WASHINGTON PUDDING

This is another good pudding made without eggs or cream: Beat to a cream half cup of butter and beat into it one cup of molasses, one teaspoon of ground cloves, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, half a teaspoon of soda, three cups of sifted flour sifted with three level teaspoons of baking powder, one cup of chopped seeded raisins, one cup of milk and a quarter-teaspoon each of salt and nutmeg. Steam for two hours in a well-buttered and closed mold. Serve with hard or orange sauce.

ORANGE SAUCE

Beat to a cream half a cup of butter and beat into it one cup of powdered sugar and beat until light. Heat one cup of strained orange juice in a double boiler and beat gradually into the creamed butter and sugar and beat three minutes.

FRENCH PASTRY

B. W., Owensmouth, asks that we supply the recipe for French pastry as served in the better-class cafes.

French pastry as made in France is puff paste made in various shapes, such as cream slices, turnovers, small tarts, jelly and cream dipped squares. The French pastry that is served in the cafes is a variety of puff paste pieces, cream puffs and eclairs made of chou paste, Danish pastry and other small pieces made with marzipan and short paste. As the making of these requires a great deal of experience and more than the ordinary variety of foodstuffs, we do not think they come under the head of practical recipes. It would take three or four columns of our space to give a working knowledge of the baking and preparation of the various pieces that make a French pastry tray.

FRENCH PANCAKES

S. H., Hollywood, is an interested reader of our recipes and requests directions for making French pancakes.

First, buy a small steel frying pan about four and a half inches in diameter. Six hours before serving make a batter by sifting one cup of sifted flour with one-third of a teaspoon of salt and two-thirds of a teaspoon of sugar into a bowl. Make a depression in the center, turn in two whole eggs and, while beating constantly, add slowly one cup of milk and a teaspoon of melted butter. Beat for five minutes and set in a cool place until wanted. Wipe the frying pan clean and heat over a moderate fire; add half a level teaspoon of butter, spread evenly over the bottom of the pan and, before the butter browns, add a large spoonful of batter, raise the pan on one side so that the batter will evenly thin over the bottom. Cook about one minute, then turn and cook about fifty seconds on the other side. Slip the pancake onto a board dusted with powdered sugar, spread with currant or other good tart jelly, roll into a roll, dust the rolls with powdered sugar and burn strips across the tops with a red-hot iron. Garnish plates with slices of lemon.

GRAHAM CRACKERS

W. E., city, wants a recipe for graham crackers, as sold in the grocery stores.

These are made by machinery, a brake that kneads and rolls the dough under heavy pressure, and it would be impractical for the home cook to attempt to make them.

MOCHA CHARLOTTE RUSSE

B. D., city, asks that we print a recipe for mocha charlotte russe that can be served in sherbet glasses.

Place in a cold bowl one and a half cups of whipping cream and whip until firm but not too stiff, gradually beat in one-third of a cup of sifted powdered sugar and one tablespoon of coffee extract or very strong strained black coffee; fold in carefully one cup of seedless raisins and pile in sherbet glasses that have been lined with split ladyfingers.

PANCAKE SYRUP

G. V., city, is a new arrival and is very much interested in our daily menus. She asks that we give a recipe for a syrup or sauce that is served with pancakes by one of the leading hotels in Omaha. She says that it has orange juice in it.

Try this: Place in an enameled saucepan one cup of strained orange juice, two thin strips of lemon rind, two teaspoons of lemon juice, six level tablespoons of sugar and five tablespoons of butter broken in small bits. Stir over a slow fire until it forms a thick syrup.

CABBAGE HEART SALAD

J. A. R., Pasadena, tasted a salad made with cabbage hearts and celery at one of the Italian restaurants in New York, and wants the recipe for making it.

Slice thin the heart of a white cabbage and mix with the white part of a head of celery cut in shreds. Boil half a cup of vinegar with one tablespoon of butter, one tablespoon of sugar and a seasoning of salt and pepper. When it boils pour over and mix with the cabbage heart and celery. Beat two eggs and stir into one cup of scalded milk, and cook and stir until thick and smooth. Place the salad in a cold bowl, pour over the custard, mix well and place in the ice box for three hours.

MEAT STOCK

F. A. L., Long Beach, wants to make about four quarts of strong meat stock to use for soups and asks that we give her the recipe for making.

Place in a stock pot three pounds of lean veal cut in small pieces, three pounds of lean beef cut in small pieces, one-quarter of a pound of raw ham chopped or a cracked ham bone, two onions and two stalks of celery. Add six quarts of cold water, bring slowly to a boil, skim well and simmer for six hours. Strain through a napkin or a cheese cloth folded four times; set in a cold place and remove when the fat hardens on the top. Return the stock to the fire and add one whole egg and shell mixed with one cup of chopped raw beef; bring quickly to a boil and boil five minutes; skim out the egg mixture and strain through cloth.

ESTATES APPRAISED

Appraisals of two estates yielding inheritance taxes were reported yesterday to the office of State Controller Riley. John DeWitt McConnell and Armenia C. Wakeman, both of whom died recently in this county, left estates respectively of $69,346 and $75,002. The taxes are $2059 and $1692.

BAITING THE WOWSERS

"Wowser" is good Australian for the unco guid reformer, the rabid moralist. He is not a popular person, this wowser. He wants to censor everything. Authors, dramatists, artists and film producers wax very ireful against him. They regard him as a menace to the "freedom of art." He wants to legislate us into almost inhuman decency. He is the great crusader for "verboten."

But all the same, these ardent apostles of the "freedom of art" are playing into his hands. They are making art, and especially dramatic art, altogether too "free." Even filmdom, which dreads censorship more than any other profession, and appointed Will Hays partly to help stall off the wowser's fell influence, takes a malicious delight in baiting the wowser. It seems bent upon seeing just how far it can go in sly indecency every now and then, while preserving a mien of innocent righteousness.

And the stage, which for a while enjoyed a spasm of high-brow righteousness, appears to have become utterly reckless, especially in New York. A half a dozen plays are running in New York right now—described by the would-be censors as "flaunting and exploiting brazen nakedness"—which would certainly appear to be deliberately baiting the wowsers. Each new musical show gets a shade more daring.

It is the same in literature. Publishers appear to be encouraging the most messy sort of stuff imaginable from what is termed "the flapper authors." Several of these extraordinarily messy "best sellers" have come my way, and, while I read disgustedly, I found myself getting positively wowerish. I don't want to be a wowser. I don't like wowsers. But neither do I subscribe to this sort of "freedom in art." It is just plain dirty and I refuse to believe that it has any relation to "Truth."

And several of these smutty flapper novels are to be filmed. Probably under the righteous claim of "realism." The only "realism" about them is their thoroughly nasty, putrid, moronical stupid sloppiness.

In fact, it is exactly the sort of thing which brought about prohibition. A great many normal people who like their wine are nevertheless disgusted at drunkenness. So, in a crisis, when they realize what an appalling percentage of people cannot drink without getting drunk, these "moderates," reluctantly perhaps, but nevertheless conscientiously, vote with the prohibitionists.

It will be exactly the same over this censorship business. If the theatrical profession baits the wowsers to the point where censorship becomes inevitable, the wowser will certainly get the support of sufficient "moderates" to put it over. At best, like the moderate drinkers, they will refrain from voting and let the wowser campaign take its course. I, for instance, disliking the extreme wowser as I do, would hesitate to cast a vote on behalf of some of the theatrical obscenity that prevails. Just as I would refrain from going on record as a "wet," no matter how much I deplore the necessity for prohibition. And in this connection I should say that I am a pretty average citizen.

The pity of it is that either extreme should be necessary. How comes it that we humans must always go to one extreme or the other?

And how comes it, with the lesson of prohibition so poignantly before us, that the theatrical profession and the authors take such an incredible delight in baiting the wowsers into righteous and compelling fury?

It is easy enough to blame the public. Of course, if the public did not support these shows and this vulgar literature so generously it would soon die a natural death. That is the best alibi these foolish exploiters of "dirt" have to offer.

But all the same, they have exactly the same responsibility that the wicked old saloonkeeper had. It is their duty to protect the best standards of their respective professions. And if they persist in catering to human wickedness, human weakness, human vulgarity, they must accept the inevitable consequences. One extreme is bound to arouse the ire and fury of the other. The big silent, moderate majority can always be trusted to ultimately throw its influence on the side of too much decency rather than that of too much indecency, if they can't have the normal, golden mean.

There is a normal golden mean. And what is more it has been found infinitely the most profitable in the end. Look over the list of the most successful and profitable screen and stage productions and they are all inherently decent.

That word "decent" is a pregnant word. It doesn't by any means mean just sloppy unreal sentimentality. One can be highly "realistic" and still inherently decent. One can even be frank and truthful, quite decently. Normal people are decent and they like normal decent books and plays. Incidentally, they ought to be trusted to write normal decent books and normal decent plays. The people who don't, but insist that "realism" is inherently obscene and indecent, must excuse us if we doubt their own decency.

The professional wowser, of course, craves something much more extreme than mere "decency." He, on the other hand, sees evil in a great many normal decencies. He is quite as horrid in his way as the indecent realists. Or rather, unrealists. Both types of mind are soiled and abnormal. But if we are condemned to subscribe to one form of abnormality rather than the other, I can see where the wowser will win.

Why bait the wowsers to their triumph?

PARKING SURVEY REVIVED

City Council Will be Asked to Reconsider Matter of Funds for Continuation of Work

The City Council's Finance Committee has decided to ask the Council to reconsider the matter of continuing the work of the parking survey committee. The Council declined to appropriate funds a few days ago, but yesterday George M. Babcock, managing director of the Business Men's Co-operative Association and a member of the Parking Committee, appeared before the Council's Finance Committee and persuaded its members to resurrect the matter.

The Parking Survey Committee is an outgrowth of the Traffic Commission work, but if it is continued will report directly to the City Council. It proposes to make a comprehensive, and first of the kind, survey of the parking problems of the city and recommend action to the Council.

When the committee was formed $1500 was appropriated for its work, but after $1000 had been spent, and the work proved greater than had been expected, the committee asked the Council for a total of $3500 to make the survey. This the Council refused to grant.

Mr. Babcock called the attention of the finance committeemen to the fact that the Parking Committee is composed of seven members headed by George M. Babcock, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce and that its members represent all of the important bodies in the city interested in a solution of the problem.

"We will guarantee to make an unanimous report and this will prevent the mad scenes in the City Council whenever a parking matter comes up," said Mr. Babcock.

"I would approve of spending $3500 if it would do away with our jay-town way of parking, but I doubt if it would," said Councilman Gregory.

"The cost would be cheap if it would do it and it would be worth that money if we could get everybody to agree on some procedure anyway," said the committee chairman, Councilman Mushet. "I remember we have been talking about this matter for two and a half years, but we have gotten no where. If this will get us together I am for it."

The matter will come before the Council as a whole today.

TO CHECK ON HEADLIGHTS

New Lens and Truck-Weight-Limit Laws Are to be Rigidly Enforced Beginning Tomorrow

The new State headlight and truck-weight-limit law will be rigidly enforced in the city beginning tomorrow, Capt. McDowell, head of the police traffic division, announced yesterday. So far Capt. McDowell stated, the new statutes have not been strictly enforced because it was the desire of the authorities to give the public an opporunity to conform with them.

Beginning Wednesday, however, all violators of the new laws will receive but little mercy at the hands of the police. Special squads of officers will be assigned to check up on motorists and if the automobiles they are driving prove deficient in the matter of headlights they will be prosecuted.

Capt. McDowell stated that it was his belief that eight out of every ten cars on the streets of the city violate the new headlight law and that the blinding lights on many of the cars are responsible for a majority of the traffic accidents at night. He stated that thirty headlight service stations have been established in various sections of the city and that faulty headlights will be corrected there for 75 cents.

The truck-weight-limit law, Capt. McDowell stated, will be enforced by special squads of officers armed with loadmeters which will make it possible for them to weigh the trucks on the highways.

RANGERS OFFER TRIPS

Members of Society Home From Tour to San Francisco

Among the many advantages offered by the Western Rangers to its large membership of boys and girls are educational trips scheduled from time to time to near-by cities and points of interest.

At present a group of the organization's members is "taking in the sights" of San Francisco, having left Los Angeles Thanksgiving morning on the steamer Ruth Alexander, under the guarding eye of Chieftain Harry C. James.

More than 100 young folk made up the contingent that has invaded the northern city, carrying a letter of introduction from Mayor Cryer to Mayor Rolph, who not only turned over the keys of San Francisco to the lively group of youngsters, but arranged that there should be no place of interest left unseen in the few days of their stay there. They returned to Los Angeles Monday.

JAILS CROWDED

Volstead Law Fills Bastilles of Many Counties

The operation of the Volstead law in the local Federal court has caused a congestion of population not only in the Los Angeles County Jail, but in the bastilles at San Bernardino, Santa Ana and Riverside, all within the judicial district.

It is also a feature of the convictions that in a great majority of the cases the defendants sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment complain of illness and ask to be admitted to the hospitals of the institutions. Word came from Santa Ana yesterday that no more could be accommodated in the hospital at that place, and it is understood that the same situation applies to the jails in the other two cities mentioned. It is likely that future imprisonments will be ordered enforced in the Imperial County Jail, or as far away as San Diego.

OIL MAN ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

William A. Bartholomae was accused of two charges of embezzlement from the Bartholomae Oil Syndicate No. 2, in a complaint issued yesterday by Dep. Dist. Atty. Orme. He is accused of using $17,000 of the company's funds March 20, last, and $9000 November 17, last. Bartholomae was a trustee of the syndicate, which was not incorporated, but was organized as a common-law stock company. Eugene E. Prussing, an attorney, was the complaining witness.

Program for Harding Fund Drive Mapped

Preliminary plans for raising Southern California's quota of the $3,000,000 national memorial fund for the late President Warren G. Harding were made yesterday at a meeting of the Los Angeles Harding Memorial Association in the Alexandria.

Judge McCormick presided and the speakers included J. C. Chamberlain, Sylvester L. Weaver, W. T. Bishop, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Susan Dorsey, superintendent of schools; Harry M. Haldeman, Orra E. Monnette and Mrs. E. R. Brainerd.

The campaign for funds will be undertaken during the week of the 9th inst. by a large group of volunteer workers.

Jewish Feast Celebration Is Under Way

Los Angeles Jewry, including orthodox and reformed congregations, started Sunday night an eight-day commemoration of the Feast of the Illumination, the anniversary of the victory of the Maccabees over the Syrian hosts in the second century before the Christian era. Jewish history reports that a small band of Jews, known as the Maccabees drawn up in a last stand at Modin, near Jerusalem, drove back Syrians many times their number. The observance is world-wide among Jews.

The start of the celebration last night was marked by the lighting of candles in homes. Daily services will be conducted in orthodox churches while the reformed congregations will have special services on next Friday night.

SUES WOMAN AUTOIST

Declaring he was injured when a hand truck was hurtled at him by an automobile, C. E. West, a truck driver, yesterday filed suit for $3000 damages against Mrs. Mina Buehler, alleged to be the driver of the automobile. According to West he was on the ground cranking his truck when Mrs. Buehler's car struck the hand truck, throwing it against him.

SAVES MILLIONS FOR ROAD WORK

Fresno County Wins Fight to Avoid Royalties

Circuit Court Rules Against Boston Patent Holders

Wyoming and Other Western States Are Affected

A decision that, it is declared, will save States, counties and cities millions of dollars in their road-paving programs was handed down yesterday by the Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco, according to word received here, in which a judgment by District Judge Bledsoe in favor of Fresno county and against Warren Brothers Company, owners of Warrenite paving patents, was affirmed.

Warren Brothers, a Boston corporation, brought suit in the United States District Court here against Fresno county, declaring that the county had laid pavement in constructing its road program that infringed on patents held by Warren Brothers, and demanded royalties. By the decision the county is said to have saved $450,000 on its road building, which, had the decision gone against it, would have to be paid to Warren Brothers.

DEMANDS ROYALTIES

In 1920 Fresno voted a bond issue for 150 miles of paving throughout the county highway system, and Warren Brothers, who held a patent on bithulithic Warrenite paving, filed a notice of demand for royalties and certain specifications, which, if followed, would have compelled the county to pay them $450,000.

A slight change in the specifications for the bithulitic paving was made by Chris P. Jensen, county engineer, and the demand refused. When contracts were let and construction commenced under the changed specifications, Warren Brothers brought suit for the royalties claimed to be due them, alleging the specifications in fact came within their patent.

Lyon & Lyon, patent attorneys of Los Angeles, represented the county, and the case was tried before Judge Bledsoe. On May 29, 1922, Judge Bledsoe held that the patent held by Warren Brothers was a very narrow one and was so limited that it was not infringed by the type of pavement employed by Fresno county.

RULING SUSTAINED

Warren Brothers appealed the case, and according to word received today by Leonard S. Lyon, who has been in charge of the suit, Circuit Judges Gilbert, Hunt and Rudkin affirmed Judge Bledsoe's decision.

"The decision means," Mr. Lyon said, "that hereafter it will be unnecessary to pay further royalties to Warren Brothers Company. The specifications written by County Engineer Jensen of Fresno are open to free use by any city, county or State. Our victory means that it lets everybody out of paying that royalty. The amount that will be saved is very great, for in the past fifteen years Warren Brothers have collected approximately $30,000 in royalties." Other Western States have shown great interest in the litigation, the State of Wyoming now having a vital interest in the suit, according to Mr. Jensen, it having adopted the same specifications for its road work as those used by Fresno county. Copies of the specifications have also been requested by Washington and Oregon.

Insanity to be Plea Made for Carlton's Wife

A plea of insanity is to be made for Jeanne Carlton, young bride of Edward Carlton, and jointly accused with him of the murder of Sam Magee, special police officer, during a burglary, two weeks ago, when Judge Avery today considers a motion for separate trial made by her attorney, George H. Shreve. Both defense and prosecution have retained alienists to examine Mrs. Carlton, and will call them as witnesses today.

Dr. R. O. Shelton of Los Angeles and Dr. T. Coe Little of San Diego are the defense alienists, and it is understood they will testify that relatives of Mrs. Carlton have been insane, and that she has shown symptoms of a disordered mind.

IGNORE MARRIAGE DATE

Couple to Have Been Wed Thursday Eloped; Knot Tied Friday

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

LONG BEACH, Dec. 3. — The elopement of Miss Jean R. Halbert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alanson M. Halbert, prominent residents here, with Ensign D. Putnam Storrs III of the U.S.S. Oklahoma, and their marriage by Dr. Carl Patton, pastor of the First Congregational Church, in Los Angeles last Friday was learned yesterday from the parents of the bride.

The young couple, it appears, stole a march on their friends who were invited to an elaborately planned wedding at the bride's home here the 6th inst. They returned Friday night to Long Beach and registered at the Hotel Virginia. They will make their home at the Lois Apartments in Long Beach.

The bride is a graduate of Polytechnic High School here and a former student of the University of Southern California, and is one of the popular members of the younger set. Ensign Storrs is a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and is coach of the raceboat crew of the battleship Oklahoma, stationed at Los Angeles Harbor.

PROBATION DENIED DEATH-CAR DRIVER

Probation was denied F. H. Hemsel, convicted of manslaughter, when he appeared before Judge Reeve yesterday. The defendant was sentenced to San Quentin prison for from one to ten years. He had been convicted of having run down and killed Mary L. Brannon, 55 years of age, in an automobile accident at Adams and Main streets.

TELLS CRIME CAREER HERE

Man Held in Kansas City Springs Surprise on Police of Los Angeles by Confessions

Grant Hartnell, held by the Kansas City police, appears to be more certain that he is wanted in Los Angeles for various crimes than the local police are, according to Capt. Home of the detective bureau. Capt. Home said last night he had received word that Hartnell had confessed to several robberies in this city, and that while the crimes described by Hartnell took place, the police have no information connecting him with them.

"We have sent for photographs and other data," he said, "and when they arrive will see if anybody can identify the man. It is our experience that men caught red-handed in other cities tell of crimes of a more serious nature in Los Angeles, hoping to be transferred here and then get an acquittal for lack of evidence."

Robbery of four banks, three stores and two oil stations in and about Los Angeles constituted the tale of crime which Hartnell poured into the ears of the Kansas City police, according to dispatches. One of these robberies, he said, was of a bank at Ninth and San Pedro streets on November 19; another was of the Moneta Bank, in which Hartnell said he got $800 for his share; another was the Hollywood branch of the Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, where robbers got $1790.

Hartnell said also he helped rob a mail truck at El Segundo, looking for the Standard Oil pay roll; a Daley chain store at Huntington Beach of $600, and a Standard Oil station of $10 in Los Angeles.

Hartnell said he had a big motor put in a small chassis to get away from Los Angeles, and that he and a companion toured across country, robbing as they went. Police found such a car at a farmhouse near the city, and had hard work running less than forty miles an hour. Hartnell's room at Kansas City was a regular arsenal, the police said, equipped with shotguns, pistols and revolvers, all loaded. He is charged with robbery in Kansas City.

After his arrest, it is declared, the prisoner tried to sever an artery in his arm with a piece of glass.

DRY AGENTS TO TRIAL

Two Ex-Prohibition Men Make Plea of Not Guilty

A. R. Munson and L. R. Lareoux, former investigators for the prohibition squad of the District Attorney's office, accused of bribery in connection with the prosecution of a dry-law violation case, yesterday pleaded not guilty to the charge when they were brought before Judge Keetch. According to the complaint against the men, they asked for and received a bribe of $300 from F. Wygal with the understanding they would thus be influenced in the prosecution of a case against Wygal. Their trial was set for January 17, 1924.

SUES FOR DAMAGES

Passenger on Los Angeles Railway Car Asks $50,000

John Willard Turner, who declared he was brushed from the step of a street car by a truck at Fifteenth street and Santa Fe avenue and seriously injured, yesterday filed suit against the Los Angeles Railway Company for $50,000 damages. While it is against the rules of the railway for passengers to ride on steps of cars, Turner held that the company was responsible inasmuch as he said the conductor had accepted his fare and permitted him to ride on the step.

PAIR FINED FOR LIQUOR VIOLATIONS

Crime Crusher and Model Court Victims; Policeman Pleads Guilty

Antonio Corsi, a well-known artist's model, and A. R. Thompson, a police officer, were among the Wright Act prisoners fined yesterday by Police Judge Sheldon. Corsi pleaded guilty to possession of five gallons of wine and as much whisky in his home at 6413 Eagle Rock avenue, and Thompson to possession of what was left of a half pint, and to intoxication.

Thompson, a member of the crime-crushers division, was arrested at Forty-second and San Pedro streets Saturday night by Officers Harmon and Deardorff after a motorist had complained the man had annoyed him. He told the officers he had taken the bottle away from a man, without arresting him, and drank its contents. He was fined $175 on the Wright Act charge and $20 on the other.

Corsi's arrest followed a party he gave to Hollywood folk on Halloween. Neighbors complained and Sergt. Ross got a search warrant and raided the place. But Corsi was not at home, being in Berkeley where he was lecturing on art to students of the University of California. He was arrested when he returned. Corsi has posed for the world's famous painters and has also appeared on the screen. He was fined $200.

FULL OF FACE CARDS

ORPHEUM DEALS GREAT HAND TO ITS PATRONS

By Grace Kingsley

You who haven't been to the Orpheum in years, shake the moth balls out of your best black velvet dress and your "other suit" that you haven't worn since Sister Emma got married to her second, and take a trip down there, even if you have to take the money out of the kids' bank. Santa Claus has sure dropped a prize package out of his knapsack this deal. The very best show, in fact, that the Orpheum has let us in on since I don't know when.

Vaudeville face cards and aces just clutter up the stage and struggle for first place, with Theodore Kosloff's marvelously beautiful and dramatic ballet production at one end of the gamut and Trixie Friganza, chubbiest and funniest of comediennes, at the other.

Kosloff crashes the gate again with his gorgeous act, so full of artistic detail that you can sit through it many times without seeing it all. Vera Fredowa, when she debuts in New York, is going to win Pavlowa laurels, and Kosloff is going to take his place as the greatest producer of ballets in this country. Flower Huger, too, will hack a new monogram on Broadway.

Trixie Friganza, thrice blessed of the reviewers, always brings a new act in her carpetbag of tricks. Her character songs this time include a number about the gabby wife driving from the back seat and bossing Husband Henry around from that vantage point that is the big bark; and there is another which she does in a grass dress, a la South Seas, that bings the bullseye hard; also a song about the unknown wives of heroes. We had to have several helpings of Trixie before we would let her go. Her repertoire of gowns is also dashing.

A real star act is the after-piece, in which all hands kid through a screamingly funny travesty of Owen McGivney's "Oliver Twist" act, just preceding. It is smart, spontaneous, the "rat's rubbers," as Trixie says. Trixie as the Artful Dodger lures the loud laughs.

Quite amazingly clever is McGivney's act, protean in character, in which he plays all five characters, viz, Sykes, Fagin, Nancy, Monks and the Artful Dodger, changing his make-up faster than a woman can change her mind. He is a pretty robust Nancy, to be sure, but proves himself not only clever in make-up, but in characterization.

"The Bing Boys" is right. Miller and Mack are just that. Original, true comics, in kidding and dancing stunts, they stop the show. Mack ballyhoos and Miller puts over a unique line of comedy as well as a vividly humorous personality. Miller's burlesque female impersonation is the funniest of its breed, outside of the late lamented Bert Savoy's, that I have seen. Miller's is absolutely straight burlesque, however, with no nance trimmings.

Dotson, colored, is good at both ends—talk and dancing. This jungle boy is a natural-born kidder as well as a hypnotising stepper.

Opening up the joy are Towa and d'Horty in a juggling act that is a nifty.

Ray Hughes, billed as the "fall guy," talks and does funny falls, but falls harder when he doesn't fall than when he does, if you get me. Here is a boy full of personality and spontaneity, with that about him reminiscent of Charlie Chaplin, and scored a clean hit in the after-piece, but he has a mighty poor routine of his own. He should get new material. Pam is his leading lady, a pretty girl.

"SIX-CYLINDER LOVE" HIGH-POWER COMEDY

"Six Cylinder Love" is a capital comedy anent an automobile owner and his automobibulous friends! You can see it down at Tally's Broadway, and it teaches that it is not just buying an automobile, which is simple enough, that motor-vates the plot, but what goes with it.

"I can run my automobile forty miles on five gallons of gasoline, four chicken dinners, three bottles of champagne and two boxes of cigars!" declares the sad owner of a big machine. And he continues to one of the hangers-on: "Every time I say hello to you, I say good-by to a good cigar!"

Doubtless every day a young couple does mortgage a home to buy a machine, just as this young couple does. And the auto salesman describes the poor purchasers of big machines as a "minute man—there's one born every minute."

If you really want to see a New York cast in a smart, delightful, altogether charming comedy, see "Six Cylinder Love." The cast which appeared in New York on the stage also appears in this picture. Ernest Truex, the young husband, ought to give more time to pictures. There is about him that which suggests Charlie Chaplin. He has something of Chaplin's deftly subtle touch as well as his sureness in both comic and pathetic appeal. Florence Eldridge, too, as the wife, is a really skillful comedienne, vivid and fascinating. Ralph Sibberly, as the automobile salesman, is a riot.

Everybody now-a-days either owns, has owned, or is thinking of owning an automobile, and so the troubles of this young couple, which begin with the purchasing of their neighbor's high-power machine, are far from caviare to the general, indeed are corn-beef and cabbage to us all. The false friends, when the automobile can no longer be supported, of course, go along with the auto's ownership. And it is the proud janitor of forty buildings that buys the fatal car at last!

The subtitles are most diverting, there being a chuckle in every one of them, as most of them are lines from the play.

A Fox comedy, featuring Lew Brice, called "Dance or Die" has a dance Marathon that is funny.

CRITERION PATRONS RECEIVE SOUVENIRS

Twelve matinee patrons of the Criterion Theater this week will receive souvenir programs, autographed by members of the cast of principals of the current feature, "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." The program is a twelve-page affair, elaborately gotten up, with an art cover printed in blue and gold. It carries pictures of many of the principals, as well as the story of and details concerning the making of Victor Hugo's novel. On the fly leaves of twelve of these, the stars, including Lon Chaney, Patsy Ruth Miller, Norman Kerry, Ernest Torrance, Brandon Hurst, Gladys Brockwell, Raymond Hatton, Winifred Bryson and several others, will inscribe their names. The signatures of Carl Laemmle, head of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, and Wallace Worsley, director of "The Hunchback," will head the list of autographs.

The programs will be given each day to two persons attending the matinee, chosen at random. Prior to the opening of the theater two seat numbers will be marked down. The occupants of these seats, whoever they may be, will receive the souvenirs.

CITY PLAYERS IN NEW PRODUCTION

By KENNETH TAYLOR

Another contribution to the amusement life of the city opened at the Main Street Theater last night when the Municipal Players, under the direction of Ellen Galpin and the auspices of the Playground Department, presented a new play, "A Bit o' the Moon," by Turbese Lummis Fiske. The production will be repated every night this week.

The moon, here, is symbolic of happiness, vainly sought after by a lovable, crippled grandmother and her granddaughter. The new play is not one of action, but rather of the spirit. The problems presented are not ones that would be likely to be great obstacles in real life, nor are the solutions offered the ones that would be presented in this day and age.

In its first form there is room for much criticism of the play. It runs to dialogues and monologues and allows its characters to shift pretty much for themselves when they are not actually necessary on the scene of action. The grandmother, for instance, sits throughout practically the entire first act without saying a word, while two middle-aged women who have elected themselves to run the household discuss the situation pretty thoroughly. Undoubtedly this is done to impress upon the spectator's mind the fact that the grandmother's silence is more valued in that home than her opinions. But it creates an awkward situation that might, with a little more pains, have been avoided.

Two performances are particularly outstanding. One is that of the grandmother, contributed by Lydia Knott. Although her scenes are few and very far between, she displays a feeling and a study of the part that immediately lifts it from the commonplace.

The other is that of the girl, Madeline, portrayed by Helen McPeak. Hailed by the Municipal Players as an unusual find, this 16-year old girl offers a versatile performance. She is not yet entirely at home on the stage, one feels, for there is a note of uncertainty in her handling of the role. A few months of constant work before the footlights should develop in her something really worth while.

Other members of the cast include Reese T. Dudley, who appears to advantage as Arard, the poet-lover of the girl, who finally succeeds in winning her a "piece of the moon," Minna Ferry Redman, Elgin Lowry Fisher, Anna Heloise, Lyle Rooks, Roy Crippon, and Isabell Morse Jones.

"WHITE TIGER" IS PRISCILLA OF OLD

Considerably better than her last few pictures is "White Rose," starring Priscilla Dean, which opened at the Miller Theater Saturday. Although she is not the same flashy, fiery personality we have seen in "Outside the Law" and other of her earlier successes, she carries the role with conviction and you are interested in her every moment.

The story, too, moves along at a rapid clip. Tod Browning wrote and directed it, giving added proof to the opinion frequently expressed that the Browning-Dean combination is hard to beat.

Perhaps the greatest triumph is that of Raymond Griffith, who succeeds in stealing the honors away from the leading man. Not only is his role the most sympathetic, but his personality is also the most outstanding. That doesn't mean that Matt Moore is backsliding, either. Somehow or other he has been left to shift for himself. Whether that fault lies in the original story or occurred in the cutting of the picture would be hard to determine. But as shown on the screen you more than once wonder just what that character is doing, and why. Even after the final fadeout, when you realize that he is the hero, you don't know much about him—what he does or where he lives or what kind of servants he has—except that he loves the girl and she loves him, and her past doesn't matter.

The story concerns two children, separated in childhood immediately after the death of their father, who was framed by a "friend." Jumping fifteen years, we find the girl a crook, living as the "friend's" daughter, and the boy very much attracted to her. Fate takes a hand and reveals the truth all around, while the villain is accidentally killed while trying to make his escape. It's great screen stuff; even the censors should pass it.

Screen Comedy Bright Spot on Pantages Bill

Hook one of Viola Dana's spicy little comedies up with a show that has as many novelties in it as the current Pantages program, and you have an offering that is entertaining all the way through.

Vi's picture is "A Noise in Newboro," being quite a big noise for such a little star. The story isn't new, but who cares? With a cast as acceptable as the one seen here, and the treatment given it by Harry Beaumont, who directed, to John Arnold, who photographed, it's hard to find fault. Briefly, the plot tells about the homely little girl who is snubbed on every side in her old home town, who goes to New York, acquires fame, money and a fortune, and then goes back home and gives the folks the ha-ha. Just once are you asked to stretch your imagination a little beyond the usual stretching point. That is when they present Vi as a homely little girl in the first reel. You can see for yourself that she's not. But she tries hard to appear so.

Numbered prominently among the supporting cast are Allan Forrest, David Butler, Malcom McGregor, Eva Novak, Betty Francisco, Alfred Allen, Joan Standing and Bert Woodruff. Of that gang you will find it hard to pick the leading man for quite a while. But the final choice will be acceptable.

Another echo of the Moscow art theater movement is the presentation of "Sarafan," which headlines the vaudeville portion of the bill. If you haven't seen one of these productions you will probably find it very interesting.

Norman Taylor and Ida Howard offer "Mails and Females," which proves to be a very entertaining animal act, with the animals doing nothing but look pretty.

A novel blackface act is offered by Harris and Holly in "Push 'Em and Pull 'Em." You don't know what a relief it is to see a piano on the stage that nobody plays until these chaps take their final curtain.

PLAYDOM

INTERESTING PRODUCTION OF NOUVEAU DRAMA

By Edwin Schallert

"R.U.R." is not a new spelling of the name of the place where the Germans and the French have been having a rumpus. It is the title of a play, and the three initials are used to designate the names of a new variety of mechanical creatures devised by man. They are called Rossum's Universal Robots, and they gradually acquire dominion over all the human species. If you want to find out all about them a visit to the Fine Arts Theater this week will enlighten you and also prove stimulating to the imagination.

"R.U.R." was written by Karel Capek" and translated into the vernacular by Paul Selver and Nigel Playfair. It had never been presented in this part of the country until the opening of the production last night. Those who were present, drawn by its reputation in the East, manifested an exceptional interest both in the drama and the manner of its giving.

The essential idea of "R. U. R." may not be new, but the way the story is told offers much of novelty. Fundamentally the plot involves the elements of the Frankenstein—that is the idea of building up a mechanical creation that in the end turns on its inventor.

The Robots are supposed mechanically to perform all of the servile tasks that man has been heir to since the beginning of the earliest of the world's recollections, and they incidentally completely remove the sweat from his brow. Any of us would be in favor of Robots as an institution because they would certainly help to solve the servant problem. The only trouble is, could they be kept from acquiring an ego and what would happen if they did?

At the opening of the play, we are face to face with this question. The scene is the factory where the Robots are made on an island, and the time is the future. There are two Robots in the office, the man dressed in blue denim overalls with which all male Robots are provided, and the woman in a simple tailored blue suit. They perform their duties quite according to rote.

Enter a woman from the league of humanity, or some such organization, who feels the impulse to give life and soul to the automatons, thinking that if they may feel emotions, suffer pain, have a soul, they will be more amenable, will approach complete self, realisation and achieve a real communion with man.

The woman is the one who really sets the fuse to the powder mine, and some ten years later it explodes. The Robots have dominated the world, because they have manufactured in such quantities that they far outnumber man. The birth rate of the human race has declined to nothing for some unknown reason, and practically the only survivors are those on the island who operate the factory that manufactures the Robots.

Though the Robots are male and female they cannot reproduce themselves. They do not know affection or love during the three acts of the play, and you have to wait for the epilogue, when human beings are no more, for their final evolution.

The way the story develops it at times attains the excitement of a melodrama. Particularly in that scene where the last survivors are completely surrounded by the army of Robots, and practically helpless to prevent their final onslaught. Even the papers describing how Robots are made have been destroyed by the woman, Helena, when out of apparent protective mother instinct she hears that no more children are being born into the world. With these papers the besieged might save themselves, but without them they have naught to do but await their destruction.

"R.U.R." is not a type of play that one may criticise in a conventional way. That is the reason I have tried to tell so much of the story. The drama is tremendously well-worked out, and built up, and if it catches your imagination once you will be absolutely gripped by it. If the whole thing seems too far fetched you will be disappointed.

The playing reflects much credit, especially on Katherine Van Buren in the leading feminine role; Arthur Merriweather as the cold Dr. Hallemeier; William Raymond as the very human young manager who is married to Helena; Frank Dawson as Dr. Gall; Victor Jorey as Consul Busman and Joseph McManus as Radius the Robot. Franklin Pangborn was seen as Primus, another Robot, Max Pollock as Mr. Alquist, and Ynez Lowe, Carl Kroenke, Kyra Alanova, Earl Adams and Carroll Nye and others are in the cast.

I liked "R.U.R." tremendously. I think you will too.

"PIONEER TRAILS" IN SECOND WEEK

"Pioneer Trails," which proved such a popular drawing attraction at Clune's Broadway that it is being held over for a second week, is being accorded enthusiastic praises from Eastern critics. The picture is acted by a cast headed by Alice Calhoun, Cullen Landis, Otis Harlan and Bertram Grassby, and was directed by David Smith.

Other features of the program include a comedy, "Roughest Africa," starring Stan Laurel; a superb scenic, "The Hunting Grounds of Hiawatha," and music by Leon's concert orchestra and Hoffman at the Hope-Jones organ.

"ACQUITTAL" TO MAKE WAY FOR "VIRGINIAN"

"The Aquittal" opened the fourth and final week of its local engagement at the Mission Theater yesterday.

Plans are now being made for the launching of Owen Wister's "The Virginian," which will be given its first showing next Monday. Kenneth Harlan, Florence Vidor, Russell Simpson, Pat O'Malley and Raymond Hatton are among those featured in the cast for the Wister romance.

"The Acquittal" stars Claire Windsor and Norman Kerry, and has been declared one of the most thrilling mystery plays of the current season. Ben Turpin is on the present bill in "Asleep at the Switch."

MORE SCHOOL BONDS NEEDED

New Issue Planned Said to be Inadequate

Finley Declares Population Has Doubled

Tells Club Hundreds of Rooms Necessary

The school bond issue to be voted upon next June will amount to $25,000,000, and the last of the proceeds of the recent $17,000,000 school bond issue will be spent by next March, Assistant School Superintendent Finley told members of the Women's City Club yesterday, but even that will not allow the schools to catch up with the increase of population.

The $17,000,000 bond issue, Mr. Finley said, built 129 new school buildings and fourteen shops, and bought forty-seven new school lots.

MORE ARE NEEDED

Between September, 1922, and last September, there were 29,500 new pupils enrolled. This increase should be taken care of in 842 rooms at thirty-five pupils to a room, but there are not many more than 842 rooms for the whole 175,000 enrollment, he said.

"The city of Boston recently voted $22,000,000 in school bonds and spent $2,500,000 on one building," he said. "But we would think that extravagant. It is not better buildings we need, but more of them. The school district includes 642 square miles for the elementary schools and 954 square miles for the high schools, with a stretch of sixty-two miles from the mountains to the sea.

POPULATION DOUBLE

"Your children will be educated, without a doubt. But the question is, where: in the alleys, on the streets, in pool rooms and dance halls, or in properly equipped schools? It is not alone necessary to teach the young mind how to shoot, but to teach the young shooter how to mind. Mathematics serve the swindler as well as the engineer, but to know how to live intelligently and kindly serves all mankind."

Introducing Mr. Finley, Mrs. C. E. Noble said Los Angeles had a greater number of schools than any other city in the United States, but that if no new pupils should be admitted to any of the 217 elementary schools or twenty-six high schools, it would take four years to catch up with the progress of seven years ago. The public school population has just doubled in the last fourteen years.

JOHNSON IS SENTENCED AS BRIBER

Prosecution Witness in Orsatti Trial is Given Short Jail Term

Following the recommendation of Assistant United States Attorney Mark Herron, that the court use extreme leniency in the sentencing of J. R. Johnson, who pleaded guilty of conspiring with Morris Orsatti to bribe Harold H. Dolley, prohibition agent in charge, in July, 1922, United States District Judge Bledsoe yesterday gave Johnson three months in the Orange County Jail and a fine of $5000. As Johnson is without funds this means four months in the Santa Ana jail.

In asking for the clemency of the court, Mr. Herron said that but for the evidence furnished by Johnson it would have been extremely hard to have convicted Orsatti, and in this view of the case Judge Bledsoe joins. The court referred to Orsatti as a male factor of the worst sort, who was able to rally his friends who had money and escape jail imprisonment following the arrest of the pair, while Johnson was compelled to spend more than three months in the Los Angeles jail, and then had to be released on his own recognizance.

The court strongly intimated that it was worth a great deal to catch Orsatti, who was the source of the conspiracy to which Johnson had pleaded guilty, and Orsatti was convicted by a jury.

Johnson at the time of the arrest of the pair was an operator with the Burns detective agency, and while he was in the County Jail, his family had to be supported by public charity.

The office of the District Attorney was under great obligations to Johnson, in many ways, and Mr. Herron did not mince any words in admitting as much. Both the District Attorney and the court thought it was worth a good day's work to curb the activities of Orsatti, who, according to the statement of Mr. Herron, had collected large sum of money for bribing purposes, before Johnson appeared in the scene at all.

First Snow of Season Falls Up at Big Bear

Santa Claus is reported to have established an outpost to handle his Southern California Christmas business somewhere up in the Big Bear country coincident with the winter's first snowfall. That's the way old Santa usually works—digs himself in while the Snow Queen tosses her white mantle over Old Baldy and the surrounding country.

According to reports brought in by week-enders, Friday's snowstorm left eighteen inches of snow on the ground. Roads in and out of the valley were blocked for a brief time during the storm, but the county forester's office reported that the roads are all open now. Harry A. Swart, Renaliles scenario writer, reported that ducks on Big Bear and Baldwin lakes were plentiful but flying high.

ALL FLEET TO REHEARSE

All Naval Vessels on Coast to Try Out Plans for Maneuvers in Caribbean

The spectacle of the entire United States Battle Fleet operating simultaneously in a single evolution will be witnessed off San Clemente Island on the 7th and 8th insts., all forces of the huge fleet participating on those dates in a rehearsal of battle maneuvers to be held next winter in the Caribbean Sea. Ten superdreadnaughts, thirty-seven destroyers, three squadrons of aircraft and a corresponding number of cruisers, submarines and auxiliaries will take part in the exercises, which will be under the direct command of Admiral S. S. Robison, commander-in-chief of the battle fleet.

The maneuvers will present the most spectacular show of naval forces, held on the Pacific Coast in three years. It will also be the first occasion on which submarines will have operated as integral units of the battle fleet, made possible by the development of the huge S type craft now stationed at this base.

MANEUVER PLANS

The Battle Fleet will leave Los Angeles Harbor January 4, next, enroute to the Caribbean, where it will join the fleet operating in the Atlantic at Culebra Bay, Porto Rico. Until January 23 the West Coast forces will participate in the joint Army and Navy maneuvers at Panama, climaxed by a concreted attack on the canal.

The battle fleet will then conduct strategic exercises enroute to Culebra, ending with a theoretic battle with the Atlantic forces. Two weeks of conferences and athletic exercises will follow ashore between officers and men of the combined fleets, after which all ships will dispense for a fortnight's shore leave.

BACK MAY 5

The dreadnaughts will proceed to New York for the holiday, the first time that they will have been in Atlantic waters in four years.

After reassembling at Culebra the fleets will run through the final two weeks of maneuvers, leaving for home bases about April 10, the battle fleet arriving at Los Angeles Harbor May 5.

The air forces will assemble a larger force of planes for the maneuvers than at any time in the history of the Navy, while a record contingent of marines will also take part in the exercises.

TO ASK BALM OF WIFE'S KIN

William H. Bremer to Sue Mother-in-law and His Sister-in-law for $25,000 for Alienation

The price of a wife's love was placed at $25,000 by William H. Bremer yesterday when he signed an alienation-of-affections complaint against his wealthy mother-in-law and sister-in-law. The complaint will be filed this morning by Attorney Hudson P. Hibbard, of the law firm of Hibbard and Kleindienst.

Mr. Bremer is a well-known figure along Auto Row. His wife is Frances Ryan Bremer and the daughter of Mrs. Abbie Ryan, a wealthy apartment-house owner of Long Beach. Mrs. Ryan, the mother-in-law, and Lauretta Ryan Hoffman, Mr. Bremer's sister-in-law and prominent in musical circles as a concert singer, are named as defendants in the alienation suit.

SAYS LOVE STOLEN

Mr. Bremer sets forth in his complaint that his mother-in-law and sister-in-law have robbed him of the love of his young wife, whom he married about two years ago. In a statement made last night he told of his happily married life with the daughter of the wealthy apartment-house owner, which he declares remained so until three weeks ago.

"Then she left me," he said. "She wanted to visit her mother and we parted happily. Her sister, Lauretta, resides with the mother in Long Beach. She was to remain there for a short time.

"I was to meet Frances last Saturday. In the meantime, I had rented a cozy little apartment and had furnished it as she would want it furnished. At 5 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, I called for her. I was told to wait. I waited and waited in my car. She did not appear. At 9 p.m., I telephoned to her. Her mother answered the call. My mother-in-law informed me I could not speak with my wife. Finally, I succeeded in reaching her by telephone. She told me she was through with me."

DECIDES TO SUE

So, after many efforts to bring his wife back to him—all of which failed, according to Mr. Bremer—he instructed his attorneys to draw up a suit against his mother-in-law and sister-in-law, whom he blames for alienating the affections of Mrs. Bremer.

His suit sets forth that on or about the 13th inst., while he was living with Mrs. Bremer in Los Angeles, the mother-in-law and sister-in-law "wrongfully, wickedly, unjustly and maliciously contrived to deprive him of the affections, comfort, society, fellowship" of Mrs. Bremer. This they did, he further asserts, by enticing her away from him and her residence in Los Angeles to a separate residence in Long Beach and "have since detained and harbored her there against his consent and have alienated and destroyed her affections for him."

Mrs. Ryan, the mother-in-law, was formerly a resident of Cripple Creek, Colo., where she operated a hotel. Since moving to Long Beach she has become the owner of the Nautilus Apartments, 237 East Ninth street, in the neighboring city.

WRIT GIVEN IN VICTORY HALL CASE

Supreme Court Orders Payment of Fund Held Up by County Auditor

Promotion of patriotism is a public purpose, according to an opinion given yesterday by the State Supreme Court in ordering a writ of mandate against H. A. Payne as County Auditor. Payne is ordered to approve payment, which he had refused to do, of certain expenses preliminary to the erection of a Victory Hall, recently authorized by the Board of Supervisors at a cost of $500,000.

The petition was brought by the Allied Architects' Association and Payne had taken the ground that the description of the building as "for the use of patriotic, fraternal and benevolent associations" placed restrictions upon its public use and thereby excluded it from the class of works for which public money may be expended.

The court holds that the description is sufficiently broad and the resolution of the Board of Supervisors not unconstitutional. The Constitution does not intend, the ruling says, that public buildings must necessarily be open to the public at large at all times.

The decision was written by Justice Lennon and handed down without dissent.

WIFE WON IN CITY IS LOST ON IDAHO RANGE

William Bell, an Idaho rancher, had city manners and country manners. The former won him a bride; the latter lost him a wife. "I met him in New York City," Mrs. Lillian Bell told Judge Clock, "and his manners were wonderful. He took me to his ranch in Idaho, and there he became uncouth and disgusting. No woman could live with him." She was granted a decree.

FAKE MEDIC PERMIT QUIZ UP TO STATE

Board Member Here Says He Will Not Act as Result of "Diplomas" Discovered

An investigation of the source of numerous doctors' diplomas, asserted to have been issued under the name of the defunct Pacific Medical College of Los Angeles, and which recently have been turning up in Connecticut and other eastern States, lies entirely with State officials at Sacramento who issue charters for medical schools, according to Dr. William R. Molony, local member of the State Board of Medical Examiners.

The Pacific Medical College was operated on Hill street, between Third and Fourth streets, for several years until it went out of existence in 1916. Its courses of study were never approved by the State board and none of its diplomas ever accepted.

However, it is apparent that some of the certificates were presented to eastern boards and inquiries have been received from time to time as to their validity, none of which was ever given a favorable reply. In reports from eastern States, it is asserted that, in some cases, it is known that the diplomas were sold for as low as $300 and that asserted medical quacks were attempting to take advantage of the opportunity to attach an M. D. to their names. While no action has yet been taken it is believed possible that the eastern medical authorities may ask California State officials to investigate, as it is asserted that some of the diplomas are dated after the close of the Pacific Medical College. No investigation, however, contemplated by the Board of Medical Examiners here, Dr. Molony declared.

CRUELTY IS CHARGE OF FILM STAR

May Allison Sues for Divorce Decree From Her Actor Husband

May Allison, motion-picture actress, went for weeks at a time without getting any appreciable sleep, due, according to her divorce complaint filed yesterday, to threats and abuse leveled at her by Robert E. Ellis, her actor-husband.

The complaint, which was prepared by Attorney Milton Cohen, revealed that Mr. Ellis's real name is Robert E. Reel.

He is charged by his wife with treating her in a cruel and inhuman manner; with calling her names too indecent to be mentioned in the complaint; with flying into rages during the months of October and November of this year; with staying away nights and refusing to tell her where he had been; and with threatening to attack her until she was unable to sleep and her health consequently was impaired.

Miss Allison says that her husband once told her: "Let's quit; I'm through. You go on and do what you like. I'm not going to live any longer like this."

Miss Allison and Reel were married, the complaint states, on November 25, 1920, in Greenwich, Ct., and were separated about November 5 of this year. The couple have no community property, it was said.

Several years ago, May Allison was one of the best-known screen stars, but her appearances have gradually become fewer as the younger group of stars developed. She is now said to be considering a vaudeville contract.

Robert Ellis will appear this winter in a play in New York under the management of Mrs. Henry Harris, according to a statement made by the actor last week. He said at the time that, so far as he knew, he and Miss Allison were not separated.
